RIOT IN INDIANA MARKS HUNGER ARMY ADVANCE

250 Demonstrators Join in Melee, in Defiance of Hammond Police.

BALKY TRUCK NEARLY KEEPS 40 IN BUFFALO

Capital Watches Progress of Groups on Way Here to Beseech Congress.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Rioting marked the entry into Hammond today of the Midwestern delegation of the "National Hunger Army." The crowd of 250 men and women, recruited from Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, was routed with tear-gas after attempting to hold a demonstration on the courthouse lawn in defiance of a police order.

The delegation, en route to Washington by automobile to protest conditions to President Hoover, was met by a detail of 35 policemen and warned against holding a demonstration in the city. The procession halted, however, and speakers began to address a crowd that gathered.

Some one tossed a brick into the massed police and a general melee began. A number of Hammond townspeople joined in, some siding with the marchers and others with the police

Seize Red Literature.

The tear gas took effect on police as well as rioters and in the confusion most of the "army" climbed back into vehicles and sped out of town.

The officers overtook the demonstrators, separated them into four divisions and started each column over a different road.

One division later reached Gary, Ind., where it held a demonstration in Communists' hall and then departed for Kalamazoo, Mich. Another file was reported several miles south of Hammond on the Lincoln highway, while the other groups had not been heard from several hours later.

No arrests were made during the demonstration here, but police seized a quantity of communistic literature that was being distributed. A number of banners were also confiscated

Forty Leave Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Forty members of the "National Hunger Army" set out from here this morning in a 2½-ton auto truck and two touring cars for Washington. Some one hundred persons were on hand to give the party a send-off, but there was no demonstration. The departure instead was marked by near comedy.

The auto truck proved balky at the start and efforts of several volunteers failed to succeed in cranking it. Then it was discovered the machine was out of gas. A hat was passed among the spectators and sufficient funds were obtained to buy gasoline. However, even after being fueled, the truck refused to budge and it had to be pushed until it could be thrown into gear.

Two young Negro women and six white women were among the occupants of the touring car.

Federal secret service officials watched from afar yesterday the convergence upon the Capital of already rioting "hunger marchers" and retained their confidence that the situation would be handled "in a manner satisfactory to all concerned."

From his own operatives over the country and from the press, reports came to W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service. But he retained his confidence the situation would be handled satisfactorily to all concerned.

A bulky sheaf of data gathered by Federal agents is described by them at linking Communist leaders closely with the march.

Officials of Uniontown, Pa., on one of the lines of march have already received a demand for a hot lunch

Roumanian Envoy To U. S. Resigns

Davila May Enter Politics; Prince de Ligne Will Go to Rome.

Bucharest, Roumania, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Charles A. Davila has resigned as Roumanian Minister to the United States and is expected to enter politics, it was announced today.

Minister Davila went to Europe late in September and was expected to return here in December. He is unmarried and has headed the legation here about two and a half years. He was an active member of the National Peasants party prior to his designation as Minister to this country.

Legation officials said last night they had received no formal notification of Minister Davila's resignation.

Brussels, Belgium, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Prince Albert de Ligne, former Belgian Ambassador to Washington, will [illegible] to Rome in a similar capacity to succeed Count Della Faille, it was announced today.

Tea House Data Bare Big Vice Traffic Ring

Girls Are Furnished by Philadelphia Group, Inquiry Into Fatal Gun Battle Reveals; Some of Witnesses May Decide to Talk.

The girls employed at the Colonial Tea House in Bladensburg, scene of a gun battle which killed one person a week ago today, are furnished by a group of men in Philadelphia, it has become definitely known.

Seizure of the "books" of the house, by county officers, it became known yesterday, gave full details of arrangements under which the girls work. The memoranda confiscated consisted of slips of paper, one for each girl, bearing her name. In addition, on the slip was a notation of the sum the girl was to receive. The amount she was to pay to the Philadelphia organization and the amount the operator of the house was to pay were shown. The data have been turned over to the Department of Justice.

Usually, each girl pays $10 per week to the group who arranged for her employment and the operator of the house pays another $10 for each girl. The girls are moved to another locality about once every two weeks. Girls who are unusually talented entertainers, or are unusually popular, may have to pay a larger sum, but their fees also are larger.

Another proof of the existence of agencies which supply girls to such establishments is found in the explanation given for a phone call made to the house shortly after the shooting. This call, answered by County Policeman William R. Clifton, resulted in the arrest of the two men being questioned in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia caller asked for "Doggy," which is the nickname of the manager, and then asked if he had been arrested. Clifton promised to find out and had the call traced.

The man, who is said to be the manager of the place, explained that the call was from a man who was trying to place his girls in the house. This explanation, as well as proving

COL. J. H. CARROLL, RAIL COUNSEL, DIES

Long Illness Is Fatal to Man Who Rose From Waif on City Streets.

Col. John Haydock Carroll, who began life as a homeless boy on the streets of a great city and rose to be one of the most distinguished railroad lawyers in the United States, died at 10:50 o'clock yesterday morning at his Washington residence, 2029 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Col. Carroll, who was 73 years old, had been ill since he returned from his summer home at Northport, Mich., last July. Private funeral service will be tomorrow afternoon at his late residence with interment in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Col. Carroll, at time of his death, was general counsel for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and the Northern Pacific railroads. He was also assistant to the president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and represented a number of other corporations. He had served as personal legal adviser to the late James J. Hill, famous railroad builder of the northwest.

When Queen Marie of Roumania made her transcontinental tour of America, Col. Carroll was her official host. He was also official host of the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden when they made their railroad journey in this country. He was decorated by the late King Ferdinand of Roumania.

Survivors of Col. Carroll are his wife, formerly Miss Priscilla Woodrow, of Lynchburg, Ohio, to whom he was maried in 1880; a son, John H. Carroll, jr., of Chicago, Western freight traffic manager of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and a daughter, Mrs. Philip Lantz, of Shields, Pa.

Few, if any, more inspiring stories of fact or fiction have been penned than the one Col. Carroll lived. He was born in Erie County, New York, June 27, 1858, but he did not learn the time or place of his birth or who his parents were until he was 32 years old. Then the discovery came to him through one of those twists of fate that are the happy privilege of fiction writers to invent.

His own memory went back to a day when he was five years old, when he got off a train with his mother in Cincinnati and went to a hotel in that city called the Indiana House. His mother left him in the hotel room with the promise that she would be back in a little while. She never returned.

The hotel management put the 5-year-old youngster on the streets. Roaming, unknown, forlorn and bewildered through the big city he became acquainted with George Kirk,

RECIPROCAL TARIFFS ADVANCED BY RAINEY

Possible Democratic Floor Leader Predicts Fight for Lower Duties.

(Associated Press.)

A strong indication of Democratic plans to readjust the tariff in the coming Congress was conveyed in a statement yesterday by Representative Rainey, of Illinois, through the party's national committee.

Rainey, prospective House Democratic floor leader, said "the time has come for constructive tariff action and something must be done to bring down world tariff walls."

He has been for years an important member of the ways and means committee that drafts revenue-raising and tariff legislation. He advocated a reciprocal tariff to be initiated by the United States as a means of lowering tariffs throughout the world.

"International trade can no longer jump the even higher tariff hurdles of the world," Rainey declared.

"The approaching session of Congress presents more important problems for solution than have been presented to any other Congress since the World War," he continued. "It is not difficult to point out now the issue which will be of the first importance.

"Since the Republicans came into control of the Congress and the Executive, following the Wilson administration, there have been two unconscionable revisions of the tariff upward. * * *

"The effect of these upward revisions is just being felt in this country and in the world. International trade is slowing up. It slowed up last year $5,000,000,000. It will slow up this year in all probability more than that.

"Our tariff must be substantially lowered, but lower rates can only be put into effect with any measure of safety to our industries by resorting to reciprocal duties." He urged passage of a bill to put low rates into effect toward countries that place their tariffs on the same basis.

Hero of Rescues Named Chief of Big New Liner

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Capt. George Fried, hero of thrilling rescues in the stormy north Atlantic, today was named commander of the new United States liner Manhattan, to be launched at Camden, N. J., Saturday.

The Manhattan, a 30,000-ton ship, 705 feet long, is said by the United States Lines to be 10,000 tons larger than any previous American-built merchantman.

Reich's Credit Repayments Draining Gold, Says Luther

Reichsbank President Declares Money Movement Is Effort to Keep Good Standing Abroad, Not Flight of Capital to Safety.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, was asked by the Associated Press to outline Germany's position regarding the forthcoming examination of her financial condition, particularly with regard to her capacity to pay reparations, by an advisory committee of the Bank For International Settlements. He replied with the following statement):

By DR. HANS LUTHER.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Nov. 29.—The Reichsbank's sale of gold and foreign bills during recent weeks has attracted unusual attention both in Germany and abroad.

The opinion is widespread that Germany, under the standstill agreement and in view of her active trade balance, ought even to be able to replenish her supply of gold and foreign exchange.

However, this so-called standstill agreement contains so many exceptions and gaps that the unfavorable development of gold and foreign exchange reserves of the Reichsbank is in the largest measure explained by it.

Figures published some time ago by the Reichsbank show that repayments of credits exercise a determining influence upon the foreign exchange balance. These repayments have amounted from July 31—the day when the standstill agreement became effective—until the middle of November, to more than one billion Reichsmarks.

(The reichsmark is equivalent to approximately 23.8 cents at the cur-

G.O.P. TO NAME ITS CHOICE FOR SPEAKER TODAY

Observers Believe Tilson Will Take Lead on First Ballot.

BOTH SIDES PREDICT VICTORY IN VOTING

Parker Denies Snell Will Withdraw and Shift Support to Mapes.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

House Republicans will meet this morning to select the man who will lead them on the floor in the Seventy-second Congress.

Observers, after a check-up yesterday, predicted that Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, who has been the Republican floor leader for several years, would take the lead on the first ballot today.

Both Representative Tilson and his chief opponent, Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, issued victory statements last night.

Said Representative Tilson:

"I am confident that a majority of the Republican members of the House will support me at the conference tomorrow. A concerted and energetic effort has been made by interests within and without the House membership to line up a majority against me, but a careful check of the membership convinces me that this effort has failed. I shall certainly win."

Parker Issues Statement.

After a conference of the supporters of Representative Snell in the latter's office, Representative James S. Parker, of New York, issued this statement:

"After a careful survey of the situation, I feel confident that a majority of the conference will be for Mr. Snell."

Representative Parker vigorously denied reports that Mr. Snell had entered a "deal" whereby he would withdraw and throw his strength to Representative Carl E. Mapes, of Michigan, regarded as the leading compromise candidate.

The fight, which is to reach a showdown stage today, began after the death of Speaker Nicholas Longworth. At that time, the Republicans had a paper majority of the House membership, and it appeared that they would again be in control in the Seventy-second Congress.

Intensive Fight for Votes.

The general view at the outset was that Representative Tilson would naturally be moved up from floor leader to Speaker. Tilson, of course, announced that he was a candidate.

Then Representative Snell, who had been chairman of the rules committee, announced that he, too, was a candidate. The result was an intensive battle for votes between the two men, one that has been marked by considerable bitterness.

At the outset, as has been said, it appeared that whoever was chosen by the Republicans for Speaker might in fact become Speaker.

In the last few weeks, however, the entire situation has changed. As a result of deaths and special elec-

Football Player Has Broken Neck

Youth in Fredericksburg Hurt Playing Against Capital Club.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—John McCall Boulware, 22, star Fredericksburg High School athlete of several years ago, received injuries expected to prove fatal in a football game here today.

Boulware, playing with the Fredericksburg Rebels against the Stanton A. C. of Washington, broke his neck when he slipped and fell while running interference for a back field mate. Two opposing players fell upon him. An examination at a hospital here showed that either the fourth or fifth vertebra in his neck is broken.

Attending physicians despaired of saving the youth's life, but summoned specialists from Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. Young Boulware's body was paralyzed. Boulware is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Boulware of this city. His father is a grain dealer. Not realizing the extent of their teammate's injury, the Rebels continued to play and won by a 39-to-0 score.

G.O.P. Official Robbed Of $60,000 in Jewels

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Theft of jewelry valued at between $60,000 and $90,000 from the home of Herbert N. Straus, president of L. Bamberger & Co., Newark, and vice chairman of the Republican State national committee, was disclosed by police today.

The robbery occurred some time between 10:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. yesterday, police said. Ten of the twelve servants in the house most of the day said they had seen no suspicious characters. Numerous other wealthy families living in the vicinity have been victimized recently by jewel thefts.

TOKYO WITHDRAWS CRITICISM OF STIMSON; MARSHAL CHANG PROPOSES TRUCE AT CHINCHOW

Chinese Leader Offers to Make Peiping-Mukden Area Neutral.

NIPPON TROOPS MUST ALSO BE MOVED BACK

Mukden Reports Advance to South Rapidly Is Being Liquidated.

Peiping, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, deposed Manchurian Governor, agreed today to withdraw his troops from Chinchow to Shanhaikuan, provided Japanese troops along the Peiping-Mukden Railroad were withdrawn to the Mukden Railway zone.

His headquarters denied any Manchurian peace terms had been signed. Sino-Japanese conversations here, it was said at the Manchurian headquarters, were purely tentative and confined to negotiations for the establishment of a neutral zone in the Peiping-Mukden Railroad area.

It was believed, however, that Gen. Chang's agreement to evacuate Chinchow if the Japanese also withdrew from their position would materially aid a settlement of the general Manchurian problem.

It was understood that December 15 had been suggested as a tentative date for the withdrawal of both sides to be completed that date having been proposed in informal discussions between Chang Hsueh-Liang and M. Yano, Japanese charge d'affaires, which will be continued tomorraw.

Bandit Peril Stressed.

Although negotiations were under way for establishment of a neutral zone along the Peiping-Mukden Railroad between Mukden and Shanhaikuan, no orders had been given for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Chinchow, Manchurian headquarters said. Gen. Chang was reported awaiting instructions from the Nanking government befors taking action.

The nominal Governor of Manchuria pointed out to the Japanese representative the danger that bandits might take advantage of the situation if the area was entirely free of troops and emphasized the need of having Chinese cavalry patrols assist local officials and the police in maintaining order.

Nanking dispatches indicated that withdrawal of both forces was one of the terms laid down in the draft of a resolution which the League of Nations Council had submitted to China and Japan for approval, and that Japan withdraw her troops without waiting for similar Chinese action, to give the evacuation the appearance of a voluntary act.

Hope in Tientsin Situation.

Chinese advices from Mukden confirmed the withdrawal of a Japanese mixed brigade recently sent to Hsinminfu. The withdrawal probably would be completed tonight, the report said.

Manchurian officials said they thought settlement of the Tientsin situation might also be possible now. Americans and other foreigners evacuated that Chinese city last night at the advice of the foreign consuls, owing to a Japanese threat to bombard Tientsin in event of further disturbances there by gunmen.

Five hundred Chinese bandits operating under the cover of artillery crossed the Liao River at noon today and occupied the Town of Yingkow, a telegram received at Marshal Chang-Liang's headquarters said.

Japanese Withdrawal Goes On.

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 29 (A.P.). The liquidation of Japan's military adventure in Manchuria proceeded rapidly today as 10,000 troops backtracked their advance on Chingchow.

The greater part of the expedition which started down the Peiping-Mukden Railway Friday, was withdrawn east of the Liao River. Another

Physician Prescribes Rest Ater Mayor Contracts Heavy Cold.

San Francisco, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker of New York, almost on the eve of his appearance in behalf of Tom Mooney, was taken ill by a heavy cold today.

After a night of virtual sleeplessness because of a severe congestion, the mayor summoned Dr. John Gallwey, who diagnosed his ailment. The physician prescribed rest and advised the mayor to refrain from exertion tonight.

Walker was told that he should remain in his hotel room at least until tomorrow noon when he is scheduled to speak briefly at a luncheon of a San Francisco civic organization.

The medical examination revealed that the patient's temperature and blood pressure were subnormal. The physician was definite in saying congestion had not reached the point of influenza and he believed the medicine and enforced relaxation would stop the indisposition at nothing worse than a "bad cold."

Peace Plans' Impetus Is Seen in Disavowal

Explanation of Tokyo Outburst Against Stimson and Orders to Halt Given Troops Expected to Clear Atmosphere for League Effort.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Disavowal of the sharp criticism of Secretary Stimson by the Japanese foreign office in Tokyo was momentarily expected by the Japanese Embassy here last night. It had already received informal assurances that the remarks attributed to the foreign office spokesman were erroneous.

Still another explanation of the incident between Washington and Tokyo that threatened to overshadow the peaceful solution of the Manchurian clashes between Japan and China was offered here last night from authoritative Japanese sources. It was offered in explanation of the savage attack on the American Secretary of State by a spokesman of the foreign office in Tokyo that the arrival of a press dispatch, garbled either in Tokyo or in transit, had caused the outburst. A complementary telegram from the embassy here, however, arrived for Baron Shidehara at the foreign office shortly after the press dispatch that had caused all the trouble, and when the exact statement of Secretary Stimson had been made known in the official coded dispatch of Ambassador Debuchi, the prompt action of the foreign office in disavowing its subordinate, followed.

It is expected that Ambassador Debuchi will personally convey the sentiments of his government to Secretary Stimson in this regard today. This restoration of calm to the troubled waters of international diplomacy will hasten the peaceful settlement of the "war" between Japan and China that has been waged all the way from the bleak plains of Eastern Asia to the clock room of the Quai d'Orsay.

Another hopeful sign was the announcement here last night that the

GANDHI EXPECTING NEW BITTER FIGHT

Leaves Next Saturday for Bombay; Believes He Will Be Jailed Again.

London, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—From behind a curtain of cold, raw fog, the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, before dawn today revealed, as he walked the streets, his plans to renew the struggle against Great Britain for India's freedom. "There is going to be hell," he said.

The little man, with his head bowed, his shoulders drooping and his homespun shawl pulled tightly around his scrawny body, said:

"I leave Saturday for Bombay. There we shall take up again our weaponless battle against England."

His voice sounding almost spectral as it came waveringly through the thick fog to the listener at his side, he remarked mournfully, "I came here expecting nothing and I leave with nothing."

From behind him came the solicitous words of Miss Madeline Slade, his devoted disciple, "This way, Baaboo (father)," and Gandhi paused while the daughter of a former British admiral picked up the end of his trailing shawl and put it around his shoulder as if he were a child, beckoning to a turn in the road.

"We must go again through a Calvary of suffering," he continued after a moment's silence. Not far away the chimes of an English church pealed out the hour of 4 o'clock.

"It seems God's will that we must take up our heavy cross again and carry it to the end," he said. In the ghostly quiet which hung about London's east end could ce heard the swish of his sandals as he waded through the sloppy streets.

"How soon after your return to India will you begin the battle?" he was asked.

"The masses of India are only awaiting my signal," he replied, "but I

Definite Improvement Is Shown by Tom Mix

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Definite improvement in the condition of Tom Mix, motion-picture star suffering from peritonitis in the Hollywood hospital, was reported at noon today by his physicians, Dr. R Nichol Smith and Dr. Gurn Stout.

Attendants said Mr. Mix apparently was resisting a cold, which complicated his illness last night, and added to the apprehension of the physicians.

NEUTRAL ZONE PLAN REFUSED BY JAPAN

Note Regarded Most Serious Setback to Peace Steps; Briand Replies Today.

Paris, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—An official note virtually rejecting the League of Nations Council's request for establishment of a neutral zone between Japanese and Chinese armies in southern Manchuria was handed to Aristide Briand tonight by Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate.

The Japanese note was regarded here as the most serious setback so far to the council's efforts to arbitrate the Sino-Japanese difficulties.

The note was delivered at the conclusion of the day's negotiations during which the League Council, on a basis of cabled observers' reports, decided there was no valid reason for Japanese troops advancing towards Chinchow, Manchuria. Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate, had informed Briand, the council president, that China approved establishment of a neutral zone.

The new Japanese note reviewed Japan's attempted negotiations to compel Chinese to evacuate Chinchow and retire to a point west of Shanhaikwan, 75 miles southwest. Concerning a neutral zone, the note said:

"The policy of the Japanese government so far has persistently pur-

Tumulty Boomed For Senate Post

Drive Started to Make Him Democratic Nominee to Succeed Morrow.

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The Times says friends of Joseph P. Tumulty, President Wilson's wartime secretary, have started a movement to make him the Democratic nominee for United States senator in New Jersey next year to fill the unexpired part of the term of the late Dwight W. Morrow.

Gov. Morgan F. Larson is expected to appoint a Republican this week to fill the vacancy temporarily, but this appointee will be superseded in next year's election.

Mr. Tumulty, the paper says, retained residence in New Jersey while practicing law in Washington and has expressed a desire to reenter public life.

Indians' Deaths May Solve Mystery of Cliff Dwellers

Zuni, N. Mex., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Observers of a howling blizzard which carried death to at least seven of more than 1,000 Navajo and Zuni Indians, trapped in the storm, today believed the occurrence may have solved the puzzle of the strange disappearance of the cliff dwellers of Mesa Verde.

Through snow rapidly thawing under a warm sun, more than 100 Navajos straggled into the Zuni Pueblo here today. They were part of a big contingent of Indian pinion nut hunters, caught unexpectedly on the high mesas of northwest New Mexico, where they had erected temporary shelter.

Convinced relief supplies had reached 200 other Indians stranded on the Cerro Alto and Santa Rita mesas, reservation authorities concentrated today on efforts to make certain no isolated bands of nut gatherers had been missed by relief expeditions.

Ethnologists have believed that the Mesa Verde dwellings in southwestern Colorado were suddenly abandoned, the occupants leaving implements and food supplies undisturbed. Now they are wondering if the cliff dwellers may have perished in such a storm as that which swept New Mexico last week.

Study of the Mesa Verde ruins shows pottery in place, grain in deep granaries and ashes of seemingly recent fires on the hearthstones. The cliff

SECRETARY'S DENIAL BRINGS QUICK ACTION

Optimism Revives as Japan Admits Being Misled on U. S. Attitude.

Tokyo, Monday, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—The newspaper Nichi Nichi said today that Gen. Jiro Minami had asked Foreign Minister Baron Shidehara for a "full explanation" of secret intercommunications with United States Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

The war minister was said to have asked that the explanation be given at today's cabinet meeting. On Saturday the Seiyukai party demanded Shidehara's resignation because of reports of alleged "promises" to Stimson.

Tokyo, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The Japanese foreign office today revoked its criticism of Secretary of State Henry L Stimson for statements on the Manchurian situation which had been misconstrued as his, and said the situation had been entirely clarified.

"Mr. Stimson assures that he did not make any such statement as I thought from the Press dispatches," said a spokesman for the Japanese foreign office, which yesterday accused the American Secretary of State of "losing his head" and "flying into fulminations."

"Therefore I consider my impulsive expressions yesterday entirely uncalled for," the spokesman continued today. "I desire to state that any part of my statement which was not proper is hereby revoked. The assurance given by Mr. Stimson to Ambassador Debuchi clarifies the situation entirely to our satisfaction. The incident is closed."

Cause of Misunderstanding.

(The American Secretary of State Friday made public portions of an exchange of notes on the Manchurian situation between Japan and the United States. Japan had disclaimed any intention of attacking Chinchow and in view of this Secretary Stimson said it was difficult for him to understand press reports that the Japanese were advancing toward Chinchow. Other statements were misconstrued in Japan as coming from him.)

Col. Stimson's categorical denial that he made the statements erroneously attributed to him and a cable of explanation from Ambassador Debuchi at Washington were received with great satisfaction.

The foreign office spokesman explained that the ire of Japanese officials had been aroused by their assumption that the purported sentiments might have served to stiffen the stand of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang at Chinchow and generally militate against a peaceful solution of the controversy in Manchuria between China and Japan.

Statement by Forbes.

American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes called on Foreign Minister Shidehara and had an amicable talk with him concerning the misunderstanding. At its conclusion he issued the following statement:

"The American Embassy has received advices from the State Department in Washington that the interview purporting to have come from Secretary Stimson is utterly at variance with his attitude.

"The Secretary has never held or expressed in public or in private an

30 Men Make Attack On Japanese Embassy

London, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—A band of more than 30 men attacked the Japanese Embassy in Portman square here tonight, and tried to force an entry, but escaped as police arrived.

Some of the windows of the embassy were broken in the attack, the purpose of which was unknown to the authorities. The embassy staff was absent at the time, except for a caretaker, who telephoned to the police.

HIGH ARMY AND NAVY TRIO RETIRES TODAY

Maj. Gens. Ely and Sladen and Rear Adm. Magruder Will Play Golf.

(Associated Press.)

Golf bags will take the place of swords today at the stroke of midnight for three of America's best known men of war.

Each leaves behind on retirement for age from the Army or Navy a brilliant career of service under the flag. One carries the memory of a stirring controversy with naval superiors which echoed throughout the land.

They are Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, of Independence, Iowa; Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, of Omaha, and Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, of Yazoo County, Miss.

During the last month the three have reached the age of 64 years—at which time all officers of the Army and Navy must by law be ordered to retired status. Their active terms end at midnight, the last day of the month within which they attained the retirement ages.

After more than 40 years of military activity at home and in foreign lands, each will be left now with many free hours. All three look forward to these hours for two purposes—well earned rest and recreation.

The Army, which by practice keeps tab on its retired officers in the off-chance that their services might be required, asked its two retiring generals what they planned to do.

"I'm going to play golf, as I have always wanted to play it," was the reply of each.

Rear Admiral Magruder was unable to report his definite plans to the Navy Department, beyond a desire to spend some time at New Orleans, his present station, attending to private affairs.

Gen. Ely retires as commandant of the Second Corps Area, with headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y. His golf is played with a keen zest of a healthy, robust man. He gets enthusiastic over it and plays with a usual score of 90 or under. He claims that a "small bet or two" on the game increases his interest and he will even offer to wager a bit on a difficult stroke in the midst of a match. He expects to move to Washington and play mostly on the Burning Tree and Chevy Chase courses here.

Gen. Slayden plays a more conservative game. His score is usually around 95. He has told brother officers that he hopes to go somewhere in the South for the coming winter, but has not decided upon the exact city. He will select it with an eye on its golf courses.

During the past month each of the officers has been honored in tribute to their service by many groups near their stations. Gen. Ely is admitted by his Army colleagues to hold the record for entertainments. In one month recently during his tour of duty in New York he was present at 22 dinners.

Gen. Sladen began his military career by an appointment to West Point at the age of 18. A year later Gen. Ely entered the Academy. From the time that each received his first commission as a second lieutenant until the ranks of general officers were reached during the World War, their rise through the military grades was almost simultaneous.

Admiral Magruder entered the Naval Academy at the age of 18. His promotions were rapid and in 1911 he was appointed a commander on the Asiatic Station. In 1927 his publication of a series of articles dealing with naval economies excited a controversy and resulted in a congressional investigation. For many months the admiral was on the "awaiting orders" list at the Navy Department, after his removal from command of the Philadelphia Navy Yard as a result of the articles.

Head of Drexel Institute Expires in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Dr. Kenneth G. Matheson, for the last ten years president of Drexel Institute, died at his home in Bryn Mawr today. He was 67 years old. He suffered a heart attack Friday.

Dr. Matheson was president of the Pennsylvania Association of College Presidents, a trustee of Princeton Theological Seminary, and actively interested in many Philadelphia philanthropies. He was president of the Georgia School of Technology from 1906 until 1922.

think I shall study conditions awhile before I give it."

"Do you expect the British to put you in jail again?"

"Yes, I expect to be the guest of the government again at Yerovda Jail," he answered, with an almost joyful air, "or they may deport me—but the fight will go on."

Asked what effect a possible resort to arms would have on India, he countered, "What effect can these toys have upon people who are starving for their liberty?"

"Are you sorry you came to England?"

"No," he said, firmly; "I was only a myth and a mystery to many Britishers until I came."

A breath of wind played with the little tuft of hair on the back of his head—the tuft by which he may be pulled from perdition by a friend after death, according to Hindu faith—and he seemed aware of the vileness of the weather for the first time.

"I was not going out this morning," he remarked. "I thought I might just as well walk round and round my room and keep dry, but decided that nothing British—not even the weather—should change the habit of a lifetime."

On the walk home the little party almost ran into a milk wagon and the driver flashed his lantern hardly 2 inches from the Mahatma's face. Then he spoke apologetically. "Oh, good morning, Mr. Gandhi. It's rotten weather."

"Yes, quite British," was the reply.

The two Scotland Yard detectives who accompany Gandhi wherever he goes muttered to themselves as the group approached the door of the humble East End hospice where he occupies a stone cell.

Six burly Bobbies raised their hands to their helmets in salute as the Mahatma ended his stroll and disappeared into the dark, gloomy corridor.

DRYS TO MEET SOON TO MAP 1932 FIGHT

McBride Seeks Information on How Prohibition Cause Stands.

(Associated Press.)

Drys from over the Nation will rally here next month to stock their armory for the 1932 presidential campaign.

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, yesterday called upon his forces to come to the national convention on January 15, prepared to give fullest counsel for a year of "critical importance to prohibition."

The national prohibition board of strategy also will meet here next month, paying special attention to legislative plans for the coming session of Congress. This group yesterday contended in a statement that demands of "brewers" for beer-for-revenue are part of a wet propaganda "three-fourths 'hot air' and the other one-fourth bad economics and worse morals."

McBride told league State superintendents that the wets "hope that the economic earthquake will shake drys out of Congress and a wet into the White House."

Fullest Counsel Sought.

"I will depend upon you," he added, "to be present prepared to give the fullest counsel and cooperation on how best to keep Congress and the White House dry."

McBride sought specifically information on how the prohibition cause stands with relation to the various States' attitude toward presidential candidates, whether the prohibition stand of senators and representatives would be changed, and about the next State Legislatures.

While these plans were going forward, Representative Beck, former Solicitor General, last night termed prohibition a destroyer of basic constitutional principles.

As speaker for the Sentinels of the Republic, the Pennsylvania Republican told a radio audience that by the eighteenth amendment Federal governmental powers had been "inextricably" interwoven "with the reserved police powers of the State."

McBride said all State and district league officials would discuss plans and programs "during" the five-day meeting. He added:

"Every one of the 300 and more men and women in the field and office forces in the league must prepare for the 1932 campaign."

Cites Newspaper Account.

The board of strategy cited a newspaper account of the appearance of Gustave Pabst and a delegation before a Senate committee on May 8, 1917, opposing a wartime ban on brewing.

The statement quoted the delegation as arguing that such a move would be ineffective for conserving food because the industry used "less than three-quarters of 1 per cent of all the grain produced in the United States," and because the barley used was "not a staple human food."

This argument is now being reversed, the board said.

Dr. William Gerry Morgan, Washington, past president of the American Medical Association, yesterday joined the Crusaders, antiprohibition organization and indorsed it as "a sane movement, organized and directed by true patriots."

"This country is seriously ill," he said, "and through lack of treatment and ignorance is swiftly approaching the incurable stage. No country has or can survive continued reign of intemperance."

President to Hear Plea for Negroes

Official of Equal Rights League Will Tell of Conditions.

William Monroe Trotter, of Boston, national secretary of the Equal Rights League, which opened a three-day session last night at the John Wesley Church, Fourteenth and Corcoran streets, northwest, will present to the President today at noon at the White House some of the aspects of the Negro's condition in America. Similar representations have been made to various Presidents by Mr. Trotter during the twenty-three years of the league's existence.

Sessions of the league were opened with an address by the Rev. C. C. Somerville, of Portsmouth, Va., chaplain, who traced the political course of the Nation, particularly since the treaty of Versailles, outlining the promise of world democracy set forth there, and indicating "jim-crowism" in public service, racial proscription and segregation in various departments of the Federal Government as a travesty on the principles enunciated by President Wilson in this connection.

Other speakers were the Rev. H. D. Tillman and Maurice W. Spencer, president of the league. A report of the impression gained at the White House today will be made tonight by Mr. Trotter.

Radio Sets Increasing, With Babies on Wane

(United Press.)

Radio sets instead of children are increasing in the United States, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday.

In April, 1930, 29,980,146 families had 12,078,345 radio sets. The population per family in 1930 was 4.1, as compared with 4.3 in 1920 and 4.5 in 1910.

The average population per family was largest in North Carolina, with 4.9. The smallest population per family was 3.5, in California and Nevada.

New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois each reported more than a million families having radio sets. New Jersey led, with 63.3 per cent, and New York was second, with 57.8 per cent.

Only 5.4 per cent of the families in Mississippi and 7.8 per cent of the families in South Carolina had radio sets.

Northern Virginia Plans 1932 Guide

Fairfax and Falls Church to Map "Washington's Own County."

The Northern Virginia Bicentennial Coordinating Committee has authorized the publication of a small folder to contain a guide to places of interest to tourists. Fairfax County and the town of Falls Church will go ahead with the preparation of a booklet and map, entitled "Washington's Own County," whether the other jurisdictions finally decide to join or not. Former Representative R. Walton Moore of Fairfax, and Charles H. Callahan of Alexandria, will prepare the material.

J. W. Smith of Richmond, State superintendent of rural sanitation will cooperate with Dr. A. L. Carson, Fairfax County health officer, in working out a plan for the sanitation of the district during the influx of visitors next year. The local authorities will also have the aid of the Federal Government.

All places where food is served to tourists are to be checked before February 22, and those whose sanitation meets the required standard will be given a metal sign. An inspector will be stationed in the county next year for the sole purpose of checking this sanitation at frequent intervals.

PEACE CONFERENCE FAILURE PREDICTED

Friends Forum Speaker Sees French Attitude Against Parley's Success.

Predictions that the Geneva Peace Conference will be "a tragic failure" largely because of the ultra-nationalistic attitude of France, was made last night by Joseph B. Matthews, national secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, in a talk at the Friends Forum at the Friends Meeting House, 1811 I street northwest.

Mr. Matthews said that there is a large sentiment in France in favor of peace and disarmament, but that it is unorganized. He blamed Coty, the perfume manufacturer, who has control of two of the largest newspapers in France, for the powerful nationalistic attitude of the country. He believes that the next election in France will undermine this nationalistic strength, but pointed out that this will not benefit the Geneva conference, which takes place in February.

The speaker pointed out that the Geneva conference is only a stepping stone toward peace, and that the other peace machinery will continue operating after the conference. There is not the remotest chance of the conference succeeding without apportionment between Russia and the rest of the world, he said.

Discussing the probability of an ultimate war with Russia, Mr. Matthews said it would be a clear-cut case of fighting for God against atheism. A great many pastors are withdrawing their membership from peace societies because they refuse to remain pacificists as long as Russia stands for atheism, he declared.

Pope Urges Catholics To Have Faith in Future

Vatican City, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XI tonight urged Catholics throughout the world to face "the present world hardship" with a spirit of faith and penance.

"There are many noble souls nowadays who are the target of persecutions as is happening in Russia, in Mexico and in Spain," the Pope declared in addressing cardinals, prelates and officials of the Congregation of Sacred Rites. He read a decree of the heroic virtues of the Italian maiden, Gemma Galgani, referring to her "readiness to suffer for Christ's sake."

Polish Anti-Semitism Scored.

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Resolutions protesting recent outrages against Jews by university students in Poland were adopted today at a mass meeting of both Jewish and Christian leaders in Carnegie Hall.

Vision of Jobless Gobs Mars 'No Navy' Picture

By JOHN J. DALY

MORE broadcasts like Senator Borah let loose, pleading with peoples to use the lash on their governments, and soon all the sailors in the world will be walking the plank.

It may sound rather fantastic to say that the world, if properly prodded, will set out one day to sink all its battleships—but just such a naval holiday as this may happen if too many arguments are advanced against the poor little midshipmites, the admirals and the crews of the yawl boats.

It is argued, and with a great deal of force, that $5,000,000,000 is spent annually for the upkeep of the world armadas, while, to date, 40,000,000 men in the world are out of work. If the cost of naval upkeep and construction were divided among this motley array of humanity, each man jack of 'em would have $125 with which to keep body and soul together. Instead, such moneys are used to steam battleships over the high seas. For what? it is asked.

ON behalf of the poor sailors, it ought to be mentioned, at the same time, that a world-wide destruction of fleets would probably put 50,000,000 men out of work—men who range in training and ability from the admiral on the flagship to the stoker in the hold. If these fellows ever came off the high seas and stormed the seaport towns, looking for work, or booty, heaven help the poor landlubbers. A sailor, if he brings ashore his marlinspike, is a mighty man and a force to be feared.

It seems that all arguments in favor of scrapping the battleships are made on the basis that war is imminent; that a lot of battleships not in battle are out looking for battle; but, to date, there hasn't been a healthy sea-fight since the Battle of Jutland. Even so, a battle on the high seas is as nothing to what might happen if all the navies in the world were to release their manpower overnight and let the boys come ashore—not for shore liberty, the easy, happy-go-lucky life sailors usually lead when they land in native or foreign ports, but for the one object of getting jobs. It would mean 90,000,000 men looking for jobs instead of the 40,000,000 already listed, and perhaps another detachment from the shipyards. Here, then, is one of the most momentous questions facing the world—and not to be answered lightly, or glibly, or by sinking the battleships. There is more to a battleship than meets the eye: more than the fluttering of flags or the booming of guns.

* * * *

THE sensible method of procedure would seem, at first blush, to keep the navies on the high seas—as far as they can get them from the land—with all the battleships at full steam, ready to go places and show the sailors strange sights in seldom explored straits—the Dead Man's Chest, in the Caribbean; the bar of Spain, the reefs off Quoddy Head. At any rate, keep them sailing, sailing, over the bounding main, away from all the countries where the unemployed problem is bad enough as it is, without adding to the emergency.

What ought to be done, of course, is the sensible thing: If the world really wants to disarm, it should do so gradually, by releasing one sailor at a time and sinking its battleships at intervals, instead of staging a wholesale scrapping of the navies.

One by one, as the men come ashore, they might be taken care of by friends and relatives glad to see them home after the long, long cruise. Sailors do not lose their sea legs over night, and this business of dumping entire navies on an unsuspecting world is carrying a thought too far.

Besides, there is the case of the Navy itself, which should have some consideration, if only a little. Pity the poor sailors in a plight like this.

LAMONT DISCLOSES MANUFACTURES CUT

Report That Stocks of Goods Are Down Held Trade Increase Forecast.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover received the cheering word yesterday that America's bulging warehouses are being relieved of the glut of overproduction of manufactures.

This was shown in Secretary Lamont's annual report. Stocks of manufactured goods had dwindled so at the end of the fiscal year that the situation was akin to 1928, giving reason to expect increased business.

As to raw materials, however, the Secretary of Commerce was unable to say the same. Surpluses in general were undiminished.

Mr. Hoover heard again that his moratorium proposal of last June "had a salutary effect on business sentiment in this country and abroad, which was promptly reflected in an upturn in commodity and security values."

To measure industrial activity in this country, the Commerce Department chief selected the Federal Reserve Board's index of production. It averaged 20 per cent less last fiscal year than in the one before, and 25 per cent below the unprecedented volume of 1928-29.

But despite the abnormal business situation, Mr. Lamont emphasized, industrial production for the year ended June 30 was of greater volume than in 1920 and 1922, "and 31 per cent more than in the depression year 1921."

In the last fiscal year the Department of Commerce index of domestic raw material stocks averaged 7.4 per cent larger than in the preceding year, while the index for June, 1931, was 17 per cent above that of the same month of 1930.

"The situation with respect to stocks of manufactured goods is much more satisfactory," the report said. "After rising above predepression levels during the fiscal year 1929-30 the index has since turned downward and at the end of the past fiscal year was about 6 per cent below the preceding year and at the same level as in June, 1928."

The Secretary found foreign trade not so bad as indicated by dollars and cents values. Exports were 34 per cent lower in dollar values and imports 37 per cent under the previous year on June 30, but studies of the department showed that the actual volume of exports was down only 29 per cent. Despite the decreases exports were 2 per cent above the 1922-26 average.

Airplanes in the United States fly 140,314 miles on schedule every 24 hours.

Secretary Lamont revealed that in 1930 the total mileage flown on schedule in the United States, to Canada, the West Indies and Latin America was 37,000,000 miles. More than 415,000 passengers were carried.

Courts Structure Financing Delayed

Construction of First Unit in Municipal Area to Be Postponed.

Delay in the construction of the courts building, the first unit planned for the municipal area, will be necessary while the Commissioners determine a new arrangement for financing the $6,000,000 project, it was learned yesterday.

However, acquisition of all property in the four-square area will be completed, the site will be graded and new water and sewer mains will be installed.

Postponement of the building of the new courts edifice, it was said, was necessitated by recent complications which precluded the Treasury Department advancing to the District government nearly $5,000,000, which the Federal Government had been asked to pay for the District Building.

VICE TRAFFIC RING DISCLOSED BY DATA

the existence of the traffic, also gave rise to the theory that some other purveyors of women may have done the shooting to force employment of their girls.

Two Men Arrested.

Although the identity of the bandit gang has not been learned, the gun battle which killed one and wounded five has resulted in the arrest of two men wanted for murder and the initiation of a probe of the white slave traffic by agents of the Department of Justice.

Hampered by witnesses who were afraid to talk, investigators do not yet know whether the shooting was the result of a holdup or another battle in a war between rival vice gangs. They have obtained a clear and comprehensive story of the actual shooting, however.

There are at least two chances that the identity of the five gunmen may be learned from other sources. An unidentified man has offered in a telephone conversation to tell the true story of the shooting and to tell who the bandits were. So far he has not gotten into communication with any of the investigators; he merely left word for a policeman that he would call again.

The other chance lies in the work of the Department of Justice agents. It is believed that they may uncover some enmity between the group which operated the tea house and some other group in the same business.

May Decide to Talk.

In addition to these chances, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Prince Georges County police are alert for a tip from underworld news sources as to the gangsters and their motive. Some of the five girls and four men held as witnesses, or some of the five wounded, may also decide to talk.

About a score of Department of Justice agents are engaged in the probe, which will cover all the cities between Washington and Boston except New York. In Maryland the justice investigation is expected to center in Prince Georges, Anne Arundel and Baltimore Counties, and Baltimore City.

Philadelphia is expected to be a key city in the probe, and two men, arrested last Monday several hours after the shooting, already have been questioned there. Many of the girls whose movements and earnings are under the control of the gang are from the coal fields of Pennsylvania, and the scant news to be gleaned from the underworld places the head of the organization in Philadelphia.

ERA OF PROSPERITY FORECAST IN MEXICO

Ambitious Highway Program Is Expected to Add Millions to Income.

(Associated Press.)

A wave of prosperity such as Mexico has never seen may, in the opinion of Assistant Commercial Attache Glover in Mexico City, result from an ambitious highway program below the Rio Grande.

Writing in the week's reports of the Commerce Department, Glover said yesterday an income of $75,000,000 or $100,000,000 annually from tourist travel may rank Mexico as a rival of European countries in attracting this form of trade.

Particularly, Mexico is concentrating on the Mexico City-Laredo highway, the country's dream for three decades. This road, 763 miles long, will be the first section of the Pan-American highway and will pass through such picturesque cities as Pachuca, Zimapan, Jacala, Valles, Victoria and Monterrey, according to present plans.

Principal Hindrance.

Since the early days of Cortez conquest, Glover said, the lack of adequate transportation facilities has been a principal hindrance in the nation's economic progress.

"Early Spanish settlers colonized for the most part on the ruins of the Azteo Empire," he said. "While the expansive areas of the fertile tableland proved a haven for those in pursuit of agriculture, and the mountain sides near by abounded in rich mineral ores, the expensive task of transporting products to the seaboard and even to neighboring towns often proved unprofitable. Transportation of merchandise of all classes was carried on for centuries almost entirely by mule train or on the backs of the aboriginies, since none of the rivers in the high uplands were navigable."

Imported in Large Numbers.

Soon after 1900, he continued, automobiles began to be imported in large numbers. Notwithstanding, it was not until 1925 that highway development was put on an organized basis, when the national highway commission was initiated. During the succeeding three years the commission completed 153 miles of surfaced roads, finished an additional 206 miles except for applying bituminous treatment and opened 435 miles of secondary roads to traffic.

During the period 1926-28 the commission began work on the following roads: Laredo-Monterrey, Monterrey-Montemorelos - Villoyran, Monterrey-General Teran, Mexico-Pachuca, Pachuca-Ixmiqilan, Mexico City-Puebla, Venta de Carpio-Leathihuacan-Alcoman, Mexico City-Cuernavaca, Cuernavaca-Acapulco, and Santa Barbara-Amecameca.

In 1929 the commission expanded its program to include seven more important roads, almost covering the system first laid out for development by the group in 1925.

Bomb Explosion Wrecks Home of Havana Official

Havana, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—A bomb explosion today wrecked the residence of Desiderio Ferreira, former secret police chief and member of the board of censorship. The front of the Ferreira residence was crushed in and furniture broken, but neither Ferreira nor his wife, who had been awakened by an earlier bomb explosion, was injured.

The earlier explosion damaged the home of the mother of Carmelo Urquiaga, leader of the majority faction in the Cuban house of representatives.

The explosions today and two others last night climaxed a week of bombings. Seven bombs were set off in the early morning of Friday, national day of mourning for eight young Cuban medical students executed by Spaniards 60 years ago, and six were set off that night. Censorship of Havana newspapers has been tightened so that nothing is to be printed here about bombings, unless injury or serious damage is done.

One Killed in Uruguayan Election.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Nov. 29 (A.P.). Uruguay elected a new Chamber of Deputies and also city council members today, with one known casualty. One person was killed in a clash between nationalists and government sympathizers in the town of Young. The government party expressed confidence that it would have a majority of the deputies in the new congress.

DEATHS OF INDIANS MAY BARE MYSTERY

dwellings were found by Richard and Alfred Wetherell, cattle men, in 1874.

Scientists determined that the cliffs had been devoid of human life for centuries.

None of the modern agencies of rescue and relief were available when the cliff dwellers went out of existence. Hundreds of Zunis and Navajos, caught in the severe blizzard which swept the mesas of Malpais, might have perished if rescuers had not battled their way to relieve the beleagured Indians.

Scientists who investigated the Mesa Verde dwellings discarded one theory after another. It was pointed out that epidemic would have left some bodies unburied in the dwellings. No skeletons were found. Invading warriors would have damaged the cliff palaces, and would hardly have bothered to bury their victims. Wholesale emigration was accepted by some investigators, but others contended the departing cliff dwellers would have taken their implements and stores with them.

Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the Bureau of Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, who made extensive explorations in the cliff dwellings in 1915, fixed the latest probable occupancy of the abandoned dwellings at about 1300 A. D.

Built for defense, the cliff houses were fortified so that a bare handful of men could defend them against an army. Guarding against siege were springs which poured a constant supply of pure water into rock-hewn cisterns. Deep granaries were stocked against emergency.

MUSICIANS PROTEST NAVY'S COMPETITION

Head Avers Service Bands Play at Unofficial Functions.

A formal statement of protest against the Navy Department's practice of ordering Navy Bands to perform at private, unofficial functions, thus depriving civilian musicians of their means of livelihood, was issued last night by Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federaiton of Musicians.

The federation will take the matter before Congress, Weber said, as the Navy Department has "ignored" complaints of the practice.

The Navy has "habitually disregarded the law" enacted in 1906 and 1916 by Congress in an effort to prohibit competition by the service bands with civilian musicians, Weber stated. The Army in recent years "has fairly respected the law," he said.

Explaining that 40,000 of the 125,000 musicians in the federation are out of work, Weber said, "we have made hundreds of respectful protests to the Navy Department without avail." Many of the protests had been replied to, "if at all, in terms of scant respect and even contempt," he charged.

Secretary Adams "pays no attention to our communications, which are turned over to bureau chiefs, who uphold what naval commandants have done, or propose to do," the federation president said.

According to Weber, the instances of illegal use of the 56 Navy bands are as numerous as the requests of those civilians and civilian organizations prominent enough to be deemed worthwhile or serviceable to the naval commandants.

CHINA'S WALL AND NEUTRAL ZONE

TRUCE IS PROPOSED BY MARSHAL CHANG

withdrawal was in progress at Tsitsihar, where only two battalions remained of the division which first captured the city.

Although the disposition of the Japanese troops was not announced, it was believed they would be encamped for the winter as follows: Two battalions at Tsitsihar, two battalions at Kirin and all others inside the South Manchrian Railway zone.

American "Plotter" Seized.

Moscow, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Numerous foreigners, including an American, have been arrested at Dairen and Mukden in connection with a reported Japanese scheme to supply arms to Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, Chinese commander in Manchuria, said dispatches received today from Peiping.

An American named Tribo, a Polish national named Bogdanovsky, said formerly to have been an anti-Soviet guard, and a Lithuanian known as Kobetzky, have been charged with acting as go-betweens in the sale of arms to Gen. Mah, the report said.

Japanese employes in governmental and semigovernmental institutions also were reported involved in the scheme, and three carloads of arms, destined from Darien to Tsitsihar, were reported to have been detained at Mukden.

Among those arrested, Peiping heard, were Japanese employes of the South Manchurian Railway; customs officials and port employes. There also was a rumor that British intelligence service agents were involved.

An organization of arms smugglers backed by prominent Japanese and non-Japanese officials in Manchuria was reported to have been disclosed in the preliminary investigation.

Japanese Bank Closed.

Foochow, China, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Strong anti-Japanese feeling among Chinese here has caused a Japanese bank to close its doors and Chinese authorities to establish military patrols throughout the city.

Japanese naval vessels, with marines aboard, were lying offshore today.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Japanese firms are understood to be negotiating for the purchase of a considerable quantity of Mexican cotton presumably for manufacturing explosives.

American Women Cable Peace Hope to Far East

Five million American women, organized for peace work in the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War, yesterday cabled sister organizations in Japan and China, urging their active support of the use of available peace machinery to avert war in Manchuria. Despite the difficulties, the United States group is "confident that war may yet be averted."

The cable message was as follows:

"Women of America, through the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War, composed of eleven women's national organizations with a membership of 5,000,000, appreciate the effort being made in China and Japan to bring about a peaceful settlement of the present controversy. We feel certain that in each country there is a large group of citizens urging the use of peace machinery and we hope that women earnestly support these methods. We recognize the difficulties but are still confident that war may yet be averted."

The message was sent to Mrs. Matsu Tsuji, of Tokyo, chairman, Joint Committee of Women's National Organizations in Japan, and to the Chinese women through Miss Ting, national secretary, Y. W. C. A. at Shanghai.

Eleven organizations are cooperating in the peace effort. They are: American Association of University Women, Council of Women for Home Missions, Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America, General Federation of Women's Clubs, National Board of Y. W. C. A., National Council of Jewish Women, National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, National League of Women Voters, National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, National Women's Conference of American Ethical Union, National Women's Trade Union League.

PEACE PLANS' GAIN SEEN IN DISAVOWAL

Japanese troops of Gen. Shigeru Honjo had received categoric instructions from the war office to consider the Liao River their furthermost boundary.

In the meantime, the peace negotiations that have been the subject of discussions in Paris at the meeting of the council of the League of Nations continued. The Japanese delegate, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, proposed some changes in the text of the original resolution calling for peace in Manchuria, but it was explained here that the Japanese suggestions are in no sense "reservations," and refer merely to the substitution of certain words in the text. The Japanese government considers the appointment of a neutral commission, which is embodied in the league council proposal, a Japanese suggestion. This was the thought of the Tokyo government ever since the outbreak of hostilities, which resulted in the capture of Mukden and Tsitsihar from the Chinese troops.

No official nomination for the commission of inquiry has been made by the delegates from either Nanking or Tokyo. The name of Gen. Charles P. Summerall has frequently been mentioned in this regard, but in Japanese quarters it was stated last night that the name of the former chief of staff had been brought forward along with several others, among them John W. Davis, former American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, now of the Navy General Board and former American high commissioner in Constantinople. Nothing definite has been done toward the composition of the neutral commission of inquiry until the league council has received notice of acceptance of its proposal by the Japanese and the Chinese governments.

The government of Premier Wakatsuki, which has been reported in danger of dissolution, is still carrying on energetically the peace negotiations through Baron Shidehara, the minister of foreign affairs, and the Japanese diplomatic envoys in London, Paris and Washington. Some foundation for concern over the viability of the Japanese premier and his cabinet had been expressed because of the authoritative air of statements from the war office with regard to the misquoted statements incorrecly attributable to Secretary Stimson. The war office, by giving out its own version of the incident, and utterly ignoring the foreign office, which customarily is charged with the carrying on of foreign relations, seemed to be acting in pursuance of a policy of independence strongly at variance with the usual disciplined reactions of the Japanese government and its ministries.

The action of the Japanese government in thus summarily halting the Japanese advance and in specifically placing the limit of Japanese control at the Liao River will do much, it is believed here, in creating the necessary atmosphere of mutual confidence for the creation of the league's commission of inquiry. The same restrictions will be expected for the Chinese troops under Gen. Mah, who are reported in the vicinity of Chinchow, preparing to counterattack.

TOKYO WITHDRAWS ATTACK ON STIMSON

attitude such as that indicated in press reports, but on the contrary has used his influence to restrain any expression by the American press which in his words 'might be embarrassing to a solution of the Manchurian controversy.' He has publicly denied that the words as quoted were his."

Optimism Again Prevails.

Despite a troubled situation at Tientsin an air of optimism prevailed in informed circles chiefly on the basis of dispatches received by the foreign office from Peiping to the effect that Marshal Chang had expressed his willingness in principle to withdraw the troops in the vicinity of Chinchow south of the great wall.

Marshal Chang's only fear was said to be for the safety of the civilian population of the Chinchow area after the Chinese soldiers had evacuated. This question will be discussed in direct Sino-Japanese negotiations in the event that the Chinese government approves the withdrawal plan.

The main danger point appears to be at Tientsin, but officials considered that serious developments in north China were not likely to ensue. The Japanese reinforcements are expected to have a quieting effect and to "show Chinese malcontents Japan is prepared to combat any nonsense."

WAR TINDER OF 1914 IS HELD ALIVE TODAY

Simonds, Historian, Declares Hoover Unwittingly Cancelled War Debts.

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The purpose and policies which made the World War inescapable survive unmodified today, says Frank H. Simonds, World War historian, in a book to be published tomorrow.

Only the accommodation of seemingly irreconcilable policies, he writes again, can prevent a new war from becoming inevitable.

"In 1914 war came not because any people desired it, but because the policies which all people were pursuing and the objectives which they were seeking, could be realized only through victorious conflict," he said. "In 1932 the situation is unchanged."

The title of his book asks, "Can Europe Keep the Peace?"

Mr. Simonds reaches the conclusion that war debts and reparations will never be paid and that President Hoover is unwittingly responsible for their cancellation; that the League of Nations has failed; that Germany committed suicide with American money; that France caused the downfall of the first MacDonald ministry and the English financial collapse, and that France has exploded all disarmament conferences.

While the Young plan collapsed concomitantly with world-wide depression, he writes, the collapse was not the consequence of depression, because Germany never had intended to pay war reparations.

"In June, 1931," he says, "the Germans afforded the incredible spectacle of a people on the edge of bankruptcy and triumphant. What had happened amounted in effect to a deliberate undertaking on the part of the Germans to commit suicide. * * * Hoover did not save Germany from bankruptcy or the world from the consequences of that disaster.

"Nevertheless, as a result of the Hoover moratorium, all of the war debts and at least the greater part of reparations are dead. The moratorium must be extended automatically, not for one year, but indefinitely."

Aid in Protecting Rail Credits Urged

Atterbury Asks Federal and State Cooperation; Cites Lower Earnings.

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Prompt and practical cooperation of Federal and State governments for protection of railway credits was urged today by W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Pointing to a $34,910,666 decrease in net railway earnings for the first nine months of this year, as compared to the same period in 1930, Mr. Atterbury asked for Government aid in enabling the carriers to meet maturing obligations by protecting their credits.

Ohio State Secretary Will Run for Governor

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, of Blanchester, tonight announced his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the party's primary next May.

Brown's announcement was the second made by a Republican candidate, David S. Ingalls, Cleveland, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for aeronautics, having declared his candidacy a few days after the November 3 election.

Crewless Vessel Found By Coast Guard Cutter

Santa Barbara, Calif., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Her crew apparently lost, the 30-foot power sloop Riger was found drifting, half submerged, 5 miles off Anacapa Island early today.

Finding no one aboard, Coast Guard cutter 260 towed the boat into Smugglers Bay. Names of the owner and crewmen of the distressed vessel were not known.

sued is in the true interest of good relations between China and Japan, and has not been to resort, in disputes capable of direct settlement with China, to the interposition of third parties. It can not but pursue this line of conduct in the present case."

It was understood that Briand would reply to Yoshizawa tomorrow, the response to be made public as soon as delivered to the Japanese delegation.

This response, which will carry the authority of the league, is expected to constitute a sharp reminder to Japan of her obligations to the covenant of the league, and of Japan's previous acceptance in principle of the league council's proposal to send a neutral commission to Manchuria to investigate Sino-Japanese difficulties.

Japan's rejection of the neutral zone proposal not only renews the crisis in the Chinchow area, but also makes more remote and more difficult a unanimous council acceptance of the commission proposal.

Despite the council's repeated assurances that neutral observers would not interfere, it appears that Japan insists on direct negotiations with China without interposition.

It is anticipated that decisive action may follow Japan's refusal, either on the part of the council of 12 (Japan and China excluded), with smaller powers taking the initiative, or from Dr. Sze, who has consistently threatened to invoke the articles of the league covenant if peace negotiations fail. Invocation of these articles would constitute a diplomatic and economic boycott of Japan.

WOMANS PARTY SET TO MEET THIS WEEK

National Convention Will Map Out Program for Two Years.

The three-day convention of the National Woman's Party will open at the Mayflower Hotel next Saturday, when members from throughout the country will assemble to map out a program for the coming two years. Events of importance to the feminist movement will be discussed.

The appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court in the case of Genevieve Welosky, by which the woman's party hopes to establish the right of jury service by women in all the States, is pending.

Also, two women will soon assume positions of great responsibility, Mrs. T. H. Caraway will be sworn in as United States Senator when Congress convenes on December 7, and Miss Doris Stevens has just been made a member of the American Institute of International Law.

At the assembly plans are to be worked out for the inclusion of an equal rights plank in the platforms of the political parties next year.

Plans will also be laid for the presentation of the equal rights treaty and the demand for equal nationality to the seventh Pan-American conference at Montevideo in 1932.

Full reports of national and international progress toward equal rights during the last two years will be presented.

2 Chinese Killed By Chicago Tongs

Another Badly Wounded; More Guards Sent to Block Warfare.

Chicago, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Two Chinese were shot and killed tonight and a third was seriously wounded in what police said might be an outbreak of tong warfare.

The bodies of the slain men, identified as Moy Don Shee, 30, and Moy Him, 30, were found a block apart in the heart of the Chinatown district. The wounded man, Moy Choon Nie, 42, was apprehended by police when he sought treatment for bullet wounds at a hospital.

Lieut. Walter Storms, of the detective bureau, said he believed the shootings were the result of an outbreak of tong warfare. Additional officers were sent to the district to prevent further violence.

SENATE BANK GROUP BEGINS WORK TODAY

Glass Has Plan to Prevent Use of U. S. Facilities in Speculation.

(Associated Press.)

Seeking a running start on the all-important economic program confronting the Seventy-second Congress meeting a week hence, the Senate's special banking committee convenes today.

A comprehensive measure designed to prohibit the use of Federal facilities in stock market speculations and to curb chain banking will be laid before the committee by its chairman, Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

The proposed legislation is an outgrowth of the gigantic stock market boom and subsequent collapse in 1929. It was framed after lengthy hearings by the committee in an effort to put the Federal banking system beyond the reach of speculative activities.

Senator Glass, who returned to the Capital yesterday, announced that he would suggest to the special committee the feasibility of getting to work immediately on the emergency economic program advanced by President Hoover in his bipartisan conferences this fall.

Emergency Program.

The emergency plan calls for recapitalization of the Federal Land Banks, a broadening of the base of paper eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve System, establishment of a Federal system of home loan banks, and revival, if necessary, of the war-time Finance Corporation to back up the emergency $500,000,000 National Credit Corporation.

Congressional leaders, in formulating the program for the session, have given precedence to the domestic economic situation. Both Republican and Democratic spokesmen have joined in this.

As he put the finishing touches yesterday on his message to Congress, President Hoover also emphasized this same program. He deviated, however, to urge prompt disposition of the one-year moratorium, and to this the congressional chieftains are willing to agree. It must be approved by December 15, or foreign debts to this country will be in arrears.

Ratification of the moratorium is assured, although there is going to be a fight against it in both the Senate and House. This discussion is expected to open the way to a full review of the international situation revolving around the vital reparations and war debts.

Non-Partisan Basis.

Senator Glass is a former Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, and around him will enter much of the banking legislation which in all probability will be worked out on a nonpartisan basis.

Senator Norbeck (Republican), of South Dakota, the chairman of the standing banking committee, is also a member of the special committee. Other members include Walcott, of Connecticut, and Townsend, of Delaware, Republicans, and Bulkley, of Ohio, Democrat.

Senator Bulkley has advanced a proposal to invest the Federal land banking system with funds up to two or three billion dollars as an emergency measure to relieve banks of urban and agricultural real estate paper which may be tied up.

Senator Vandenburg (Republican), of Michigan, who has been working all summer on means of liberalizing the Federal Reserve rediscount system so as to get this same problem, will be invited by the committee to present his plans this week.

Pending committee discussions which will be in executive session, Senator Glass is withholding his own views on the banking legislative problem. He has made it plain, however, that he will not sanction any extended loosening up of the Federal Reserve system in an effort to meet simply emergency questions.

REICH'S CREDIT REPAYMENTS DRAINING GOLD, SAYS LUTHER

rent rate of exchange, so that 1,000,000 marks represents about $236,000 and 1,000,000,000 marks are worth approximately $236,000,000.)

Of the Reichsbank sale of foreign bills during the period from September 1 to November 15, totalling 1,920,000,000 Reichsmarks (in round figures), only 900,000,000 were needed for trade in commodities, while 1,020,000,000 went into the movement of capital. Of these 1,020,000,000 Reichsmarks, 720,000,000 constitute repayment of credit.

Without these repayments of credit, the Reichsbank would have been able to show, instead of a loss of foreign exchange amounting to 510,000,000 reichsmarks, an increase of 210,000,000. This demonstrates clearly that Germany at present is going beyond her strength in her endeavor to do the utmost to fulfill her obligations in the way of debts, and especially the obligations assumed in the standstill agreement.

Germany's good will alone can not solve the problem.

Capital Flight Denied.

As these figures hitherto, for the most part, have been unknown to the public, the false assumption has been made in some quarters that the unsatisfactory position of Germany's supply of foreign exchange is essentially influenced by a flight of capital and failure to surrender foreign exchange.

In opposing this view, I do not desire to place decisive weight upon the fact that Government-controlled economy measures can never be 100 per cent successful. For such control must never advance to a point where it will hamper normal and healthy operations of trade in an unbearable manner.

Approximately the following can be said as to the efficacy of control of foreign exchange in Germany:

If—which in itself is quite impossible—the excess of exports over imports during the period from September 1 to November 15 had in its entirety become converted into foreign exchange, even then such receipt of foreign exchange would not have been sufficient to cover payments of movements of capital totaling 1,020,000,000 reichsmarks.

For the excess of exports over imports would, in that hypothetical case, have amounted to about 920,000,000 reichsmarks (September and October together, 750,000,000, plus an estimated 170,000,000 for half of November). Hence, even then the sum would still have fallen short by 100,000,000 marks.

No influx of foreign exchange, no matter how favorable, could therefore, in the long run, have made repayment of credits possible at the present pace.

The assumption that an excess of exports over imports becomes converted at once into an increase of foreign exchange is, of course, entirely inadmissible. Between the time the goods cross the border and the amount realized from the exports reaches the country, several, let us say three, months, on the average, elapse.

Germany's excess of exports during the earlier months was, however, considerably lower—for instance, 230,000,000 marks in July, as compared with 380,000,000 marks in October. On the other hand, the government's demand for surrender of foreign exchange already within the country—essentially a nonrecurrent demand—had produced, it may be assumed, its yield during August.

Aims Are Realized.

If under these circumstances about 510,000,000 marks in foreign exchange, according to estimates of the Reichsbank, have been delivered from the beginning of September until the middle of November from the excess of exports over imports, then this shows that Germany has come quite close to realizing its aims of complete seizure of foreign exchange.

Nevertheless, the Reich's government, at the request of the Reichsbank, recently put added teeth into the decree governing foreign exchange, inasmuch as the Reich's government and the Reichsbank want to do everything possible on their part to maintain Germany's position with reference to foreign exchange.

That is not, however, where the solution of the problem is to be found. It is reflected, rather, in very high repayments of credit which are the cause of continuous losses of foreign exchange and in the general political development and the world's economic situation which still—although now only to a limited extent—permits the run by creditors upon Germany that started at the beginning of last June to continue.

To find a solution that will prove a real help should be the more easily possible since Germany since last autumn has already repaid to foreign countries almost five billion marks, or considerably more than $1,000,000,000.

Weaver of Nashville, Tenn., became the bride of Mr. George O'Bryan Bailey, son of Justice Jennings Bailey of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, Saturday morning. The ceremony was performed in the historic First Presbyterian Church in Nashville at 11:30 o'clock, Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, pastor, officiating, in the presence of a representative company of relatives and friends. The wedding was an event of great social interest in Nashville, as it united representatives of two notable Tennessee families. Preceding the taking of the vows a program of nuptial music was given by Miss Frank Hollowell, organist, and Mrs. Weaver Harris, violinist. The stately old church was effectively decorated with palms and woodwardia ferns banked about the pulpit. Seven branched candelabra stood at intervals among the green, holding lighted white tapers.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Spencer M. Thomas, of St. Louis, as matron of honor, and Miss Conn Harris, one of the season's debutanates was the maid of honor.

Mr. Jennings Bailey, jr., of Washington, was best man for his brother, and Mr. Charles Clay Trabue 4th was groomsman. Ushers were the bride's brother, Mr. Thomas S. Weaver; the bridegroom's cousin, Mr. Robert Bailey of Clarksville, Tenn.; his uncle, Mr. W. D. Trabue, and the bride's five uncles, Mr. William C. Weaver, Judge R. B. C. Howell, Mr. W. C. Pollard, Mr. Robert Orr and Mr. Hooper Love, all of Nashville.

The bride entered the church with her uncle, Mr. Dempsey Weaver, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned on empire lines with puff sleeves and long train edged with puffing. The gown was elaborately embroidered with gold thread in chrysanthemum design. The tulle veil, which enveloped the train, was adjusted to a rose pointed lace cap with a cluster of orange blossoms, and she carried bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Thomas wore mahogany-color velvet and Miss Harris gold-color velvet. The attendants' gowns were made on empire lines, with square neckline and puff sleeves. Their velvet hats matched their gowns. They carried arm bouquets of chrysanthemums, Mrs. Thomas' flowers being yellow shading to mahogany and Miss Harris' gold and bronze.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Weaver in their home, on the Murfreeboro road, the guests including the wedding party, members of the two families and out-of-town guests. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom were Mrs. Weaver, the bride's mother; Justice Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Weaver. Mrs. Thomas S. Weaver wore black velvet with black hat. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. William C. Weaver was attired in black crepe trimmed with white satin. She, too, carried gardenias. An heirloom pedestal bowl of crystal, filled with white pompom chrysanthemums and maiden hair ferns, was in the center of the bride's table and at each end were crystal candlesticks, tied with white tulle bows, in which burned white tapers. White satin bags filled with rice and tied with silver ribbons were the favors. Seated with the bride and bridegroom were the members of the bridal party.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left later for a Southern motor trip, at the conclusion of which they will come to Washington to make their home. Mrs. Bailey wore for motoring a smart costume of Persian green with brown woolen skirt. Her topcoat was of brown cloth with deep raccoon collar and cuffs.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Jenningas Bailey, jr., of Washington; Mr. William H. Hobson, of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. Devereux Porter and Miss Susan Porter, of Birmingham, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jordan, of Memphis.

The bride was graduated from Vanderbilt University last June, and had the distinction of being "The Lady of the Bracelet," the highest honor that is bestowed upon a woman student at the university. She is a member of the Delta Delta Delta Woman's Fraternity and the Phi Beta Kappa Honorary Fraternity.

Mr. Bailey, whose childhood was spent in Nashville, represents a distinguished Tennessee family. He was graduated at Princeton in the class of 1929, later receiving his graduate degree in architecture from the same university. He is now connected with the municipal architects of the City of Washington.

Reproduction of an Actual Photograph of Shirts in Minute-More Service.

To Wives Who Want Their Husbands to Succeed

(A Little Talk on MINUTE-MORE)

IT'S a fact that personal appearance counts and women know this only too well. Men are so apt to neglect many of the little details that really count. But in the world of fashion as in the world of business one makes an impression and that impression might as well be the best.

Take the matter of shirts and collars. A well-laundered shirt and collar marks the man who is proud of his appearance and proud of his job, the man who wants to succeed and make the proper impression on his business associates. Employers are quick to recognize this merit and when considering men for advancement, give attention to personal appearance when they come to the finer points in making a decision.

Include shirts and collars in your MINUTE-MORE bundle and note upon their return how expertly laundered they are, how fresh and clean, and see if your husband doesn't note and appreciate the difference, too.

MINUTE-MORE SERVICE

MINUTE-MORE SERVICE has won the enthusiastic approval of thrifty Washington housewives.

Everything in MINUTE-MORE SERVICE is thoroughly washed. Colors retain their original shade and white articles are returned snowy white. Shirts and flat work are completely finished and only wearing apparel may need slight touching up—just a minute more and it's ready to wear.

"Such curtailment will be very difficult to accomplish," he said. "But my contact with sugar producers of the world convinces me that now, with definite facts available upon which intelligent action may be based, these producers will have the intelligent self-interest to cooperate in taking the measures necessary to stabilize conditions in this industry.

Four Secretaries Still at Work Answering 1,000 Letters by Cable.

S. S. Augustus (At Sea), Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Spaghetti was the item missed the most in the United States by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi's party, it was decided today. On their first night ashore half of the delegation went to Italian restaurants, but the spaghetti was cooked too long to suit their tastes. At two private affairs their hosts provided the Italian staple, but the foreign minister stuck to American food.

All members asked for spaghetti as soon as they came aboard Friday and have had it at every meal since—except Signor Grandi, who ate it for the first time this noon.

The foreign minister received more than 1,000 letters and telegrams and 57 gifts of flowers and candy during his stay. Using four secretaries, he has worked day and night answering the missives by cablegrams averaging 25 words in length.

"Recently I've been reading more than usual, and I certainly like what Chesterfield has to say and the way it is said. I would probably like the cigarette, too, but somehow I just haven't got 'round to trying it.

"Come to think of it, I can't tell you why I smoke this other cigarette. It's more from habit, I suppose, than for any real reason.

"I'd never thought about it before, but last night, at a party, I noticed eight of my friends—five men and three girls—who had changed to Chesterfields. They told me that Chesterfields are milder, that they taste better, that they just seem to satisfy.

"Of course, cigarettes are a small thing, but, after all, they give me a lot of pleasure, and a cigarette like Chesterfield that you hear such good things about, must be good. Anyway, I've just bought my first package of Chesterfields, and I believe I'll find them just like the ads say — milder — taste better — pure — satisfy."

SNELL VS. TILSON.

As Republican members of the House gather in Washington preparatory to attending the conference today they are seeking light upon the reasons why such a determined campaign is made in behalf of Representative Bertrand H. Snell for Speaker. Last spring John Q. Tilson was elected floor leader, receiving the votes of all Republican members, including that of Mr. Snell. As Republican leader it would be normal and logical to nominate him for Speaker to succeed the late Nicholas Longworth. Six years of leadership, which compelled him to relinquish committee posts of great importance, were so satisfactory to his colleagues that Mr. Tilson was unanimously reelected.

The candidacy of Mr. Snell for the Speakership nomination is in reality candidacy for the post of minority leader, and if successful Mr. Snell will displace Mr. Tilson. What has occurred during the year to nullify the unanimous vote of last February? What has Mr. Tilson done that he should be deposed, stripped of all committee places, and placed at the bottom of the list, after service that earned him the honor of leadership? What becomes of the rule of seniority and the fine old House tradition of fair play?

Mr. Snell and Mr. Tilson are equals in ability and parliamentary qualifications, but Mr. Tilson is senior by six years' service. He is morally and by precedent bound to offer himself as the successor of Speaker Longworth. Mr. Snell is not so bound. His candidacy appears to be a purely personal attempt to wrest from an older colleague the honors that belong to him.

If Mr. Snell should be defeated he will remain ranking member of the minority in the committee on rules, and will have power to apportion half the time allotted to debate. He will retain a powerful position, and will not be unjustly or unfairly treated by his party colleagues.

The fact that delegations of a few large States furnish the nucleus of Mr. Snell's strength in this contest can have little appeal to members in general, who are accustomed to support leaders who have earned promotion by long and able service, without regard to the interests of particular sections of the country. No explanation has yet been given as to reason for concentrating the leadership of the House Republicans in a group representing a few large States.

THE COMMERCE REPORT.

More than usual interest attaches to the annual report of the Department of Commerce this year because of the depression. The department has chronicled all of the important developments in the economic situation for the year ended June 30, 1931. When the factual record of this depression year may be appraised against the background of other slack periods it shows up to much better advantage.

Industrial activity during the last fiscal year averaged 20 per cent lower than during the preceding twelve months. Nevertheless, industrial production was greater than in the calendar years 1920 and 1922, and amounted to 31 per cent more than in the depression year of 1921. In magnifying present difficulties the public frequently forgets that the postwar depression carried industry to a lower ebb than has been known during the current period of hard times.

The department's economic indexes are based on 100 for the average during the years 1923-25. In 1931 the manufacturing index stood at 87 compared with 71 in 1921. Mineral production reached a low point of 69 in 1922, compared with 91 for last year. Railroad ton mileage during 1922 was slightly higher than last year, but that does not take into account the vast amount of goods moved by trucks, pipe lines and other recently developed carriers. The production of electric power is more than twice what it was in 1921 and 1922, and only slightly under the peak reached in 1930. The index number for department store sales was 98 last year compared with 84 in 1922, although the stocks on hand were smaller than in the former year. Unemployment in industry was about as prevalent in the last fiscal year as in 1922, but factory pay rolls were slightly higher than in the postwar depression. When the people look over this record and realize what has been accomplished since the last cycle of hard times shook their confidence in the future, it should not be difficult to assume an optimistic attitude toward the outcome of the present difficulties.

That section of the Department of Commerce report dealing with foreign trade is especially interesting because the period it covers coincides with the first year under the Smoot-Hawley tariff. Two sentences from the report are sufficient to prove beyond question that the fluctuations in foreign trade are almost identical with those in domestic business. The output of American industry declined 20 per cent. "If United States exports during 1930-31 are adjusted for price changes," the report says, "the year's decline is only 22 per cent, and if compared with average exports during the five-year period, 1922-26, the total volume of sales abroad showed an increase of 2 per cent." With regard to imports the report says: "Reduced to a quantity basis, total imports for the last fiscal year dropped only 17 per cent and were 8 per cent above the average imports for 1922-26."

During the first year of the new tariff the ratio of imports to domestic products put on the American market was actually higher than under the old law. Such indisputable facts make further defense of the Smoot-Hawley act unnecessary.

TAXES AND INCOMES.

The income statistics for 1930 released today by the commissioner of internal revenue are of special interest because of the prospective tax legislation at the coming session of Congress. Politicians are vying with each other for honors in proposing taxes upon the rich under the impression that such levies will be extremely popular during these hard times. Returns on the income tax last year will indicate for them how much of the tax burden now rests upon the wealthy and what could be expected from increases in the upper income brackets.

The aggregate net income of persons filing returns during 1930 was $17,220,753,620 and the tax liability was $473,689,563. The number of returns filed decreased 14.5 per cent, as compared with 1929; the total net income declined 29.1 and the tax liability 52.2 per cent. Most of this decline comes within the upper brackets. In 1929 all incomes above $5,000,000 amounted to $360,643,994. In 1930 they amounted to only $122,634,419. In other words the extremely wealthy individuals lost about two-thirds of their net incomes in 1930. Last year incomes between $100,000 and $150,000 amounted to $371,489,432, compared with $770,536,000 for incomes of the same class in 1929. Here is a reduction of about one-half. Apparently the depression has been severe on the rich.

Net incomes in the lower brackets declined, but not nearly so much as did those in the upper brackets. In 1929 the estimated total of incomes under $5,000 was $8,104,841,037, compared with $7,022,000,000 in 1930. Incomes as high as $10,000 show no radical declines. The total for incomes above $10,000 and under $11,000 was $372,872,000 in 1930 compared with $495,096,000 in the previous year. Representative Isaac Bacharach and others who are advocating higher taxes for the wealthy on the theory that the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer are apparently using antiquated data to arrive at that conclusion.

It is interesting to note that about 78 per cent of all income on which returns were made was earned by persons who draw less than $25,000 per year. Incomes under $10,000 account for 61 per cent of the total, and incomes under $5,000 amount to 41 per cent. Yet in 1930 the 2,613,000 individuals who had 41 per cent of the income paid only 2.37 per cent of the total income tax. Fewer than 150 individuals with incomes of more than $1,000,000, who drew only 2 per cent of the net income, paid 12.7 per cent of the total tax collected. These figures made it apparent that the Federal tax is very light upon individuals of moderate means. The vast majority of American citizens who have but small incomes pay no direct tax whatever into the Federal Treasury.

The problem facing Congress is the raising of more revenue, not the redistribution of wealth. If all incomes of more than $100,000 were taxed double what they paid into the Treasury last year, the additional levy might raise $200,000,000. The prospective deficit with which the Treasury is confronted may amount to ten times that sum. Taxes on the wealthy are not very productive in times like the present because of the drastic reductions in large incomes.

There is much comfort in the Bureau of Internal Revenue's report for the man of moderate means. Compared with capitalists, his losses from the depression are negligible. A realization of this factor may help Congress to frame a new revenue law that will be fair to all classes—one that will not drive capital out of productive enterprises, but will spread the tax basis enough to avoid undue hardships upon any one.

CAPITAL WEATHER.

The first chill, dreary days at the end of autumn serve to emphasize the unrivaled fall weather that Washington has enjoyed. With the mildness of spring, November deceived even the early summer flowers and fruit trees. Washingtonians have gathered violets, peach blossoms and lilacs in November. With radical reversal of last year's dryness, the summer rains this year were so evenly distributed that the foliage of Washington's famous trees retained its verdant freshness later than usual.

Mild November weather has prolonged the pleasure of outdoor sports and motoring, and while this locality is now experiencing a mild reaction from wintry blizzards in the West, there is good reason from past experience to anticipate many more pleasant days before Christmas. Altogether the year's weather has been favorable. Washington experienced some hot summer days, of course, but there was usually a welcome interruption of warm spells.

It is to be hoped that the tendency in Washington to install cooling plants for business houses, public offices and places of amusement will be more generally pursued. Modern cooling plants are a good investment from the standpoint of business efficiency as well as comfort. Patronage is attracted by comfortable temperatures and the capacity of employes from clerks to managers is measurably augmented. Certainly every public building erected under the new program for the beautification of the Capital should be provided with cooling devices as a part of their standard equipment.

STOP THE COMMUNISTS.

The so-called "hunger march" upon Washington was an unjustifiable demonstration, even before it was proved to be a purely Communist undertaking. A hunger march in automobiles is in itself incongruous. Many of its participants are not even among the unemployed. If the various sections where this inexcusable cavalcade is being organized were bankrupt, lacking supplies and organizations for relief, there might be some pretext for a mass appeal to the National Capital.

To attempt such a demonstration as though it were needed to arouse the Nation to the needs of the present situation is an affront to the American people. It is now clear that the animus is in no measure a move to secure legitimate aid for the unemployed but a Communist attempt to magnify distress, discredit the country by a sensational demonstration, and add to unrest by provoking riots and arousing the unemployed against the authorities.

Communistic organizations deserve neither sympathy nor support from American citizens. Their so-called hunger march is in reality a conspiracy against the United States. The Department of Justice has exposed their perfidious designs to foment class disputes in the interests of world revolution. It is a propitious time for the people to rise up and demand the annihilation of organized communism in the United States.

GOLD EXPORT

By H. G. C., in the London Daily Mail.

The transfer between one nation and another of great quantities of gold, such as has taken place in recent years as France has built up its vast gold reserve, is a far more prosaic undertaking than would be popularly supposed. The shipment of millions of dollars in gleaming bullion makes a vivid appeal to the imagination, and one is inclined to view it as something extremely romantic, necessitating the presence of keen-eyed detectives and armed guards to prevent a sudden foray by daring thieves. Adequate precautions, of course, are taken to preclude theft, but otherwise there is little difference in transporting cases of soap and the steel bound boxes containing millions of dollars in yellow ingots of gold.

It is not unusual for an incoming or outgoing liner at New York to carry, tucked away somewhere in its hold, case after case of the precious metal that has lured men to the far corners of the world, fortunes in ingots that would dwarf Montezuma's ransom.

In recent months the gold traffic of the world has been almost entirely directed toward Paris, and in boxes or in barrels the yellow metal has gone from London, Amsterdam or New York to be piled up in the 100-foot deep vaults of the Bank of France in Paris or in the provinces (for the Bank of France does not like to keep all its eggs in one basket) and also in the vaults of the great private banks of France and those of the Paris agencies of the great American trust companies.

Gold from London nearly always is shipped in small flat cases bound with steel and with great scarlet seals, while that from America is contained in tubby little barrels of plain wood, but also encircled with steel bands.

If the gold is intended for the Bank of France it has to pass the government assay test to prove its quality, and when each bar has been duly stamped and accounted for it is taken to the lifts in the Bank of France and shot down 100 feet to the huge safety vaults with their 18-foot thick steel and concrete revolving doors, and there stored in great cupboards behind a wirework grille.

Gold ingots are in the form of small bricks, oblong in the case of French or American gold and a sloping truncated block if the metal has come from the Bank of England. Gold which does not correspond to the French measure of fineness has to be melted down and refined before it can have its place in the great storeroom.

The Bank of France now holds nearly three and one-quarter billion dollars in gold ingots, but probably not much more than one-half of this is kept in the Paris vaults, the rest being distributed at branch offices in the French provinces. For instance, at a branch in the south of France there is a large store of Spanish gold worth many million dollars held by the Bank of France as security for a loan in francs to the Bank of Spain. This Spanish gold does not, of course, figure on the Bank of France statement as being its own property.

American gold to the amount of about 150 million dollars has been shipped to Paris recently; but most of these ingots were not destined for the Bank of France—at any rate, not immediately—and they are now being lowered into the private coffers of great financial companies, both Anglo-French and American, who wish to have a good stock of yellow metal on deposit in Paris.

Despite the great flow of gold to France early this fall, when that nation, to which almost all of Europe is in debt, put "the pressure" on to gain political support at the time of the threatened German collapse, the United States still is the greatest gold holding nation, with an estimated stock of nearly four and one-half billion dollars. This is despite the great shipments abroad, chiefly to France, that were made in September and October. In two days, $85,000,000 in gold was sent abroad, $15,000,000 on one vessel, the Ile de France.

RED CROSS SEALS.

The Red Cross Seal is just a scheme
To coax the pennies from the purse,
And yet I see it and I think
To one whose parched throat begs for drink
In his despair how sweet must seem
The coming of the Red Cross nurse.

The Red Cross Seal is just a stamp
Which in itself is valueless,
And yet somehow behind its face
I see the great heart of our race
Pitching on tragic sites a camp
To comfort men in their distress.

The Red Cross Seal is nothing more
Than paper, printer's ink and glue,
And yet through flood and fire and quake
A brotherhood, for mercy's sake
I vision, flung the wide-world o'er
The noblest work of men to do.

Those Who Desire No Publicity Are Peculiar Enough to Deserve It.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOME years ago a young man from the West established a weekly newspaper in a sleepy Southern village where school teachers still spanked children for calling it the "Civil" War.

The initial success of his interprise depended on the right kind of publicity and he obtained it without effort or design.

On the first day of each month he collected his accounts and paid his bills. And this practice established him as a unique and curious character, for the local gentry paid bills only in the fall and regarded a "dun" at any season as an unpardonble affront.

All people possessed of normal self-repect covet the good opinion of their neighbors. They hunger for distinction. They yearn for some possession, quality or merit that will lift them above the common level. In the salty phrase peculiar to America, they wish to "be somebody."

It is an achievement much less difficult than is commonly supposed.

As a one-eyed man would be king in a land where all others were blind, so the most humble can win distinction and good repute by the simple process of doing the common things that others should do and don't.

Where many chatter without purpose or profit, the one who is silent seems superior.

Where all others delight in unkind gossip, the one who says nothing but good seems commendably generous.

Where all others are disposed to meddle, one who attends to his own business seems made of superior clay.

Where others exaggerate and embellish, one who confines himself to the truth seems unique in virtue and honor.

Where the many boast of their achievements, one who speaks modestly seems worthy of praise.

In short, you can win distinction in any ordinary mill-run group simply by practicing the old-fashioned copybook virtues.

It is the unusual that wins renown, and common decency makes you a marked man or woman in a land where it isn't common.

Home Building.
Detroit News.

During the first week in December President Hoover summons to Washington a noteworthy group of experts to discuss methods of encouraging home building and home ownership. That increase of the number of homeowners would be a permanent contribution to the well-being of the Nation and the stability of our institutions is not to be doubted. That it would have an immediate result in revival of prosperity also is a reasonable expectation.

In his preliminary announcement of the conference, President Hoover called attention to one of the elements involved in the housing problem which deserves most serious consideration not only of the conference but of financial leaders everywhere. "The finance of home building," said he, "is the most backward segment of our whole credit system. It is easier to borrow 85 per cent on an automobile and repay it on the installment plan than to buy a house on that basis—and generally the house requires a higher rate of interest. The whole process of purchase and finance involves a ceremony like a treaty between governments."

Boston Transcript.

When a man can put so much sting into a line that it will unseat him as President pro tem of the United States Senate, he ought to be on the floor, and not sitting idly in front of a group of statesmen. Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, once characterized the Republican insurgents as "sons of the wild jackass," and now, because of that, they are determined to oust him from his place; notwithstanding many of their own remarks directed against the President of the United States have been equally colorful in tone.

We agree with them that Moses ought to go. Indeed, we long have wanted to see George Moses on the floor, with no strings around his feet and no gags in his mouth. The regular Republican senators have been singularly lacking in the kind of talent which distinguishes the senator from New Hampshire. They have sat dumb under the thrusts of the late Senator Caraway and the quips of Harrison, when one good blast from the New Hampshire hills would have blown their enemies over. We have ached for a Republican Caraway or Harrison and Moses is it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Gov. Roosevelt's Wet Declaration Recalled by Dry Who Foresees Fight Between "Pioneers" and the Underworld.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All this talk about Gov. Roosevelt not being so very wet, or not wet enough to suit Mr. Raskob, seems like a smoke screen for other matters. An editorial in The Washington Post, April 2, 1931, is entitled: "Gov. Roosevelt—Wet." It reads as follows:

"Gov. Roosevelt supplements a decided vote in his favor among delegates and alternates to the last Democratic convention by a new pronouncement on prohibition. In giving his approval to a resolution passed by the New York legislature urging Congress to call a national constitutional convention to repeal the eighteenth amendment, he said:

"I believe an overwhelming sentiment exists in this State, which asks for immediate action to change the eighteenth amendment and that the greater part of this sentiment is based on two righteous and sane objectives: First, to eliminate the fundamental source of the greater part of modern, organized crime, and secondly, to promote a greater temperance. To this policy I subscribe."

It does not seem as if a statement more damaging to the dry cause could have been made than that by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The fact is, the people can not have a wet that isn't put into the White House by Tammany and the big under-worlds of our large cities. The fight that is on for 1932 is a fight between the old virility of the pioneer, and the decadence of cities. Let us hope the people of this country will choose the self-discipline and self-sacrifice that goes with the pioneer idealism, rather than the loose degeneracy which is the lot of big cities, and when predominant in government, brings the decline and fall of a nation. M. A. IVES.

Restriction in Number of Private Automobiles Only Remedy for Threatened Triangle Congestion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With your kind permission I would like to submit my idea of the downtown parking situation. Being provided with smooth, wide and mostly level thoroughfares, Washington ranks high in the ownership of automobiles. Every household has one and in many cases two or more cars in daily use. In addition our tourist traffic is very great.

The result of this is that on holiday occasions and during rush hours there are more automobiles than the streets of downtown Washington can properly accommodate. And that is why those who undertake an expert survey of the situation are puzzled as to how to meet it. Of course what makes the difficulty especially perplexing is the fact that the great mass of this city's workers will soon be closely housed in a single locality—the Federal Triangle.

Perhaps it would have been better to build the Government workshops in groups apart from each other, so that this traffic complication might be avoided. It is easy enough to suggest that parking accommodations subsidized by the United States be provided at a low rental; but that, on a scale to decently meet the situation, will involve a questionable expenditure, not to mention the misuse of ornamental reservations or business blocks in the downtown section.

The fact is that there must be some limit to the number of automobiles which can be readily accommodated anywhere by any official arrangement. As the city grows and their number increases, the clog of automobiles will prove as inexorable in the restriction of traffic as the fog of London.

For those employed in the buildings of the Federal Triangle to go to and from their work in private cars would in any event be a source of great inconvenience. The alternative is obvious. The use of private cars should be discouraged and the traffic authorities should turn their attention to the work of planning a street car, bus and taxi system of transportation for the accommodation of the Federal employes in question.

CITIZEN.

Correspondent Deplores the Lack of Privacy of the President of the United States.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President of the United States has no privacy, even in a temple of worship. He is not permitted to enjoy the feeling of having communed with the Holy One, for scarcely is he out of the portals when cameras stare him in the face and he is photographed.

On Thanksgiving morning a whole army of photographers stood in front of a church on Connecticut avenue with cameras ready to snap the minute President and Mrs. Hoover made their appearance.

Why can not the President be permitted to enjoy the rights of a private citizen when he is on his private business. H. E. D.

Pressure Upon Federal Employes for Unemployment Contributions Should Be Repudiated.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is unfortunate indeed that so laudable an enterprise as the Community Chest drive should have been so clumsily handled by bringing pressure on willing donors, such as the Federal and District employes.

It is not too late to use the method so successfully used last year in Government departments—the "pledge card." Nothing should be left undone to reestablish confidence in the inherent merit of the Community Chest. That can only be done by beginning all over again, and by repudiating in the most emphatic manner any suspicion of threats and coercion. GROVER W. AYERS.

HOMES CONFERENCE TO MEET THIS WEEK

Hoover Body on Building and Ownership to Report Year's Study.

(Associated Press.)

The best thought on how to build better homes and easy ways of owning them will be given to the country this week.

President Hoover's conference on home building and ownership—the biggest of its kind—will meet here four days, beginning Wednesday, to make recommendations following exhaustive study of the problems.

More than a year ago the President appointed some 500 committee members to delve into existing conditions surrounding finance, design, construction, taxation, equipment, city planning, household management and furnishing, rural housing, Negro housing and other details.

He believes stringent home building credit is one of the sore spots in the country's financial structure, and has proposed a system of home loan discount banks, one in each of the twelve Federal reserve districts.

This plan will be discussed with the conference and proposed to Congress. The President is confident its adoption will make wide slashes in the ranks of unemployment.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Secretary of Interior Wilbur are co-chairmen of the conference. They have been in close contact with Mr. Hoover recently on the program. All three will make addresses.

Change in Turkish Envoy Here Denied

Embassy Asserts Ahmet Muhtar Is to Remain Ambassador.

Reports from Istanbul of a change in the Turkish Embassy here by the appointment of Fethi Bey, former Turkish Ambassador to Paris, as Turkish Ambassador to the United States, were declared without foundation at the embassy yesterday.

The Turkish Ambassador, Ahmet Muhtar, has been in charge of the Turkish diplomatic mission here for the last four years.

During his presence here he has contributed very largely to the consolidation of the newly created Turkish republic in the friendship of the American people and he has made the creator of the new Turkey, Mustapha Kemal, known to American industrial and financial organizations on account of the remarkable achievements of the Gazi, as Kemal is known, in making a new capital and practically a new state out of the former Turkish empire.

Ambassador Muhtar recently entertained the former minister of finances of Turkey, Sukru Bey, at the embassy here. The ambassador's son-in-law is charge d'affaires of the Turkish diplomatic mission in Japan.

Gardner, Ralph Kiester, Edward Eberly, Miss Ruth Shoemaker, the Rev. Frank H. Clutz and Miss Bess Davis Schreiner.

Lindbergh Declines Rockefeller Bid.

Flagler Beach, Fla., Nov. 29 (A.P.) Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today declined an invitation to attend church services with John D. Rockefeller at Ormond and spent a quiet Sabbath in this little fishing resort, unable to resume his Miami-to-New York flight because of heavy fog. He expects to get away tomorrow if weather conditions permit.

Radio Fading May Be Ended By Vigil Kept on 'Big Top'

Bureau of Standards Has Device to Measure How Far Air Waves Go in Their Journey From Earth to Sky.

(Associated Press.)

A simple trick like measuring the changing height of the earth's "Big Top" is one of the things the Bureau of Standards believes will help prevent radio fading and it has a device to do just that.

The bureau announced yesterday development of the machine to measure continuously in an improved manner the earth's air blanket which billows up and down like a circus tent in a gale.

On a photographic film it records the ever-changing height of the Kennelly "heavyside" layer, a region of electricity-conducting air about 100 miles above the earth.

Radio waves from the earth strike this layer and "bounce" back to the earth. Changes in the height of the layer send the waves back at varying angles. As a result the waves are not always correctly synchronized with other waves that travel along the ground. Thus radio fading and the resulting disgust of listeners.

Scientists believe they might do away with fading by adjusting radio signals to correspond to the varying heights of the layer, if they could get a continuous picture of how the layer billows. The new device of the bureau seems to provide this sort of picture.

It employs a radio transmitter to send out impulses that come to the receiving station through the air, bouncing off the Kennelly-Heaviside layer on the way, and other impulses that travel along the ground. The impulses are transformed into light that registers on a moving film.

The ground waves always travel the same distance, so register a straight line on the film. But the sky waves, bounding about, travel a greater or lesser distance as the layer moves up and down. They register traces on the film that vary in height above the trace left by the ground waves. This indicates the relative height of the layer above ground. With the machine working continuously, a picture is drawn that shows just how the layer is shifting.

The new knowledge which will be obtained with thie device may also help make television more practical, by possibly doing away with the "double image" that now often results in blurred pictures.

The double image results when ground waves and sky waves, each carrying an image, fail to arrive at exactly the same time. The shifts in the Kennelly-Heaviside layer's height seem to cause this variation by bringing in the sky wave a little behind or a litle ahead of the ground wave.

COL. J. H. CARROLL, RAILWAY ATTORNEY, SUCCUMBS AT 75

an older boy, who made his living blacking shoes and selling newspapers. George took the little lost boy to his "home"—a big dry goods box, in Baker alley, off Vine street, between Third and Fourth streets, in Cincinnati.

"My name is Johnny Carroll and my mother left me in the hotel," the lad told his benefactor. And that was all he knew about himself.

Two Boys Lived in Box.

The time was the summer of 1863, and during that record heat-breaking period the two boys lived together in the dry goods box selling newspapers, blacking boots, accumulating a few cents a day to buy their food. When Christmas came, their shoes and clothes were worn out. Shivering in their threadbare clothing, they stood outside a church on Christmas Eve of 1863. People were streaming into the church, and the two waifs learned that Santa Claus was inside giving presents away.

They crept into a pew and listened to a man talking from the pulpit. He explained to the large congregation, made up largely of children, that this was the eve of the birth of the Saviour and that Santa Claus had a present for every good boy and girl. Johnny and George, apparently, weren't considered among "the good" because Santa had nothing for them.

Back they went to the dry goods box. Johnny was crying. George, older and a little more hardened to the ways of the world, tried to comfort the smaller boy and suggested that they hang up their stockings so that the "real Santa Claus" would fill them when they slept.

Frostbitten Feet "Gift."

The night was bitterly cold. Johnny, sleeping without his stockings, got frostbitten feet. When he awoke in the morning his stockings were as empty as when he hung them up, and so were George's. He wept again. George observed that they had overlooked the fact that their "home" lacked a chimney. "And that's the only way Santa Claus knows how to get into a house," he explained.

Johnny never realized it at the time, but those frostbitten feet were his Christmas present.

For more than a year he suffered from the affliction. Then, in the spring of 1864, Murray Shipley, a philanthropic Quaker, saw the boy wrapping his feet in rags and learned the trouble. The Children's Home, an orphanage, had just been established, and Mr. Shipley entered Johnny there. Six years old, he was the first child to be registered in the new orphanage.

Frequently Ran Away.

Johnny had developed a determination to find his mother, and he frequently ran away from the orphanage to pursue this objective. A year after he had entered the orphanage, he left the institution altogether and resumed his life in the dry goods box in Baker alley as a newsboy and bootblack. When Abraham Lincoln was assassinated he sold extra papers announcing the tragedy atnd made $4.50.

With this money he bought a railroad ticket for Toledo, having always had a vague idea that his mother might be in that city. After an unsuccessful search, he returned to Cincinnati and reentered the Children's Home.

When he was 8 years old, in 1866, John Carroll was given a home with a Quaker family on a farm near Martinsville, Ohio. He did not like farm life and ran away, returning to the Children's Home. He was given a home with another Quaker farming family and ran away again. Once more he was sent to a farm, this time to a man named Thomas Hadley who lived in Morgan County, Ind. John liked this place and stayed there.

This was the beginning of his education. He worked on the farm, got some schooling and studied law. When he was 17, he taught school in the neighborhood, and at 22, returned to Ohio to teach in a country school between Martinsville and Lynchburg. While there he met and married Miss Priscilla Woodrow, of Lynchburg. They spent their honeymoon in the Children's Home in Cincinnati.

Col. Carroll went to Linneus, Tenn., to begin the practice of law. Shortly afterward he decided to go West and finally settled in Unionville, Mo. He became a successful lawyer in Unionville and achieved a reputation as a Democratic party worker and campaign speaker.

Mother Stricken in Street.

His most spectacular leap to prominence came in 1890 when he was appointed general attorney for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, with headquarters in St. Louis. The story of his rise from poverty was printed in a St. Louis newspaper and was given wide circulation. This publicity was the key that unlocked the mystery in Col. Carroll's life.

A letter came from his mother's sister in Lockport, N. Y. Hastening to Lockport, he learned why his mother never returned to the hotel in Cincinnati. Leaving her other children in the care of an orphanage in Toledo, Mrs. Carroll had stopped over in Cincinnati with her 5-year-old son on her way to the Kentucky Army hospital to see her husband, a soldier in the Union Army who, she had learned, had been wounded in Kentucky.

She left her 5-year-old boy in the hotel while she went out to buy a railroad ticket, it is believed. While on the street, she suffered sunstroke and was taken to a hospital where she died. Her identity was revealed through papers on her person but by the time authorities located relatives the boy had disappeared.

When Col. Carroll made this discovery it was 27 years from the time his mother had left him in the hotel. His father and sisters had died, but he located a brother in Michigan who became a member of his family in St. Louis.

Led Missouri Democrats.

Col. Carroll was prosecuting attorney of Putnam County, Missouri, from 1883 to 1889. As chairman of the Democratic State executive committee, he conducted the campaign which resulted in election of David R. Francis as Governor of Missouri.

He became a member of the governor's staff, and in this way received his title of "colonel." In 1888 and 1900 he was a Missouri delegate to the Democratic national conventions. He was an alternate at large to the Democratic convention in 1892.

Col. Carroll came to Washington to live in 1917. During the latter part of the World War and afterward, he he served as assistant to the director general of railroads, John Barton Payne. He was a member of the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs, and a past president of the Alfalfa Club, a Capital dining organization.

REPUBLICANS WILL DECIDE ON SPEAKER CHOICE TODAY

tions, the Democrats now have a plurality of three in the House and after tomorrow's special election in New Jersey they may have four.

Thus it seems certain that the Democrats will be in control when the House meets next Monday, and that John N. Garner, of Texas, will be chosen Speaker.

Marvel at Battle.

In that event, the man nominated for Speaker by the Republicans can not expect to be any more than the minority floor leader. It is because of this situation that many persons now marvel at the spectacle of two stalwart Republicans engaged in such a bitter struggle as the Tilson-Snell fight.

While there are 214 Republicans in the House, the prospect is that only about 190 will be on hand for the conference this morning. The nominee for Speaker will be chosen by a majority of the votes.

Friends of Tilson said last night that he would have more than 70 votes on the first ballot, and that they expected that he would pick up the number necessary to win on the next two ballots.

With the exception of the Michigan delegation, which is pledged to vote for Mr. Mapes "indefinitely," it is expected that the various State delegates that are pledged to favorite sun candidates will break away and vote for Tilson or Snell on the second ballot.

The Tilson supporters say that they are confident that the Connecticut man will get more of these votes than will Mr. Snell.

Republican Chiefs Urge Filling of Jersey Seat

(Associated Press.)

Needing every vote to retain control of the Senate, Republican leaders are urging an early appointment by Gov. Larson of New Jersey of a successor to the late Senator Morrow.

The Republican governor has indicated he will make the appointment in time for his choice to vote on Senate organization, but Senate chieftains are asking action this week.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, has been in communication with Gov. Larson. He is determined that the Republicans shall assume their responsibility and retain organization of the Senate.

Democrats May Take Control.

However, there is still a strong possibility that the Democrats may take over the Senate as well as the House of the new Congress—because of internecine war in the Republican ranks.

The disturbance over the reelection of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, as president pro tem, is threatening a party upheaval. Moses, who described Western Republican Independents who went into a coalition with the Democrats last session as "sons of the wild jackass," is still the center of some under-surface discussion.

Meanwhile, there are persistent reports that President Hoover would not be concerned if the responsibility for the unmanageable Senate were given to the Democrats.

Edge Report Persists.

The delay in naming a successor to Mr. Morrow has led to renewed speculation along this line. Without the New Jersey senator, the standing of the Senate next Monday would be: Republicans, 47; Democrats, 47; Farmer-Labor, 1.

The name of Walter Edge, Ambassador to France and former senator, continues to pop up in the discussion here of a likely successor to Morrow, although Edge has stated he did not seek the position and intended to return to France.

Democrats are distinctly apathetic to assuming Senate control without actual majority. Not only are the Democrats shy of a majority, but they will be without one of their new members—Gov. Huey Long of Louisiana—for a couple of months. The governor intends to remain for the present as Louisiana executive.

Bridge Games to Draw National Experts Here

Several nationally known bridge experts will participate in the Washington tournament to be held at the Shoreham Hotel on December 10, 11 and 12, it was announced yesterday.

Major trophies will be cups for the pair and team championships, with replicas for individual winning members. The trophy for the contract team championship will be the Eynon cup donated by E. B. Eynon, Jr., president of the Bridge League of Washington. All events are open to the public.

TREES TO BE SAVED IN STREET PROGRAM

Widening and Steam Tunnel Construction May Not Force Removal.

Consideration will be given to trees in the furtherance of downtown street widening projects and in the cutting of steam tunnels through the Federal Building section, it was learned last night.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the District, in explaining the street widening programs for the future, said that conferences would be held with Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parking, before street widening projects begin.

In places of congested traffic, Capt. Whitehurst said, it was necessary to sacrifice some trees, but the street widening was being done only where traffic necessitated it.

According to present plans, the following streets will be widened:

Thirteenth street, from Massachusetts avenue to Rhode Island avenue.

Seventeenth street, from Pennsylvania avenue to H street.

East Capitol street, where a number of trees have been cut down, is not scheduled for widening within the next several years, according to District authorities. The proposal to widen it came from the National Park and Planning Commission. The elm trees on East Capitol street were destroyed in the construction of a steam tunnel beneath the sidewalk.

HUNGER MARCHERS RIOT AT HAMMOND

to be served free Saturday to 500 demonstrators.

Hoover's Guards Vigilant.

A somewhat similar demand upon Mayor Mackey of Philadelphia received a reply that there would be "no housing or feeding of such a group" there and advice to "by-pass Philadelphia."

Federal agents had in hand yesterday a statement from the American Vigilant Intelligence Federation, opposed to the march, that as many as 1,200 demonstrators might be expected in Washington by the time the demonstration is planned to culminate, December 7, the day Congress convenes.

The Vigilant Federation said the marchers had planned to send four truck loads of demonstrators from Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Boston, augmented by other trucks and automobiles from the West Coast and points between, and joined finally by 7 trucks from Baltimore, 15 from Philadelphia and 20 from New York.

Secret service men detailed to guard President Hoover, under the command of Richard Jarvis, also had in hand a statement from the "unemployed council's committee for the national hunger march."

It said the marchers would demand of Congress and the President immediate cash relief of $150 apiece, unemployment insurance and "free rent, gas and electric light—free food for children of unemployed and part-time employed." On this same handbill, exhibited by Jervis, was a call to "defend the Soviet Union."

In his possession also were reports from secret service operatives in several cities that known Communists were engaged in helping organize the demonstration.

One statement attributed to the marchers carried instructions for each truck to carry three trained defense workers and that each be armed with rocks as weapons.

Meanwhile fourteen demonstrators who were arrested after an attempted parade in front of the White House last Friday are still in jail here, each under $500 bond. Three are being investigated for possible deportation proceedings. All will come up for trial tomorrow.

New York Chinese Riot; One Hurt.

New York, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—A Communist soap-box orator's verbal castigation of China's stand in the present Manchurian dispute led to a small riot in New York's Chinatown, during which one man, Chuey Tin, 30, was stabbed in the shoulder.

GIFFORD CONFIDENT OF JOBLESS RELIEF

Believes Each State Will Be Able to Care for Own Idle This Winter.

(Associated Press.)

Confidence that every community of the Nation will be prepared to assuage suffering among the jobless during the coming cold months was expressed yesterday by the President's emergency relief committee. Walter S. Gifford, director of the committee, in a letter to President Hoover made public at the White House, reported there was "every indication that each State will take care of its own this winter."

Although no final figure was available as to the total sum that will result from local drives for jobless funds throughout the country, Gifford said results of the campaigns thus far completed had been gratifying. His committe lent general aid to all the drives.

"The funds especially earmarked for unemployment relief are some 50 per cent greater than last year," he said, "evidence that the people of the country are keenly aware of the need and are determined to meet it."

President Hoover has given more than a little of his time lately to a consideration of unemployment needs and methods of meeting them. Gifford has conferred with him twice during the last week especially upon the sections of the Chief Executive's annual message to Congress that will deal with the subject.

Despite the Sabbath holiday, Mr. Hoover spent some time yesterday upon his forthcoming messages. After attending as usual the Friends Church services he retired to the Lincoln study to work before his luncheon. No guests were invited to the Executive Mansion for the week-end, and he was able to return to his study again in the afternoon.

Gifford's letter to the Chief Executive reported that more than 2,000 local, county and State committees already were at work in the effort to reach "every important point of unemployment." He expressed confidence that there would be "united forces" to meet the situation.

"I can report," he said, "that in practically all communities requiring organized effort to meet unemployment this winter, such organization is either completed and functioning or is expected to be in the near future * * *

"As a result, plans are completed in nearly all States and in preparation in others to the end that all communities with, in some instances, assistance from the county or State, may meet this winter's expected relief burden."

Speaker Charges Polish Pogroms toIntelligentsia

Pogroms in Poland have been started by the so-called "intelligentsia," rather than by the working classes, William Baum, director of the Jewish Workers University of New York, said last night in an address before a joint meeting of the International Jewish Organization of Soviet Russia and the International Workers Order.

The meeting was in protest against pogroms in Poland. Baum spoke in Yiddish. Dr. Joseph A. Themper, local dentist, the other speaker, said that present unrest and ill-feeling against Jews in Poland is a scheme "to raise a race issue," which will aid in promoting the power of the government.

THE QUARTER-METER ICE BOX.

(Electric ice box operated by quarter meter is placed on Market.—News item.)

Is the gelatin too liquid?
Does the custard fail to "set?"
Is the cream a little sour
And the butter very wet?
Is the iced tea wholly iceless
And quite tepid stuff instead?
Quick! A quarter, Jeremiah!
For the ice box has gone dead!

Is the celery quite snapless?
Does it bend instead of break?
Is the ice cream melting swiftly?
Has the jelly lost its shake?
Is the salad quite a failure?
Have the oysters turned to brown?
Please, some gentleman, a quarter!
For the ice box has run down!

When it's time to shake a cocktail
Do you not surprisedly
That there's nothing much but water
Where the ice cubes ought to be?
As you throw the door wide open
Do you feel a tropic breeze?
James! A quarter for the ice box
On the instant, if you please!

Is the beer warm and kickless?
Does one taste of it suffice?
Very early in the evening
Does the house run out of ice?
Do you find the cubes have vanished?
Is there not a trace of one?
Quick, Erasmus, with a quarter
Or the ice box will not run!

* * * *

When the party's going nicely
And just swinging into high,
As you go to make more high-balls
Do you find the ice is shy?
Do you find in sudden terror
That the ice supply is shot?
Hey! Has any one a quarter?
Thanks! Just drop it in the slot!

True, the iceman had his failings
And deserved a lot of knocks;
Messy did he leave the kitchen
When he filled the wooden box.
He was frankly quite a nuisance
But to him I doff my hat—
He would never in the pinches
Leave the high-ball party flat!

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE Olympic games, soon to be held in this country, will give the American broadcasters an opportunity to add several unusual events to their regular sports calendar.

At the outset they have thought of a "radio ride" down the bob sled runs of the Olympic winter sports to be held at Lake Placid, N. Y., in January. The idea is to put an announcer and portable transmitter on one of the steel bobs to describe the thrills as the sled swishes around 25 turns of the glare-ice course.

Also, the engineers are studying the best location for facilities to pick up microphone reports of the championship skating, hockey, ski-jumping and other events. Teams of 21 nations have entered the bob sled competition, with sleds capable of traveling 65 miles an hour or more.

President Hoover's views on the relationship of the home to the Nation will be heard on Wednesday night, when his address before the President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership is broadcast by both networks.

Station WJSV, feeling that it has an audience not reached by the networks in the mountainous sections of its own and adjoining states, will install a line for a broadcast of the President's speech. The Virginia station is the only independent which has asked permission to carry the presidential address.

JUDGES to select the five best manuscripts by American composers entered in the NBC's $10,000 orchestral award, are Walter Damrosch; Nicolai Sokoloff, Cleveland Symphony Orchestra; Frederick Stock, Chicago Symphony; Tullio Serafin, Metropolitan Opera, and Leopold Stokowski, Philadelphia Symphony. Entries will be accepted up to midnight, December 31, 1931. Approximately 50 works have been received.

Addresses by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Mrs. August Belmont, and others attending a luncheon of the Girls' Service League of America, will be broadcast by WMAL tomorrow.

Rosamund Johnson and his quartet will interpret typical songs of the colored race (WRC, 4 p. m. today), including "Deep River," "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho" and "Little Liza Loves You.'

When Station KOIL, Omaha-Council Bluffs, is welcomed to the N. B. C. networks tonight, contributions will be made by Paul Whiteman, the Pickard Family, Three Doctors, Russ Columbo, Ray Perkins, Martha Atwood, Oliver Smith and Josef Koestner's Orchestra (WRC, 11:30 o'clock).

The prima donna of the Vienna Opera Company, Elizabeth Schumann, will make her American radio debut, when she appears with her husband, Carl Alwin, conducting Wednesday night (WMAL, 10:30 o'clock).

HOW he "brings 'em back alive" for American zoos will be told on the air by Frank Buck, wild animal collector, just returned from the Malay jungle on Wednesday, WRC 10:30 p. m. * * * Grand Duchess Marie of Russia will tell of her escape from assassination at the hands of the bolsheviats in the Russian revolution (WJZ network, tomorrow night, 8 o'clock) * * * Radio Joe will have a "Reminiscent Old Songs' Nite" tomorrow, WMAL, 7:30 o'clock). * * * A dramatization depicting the life of Roger Williams has been prepared for the American School of the Air this afternoon * * * "The Span," a monologue enacted by Tom Powers, will be presented tomorrow night (WJZ network, 10 o'clock). Powers has appeared in many Theater Guild productions * * * Ralph Kirbery will do a five-minute midnight song recital each night, except Sunday and Monday, beginning tomorrow * * * Another of the programs of all-request numbers sent in by "shut-ins" will be played this morning by the Marine Band * * * Moe Baer's Orchestra will dominate WRC's wave for a half hour, 6:15 o'clock tonight, in a group of current hits.

THE Eddie Cantor Sunday night broadcasts will continue through January. He receives $2,500 for each program.

The Palm Olive hour, one of the oldest on the air, is scheduled to end its long and very successful run on the air within the next few weeks. Nat Shilkret and the Mobiloil program, now heard on Wednesday nights at 8:30 o'clock, will then move to 9:30 o'clock.

When the radio playlet needs the roar of a lion for realism a bass viol bow is drawn across a length of hemp covered with resin.

THE home of Station WCAO, the Columbia outlet in Baltimore, is an old mansion. Its age, according to J. T. Lyons, Vice President of the company operating the station, is 110 years, probably one of the oldest structures housing a broadcasting station in the United States.

A woman in Chicago refused to shut off her radio when asked so to do by her neighbors, who were annoyed late at night. They threw a bomb into the room where the radio was located. The radio stopped.

THE Census Bureau reports there were nearly 30,000,000 families in the United States in April, 1930, and over 12,000,000 families had radio sets.

"Little Boy Blue," which Gladys Rice will sing at 6:30 tonight in the Firestone program, has a tragic history. Eugene Field wrote the poem and the inspiration of it is believed to have been his young son, Melvin, to whom he was tremendously devoted. Melvin died a year and a half after his famous father wrote the tribute to childhood and it is known that Field suffered the deepest grief.

The music for "Little Boy Blue" was composed by Ethelbert Nevin when his son, dressed in a blue play suit, gave him a bunch of flowers on his twenty-eighth birthday. Nevin was frail and delicate and he died while his own little boy blue was still in short trousers.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

Panama, Nov. 28.

EVERY once in so often we have to stop and check up on colors that are being used for certain times of the day, or night, as the season gets more established. And it seems, my deahs, that more of you are interested in knowing what color to have in your evening wear than for any other time on your fashion calendar.

Well, it seems now that winter's really here, and with it the vogue for velvets and heavy satins with almost the same depth and luster as velvet, that black, white, off-white and deep jewel tones are the most popular—o-o-o-o-h, I almost forgot the most important of all, dark brown in combination with some light or bright color! This brown vogue for evening is the latest to come from Paris, and it's tremendously effective, too, when combined with clear, light blue, or peach pink, or pale chartreuse green.

Black and white evening gowns seldom use contrasting colors for trimming, with the possible exception of a small touch of vivid red with the white evening ensemble. But the deep jewel tones are just about always contrasted. For instance, dark purple velvet is trimmed with a bustle or bow or band of bluish purple, or purple of a reddish cast. 'N' for those who think a combination of two shades of dark purple a little too sophisticated, orchid or mauve or lavender-pink is used very beautifully and harmoniously. Wine or ruby reds are even more gorgeously lovely when yellowish pink is used in some form or other of trimming. And deep greens form a subdued background for lemon yellow trimming!

Pyjamas are partaking of many of the characteristics of our other clothes at the present time, in order to keep up the proper standard of modern chic. For instance, the pyjama for a formal tea hour which I have sketched for you today from Molyneux, is made of that most popular of fabrics—black chiffon velvet! And it has long, tight sleeves with a ruffling cuff, an adjustable scarf collar of a saucy little peplum. And these, as well as the inside of the wide, beautifully tailored trousers, are lined in brilliant orange crepe romain.

• • • •

If you just love pyjamas, but didn't think them suitable for winter lounging, don't hesitate to buy the new velvet ones. These not only may be made beautifully and interestingly, but there's just a suspicion of warmth to them that's cozy in winter twilights.

• • • •

And what could be lovelier against the background of a long, tight velvet sleeve than a bracelet like the one illustrated today. This particular bracelet is of gold quartz, jade and ivory.

• • • •

You never know when you or a friend of yours might be taking a trip through southern climes—or any kind of a trip, for that matter, and would just love to have the leaflet I have made for you this week all about such a trip. "Gangplank Romance" is the name of this leaflet, and it is everything about what to wear and when, how much and who to tip, and a lot of other timely hints that will help you ever and ever so much to enjoy your trip. I don't know anywhere you can find such information, really, so better send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for the leaflet. You will enjoy it if you never take a trip!

Au revoir!

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A PLAN AND THE PLAY.

TOO much emphasis can not be placed upon the importance of making a definite plan by which you hope to make your contract the moment the bidding has ended, the first lead has been made and the Dummy spread upon the table.

Quite frequently the thoughtless play to the first trick has prevented the making of a contract. The expert player always has a plan in his mind. Once made, he adheres to it unless the play discloses that he must make new disposition of his forces if he is to accomplish the desired end.

There is nothing more annoying to a partner and nothing better calculated to cause frayed nerves and thus result in squabbles at the Bridge table than purposeless play.

I can not too strongly advise that anyone wishing to become proficient in the play of Contract, prepare his plan—a bad plan is better than none—but practice in the making of plans will soon result in an increasing number of perfect ones.

Today's hand:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A 6 3 ♡ K 10 9 5 3 ◇ 9 5 4 ♣ A 5
♠ 10 2 ♡ Q 2 ◇ K Q 10 8 ♣ K Q J 4 2	N W E S	♠ Q 8 5 ♡ J 7 6 4 ◇ 6 2 ♣ 8 7 6 3
	♠ K J 9 7 4 ♡ A 8 ◇ A J 7 3 ♣ 10 9

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♣	2♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was the King of clubs, and South proceeded to count his losers. It was apparent that he must lose a trick in the club suit. He might lose a trick in trumps, depending on the distribution of the suit and whether the finesse won or lost. He might lose two and possibly three diamonds. His best chance for game lay in the establishment of the heart suit but it would be useless to establish it and then have no card in the Dummy with which to reenter it and use the hearts to discard losers. This plan indicated that entries in the Dummy were a prime essential to the success of the Declarer's campaign. There was no purpose in refusing to win the first club lead so the Ace was played, a small spade led from Dummy and when the club finesse held, South varied the usual procedure and laid down the King of spades.

Both East and West followed but South did not continue the trumps in order to pick up East's Queen. The Ace of trumps was to play a much more important role than that. South now led the Ace of hearts, and continued with the 8 of hearts, which was won with Dummy's King. The heart Ten was then led from Dummy and East played the Knave. Had he refused to cover, South would have discarded a club as his game would have been certain in any event.

South now trumped the heart and led a spade to the Ace in the Dummy hand, using the established hearts to discard two of his losers, thereby making not only his contract but an extra trick as well.

South had formed a sound plan and had carried it out successfully.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What are the requirements for an Opening bid of one notrump?

Answer: About 2½ honortricks in three suits—add ½ trick if vulnerable.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TOO BROAD BETWEEN THE EYES.

THERE is a type of congenital deformity of the face which is known as hypertelorism, of which there are but few cases in the records. It is characterized by altogether too much space between the eyes and, as a corollary, by an excess in the breadth of beam of the face in its midsection. The eyes, in addition to being pushed too far to the left side, are liable to be directed abnormally. They tend to look outward or in some direction other than straight ahead.

For a while there was a tendency to explain this deformity in various ways. It was recalled that the Eskimo has a broad, round face with much space between the eyes. Some speculative individual jumped to the conclusion that the Eskimo was among our social forbears, and that the baby with the deformity under discussion was an effort on the part of nature to "throw back" to an old racial type. We recall that another type of congenital deformity, Mongolianism, is sometimes explained on the same basis.

Then came the reduction to an absurdity, so far as this theory was concerned. Some one recalled that cows and birds had eyes that were set still further apart and that aimed to the side rather than to the front. Surely the human race was not trying to again become a bird.

Space between the eyes and breadth of the midface are often supposed to be a sign of intellect. The theory is that the person concerned has a large brain, and he was compelled to grow a large brain box to hold it. Lateral growth of the brain brought about lateral growth of the face and of the eye space. This deformity was an effort on the part of nature to produce an intellectual superman.

At this point a Scotchman stopped all the speculation. He was allowed to make a dissection of the head of a child born with this deformity, who died soon after birth. This dissection showed that there was an overgrowth of the sphenoid bone and this overgrowing bone pushed the eyes apart, increased the space between them, and broadened his face. He established that the size of this bone set the face pattern, the distance between the eyes, the breadth of the face between the ears, moonface or its opposite, hatchet face.

The sphenoid is one of those bones which go to make up the irregularly shaped partition between three cavities, that of the cranium, or brain cavity; the orbit, or eye cavity; and the nasopharynx, or mouth-nose cavity. This bone is a part of the floor of the first, the inside wall of the second, and the roof of the third.

Since the architectural plan and builder's blueprint for this group of structures are so very complicated, the wonder is that so little goes wrong and that misbuilding is so rare. Why is it that a very complicated routine of building is elaborated in the first place, is carried out without supervision through months of building, and finally comes out exactly right thousands of times in succession? There is where the reason for wonder lies.

However, this does not answer the question as to why congenital deformities occur. Still less does it answer why, when they do occur, they are apt to follow a pattern of their own.

Cactus Green

The Acid Green Family for Evening

If you are the lucky type that wears green well . . . there are no lovelier shades for evening than the acid greens . . . greens with a suggestion of yellow in them . . . like this dress in cactus green satin, with a lovely sash that grows out of the bolero effect in front. The little triangular cape is adorable!

Lady Astor Gives $200 To Chest in Richmond

New York, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Lady Astor, native of Virginia, used the transatlantic telephone to communicate a gift of $200 to the Richmond, Va., Community Chest fund, the National Association of Community Chests revealed today.

Speaking from her home in England, she told Julian H. Hill, an official of the campaign, to "put me down for $200—I want to see the campaign go over the top."

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

They Believe in Marriage!

CAN you imagine this? Two married men rooting for marriage! This, friends, is news And good news for the millions of wives who wonder what is going on in the mind of the lordly male as he scans the baseball news. Tune in here and get the surprise of a lifetime. Bachelors welcome.

Dear Frances McDonald: As a married man of ten years' standing, I believe I am qualified to say a word about the benefits of marriage. For the man, marriage is all benefits. I sit around and listen to the vaporings of the poor weak-hearted slackers who are afraid to take a chance, and can predict their measure of success in any field by their attitude toward the most important phase of human existence.

The man who is afraid to tackle marriage is just a misfit in a man's world—as you have often stated. I simply want to back you up—and add that if the poor sap only knew it he would get from marriage the very things he fears to lose. A man gains prestige through marriage. I do not mean by marrying prestige or the boss' daughter, but by marrying at all. Few business associates ever know whom you married but the fact that you are married suggests the qualities that business associates like—manliness, courage and ability. Their impression results favorably every time and automatically benefits immediately begin to accrue.

Ever notice the types who do not marry? Look them over. You will find the feminine streak in every last one. And some of them tip the scales at 250 at that.

I hung around single until I figured these birds out and you bet I rushed for the altar. And from the first I have been thankful. I have a highly intelligent companion, who makes it easy for me to succeed. What I used to waste on maudlin acquaintances, I have put into a home that is free and clear. I have three lovely children, well-trained and as intelligent as their parents—three boys, who will marry, and don't you forget it.

MARRIED MAN.

And "Happy" adds his views. What are yours? Is your wife a success? Let the world know it if she is. Wives get few boosts. Do your part. Tell us what you think of marriage. Here is "Happy" telling the world:

Dear Frances McDonald: Go on with the good work.

Your published letters present as good a cross-section of humanity, including warped minds, moron intelligences and first-class intellects, as one may hope to find.

Why not, though, give a few decent men a good word? Women haven't done it all in the way of improving marriage and domestic relations. Certain men have also done their bit. They are not the kind who consider shelving a wife after a year's trial. They consider her as a partner and as an equal in the serious business of home making and child raising.

"HAPPY."

Perfume Has Leading Role In Fashion's Newest Drama

Stylists Agree Women Too Long Have Been Cast in One Dull and Stereotyped Mold; Individuality Is Now the Watchword.

Into the serenity of the lives of women, so long undisturbed by drastic style changes, a bomb was thrown some few months past. What happened? Paris tilted her hat down over her right eye—flaunted the left side of her head openly before an admiring world—and a new page in fashion history was written. A style revolution at the tilt of a hat! Single-handed, the milliners had scored a brilliant coup—overthrowing all the uninspired conventionality in dress by which the feminine contingent had so long been governed.

And a good thing, too, said leading stylists. Too long have women been cast in one dull, stereotype mould. Individuality is the new watchword—a gracious, charming individuality inspired by the fashions of 1870, 1880, 1890—the years of 1910-11.

One thing is certain. We are romantic. Woman is again a creature of mystery—of elegance. And she has assumed a gentle wistfulness calculated to arouse the protective, adoring instinct in man. But the lavender-and-old-lace of 1870 have given way to the chypre-and Peau d'Ange of 1931. The new-old motif has been improved by a modern feeling for line and design—a charming subtlety. And in furtherance of the vogue for subtlety, the romantic elegance of every gown is complemented by just the correct note in perfume.

Shimmering satin suggests a sparkling fragrance. Rustling taffeta calls for piquance in perfume. Rich velvets demand depth and mystery in alluring odeours. With spongy woolens and nubby tweeds, clear, light, "woodsy" perfumes are preferred. But in any event—whatever the style of frock or type of fabric—perfume plays a leading role in fashion's new drama of romantic elegance.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

HOW shall I care for begonias over the winter? They have been planted in flower bed all summer. AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Keep them over winter in an eastern or southern window. When brought into the house some of the leaves may have dropped off. They resent the warm, dry air of the house. If the leaves continue to drop, cut the plants back to the roots. They will soon recover and develop new growth. Should you have to cut them back, the shoots you remove will if planted in good soil, develop roots and you will thus increase your stock. These young plants will begin in a few weeks to bloom. Begonias do best in a soil composed of good loam, sand and leafmold. They require perfect drainage.

My hardy chrysanthemums are over. Do they require any special care at this time?

MRS. HENRY T. W.

After the hardy chrysanthemums are through flowering, cut them back to within a few inches of the ground. If this is done, heavy shoots will appear in the spring which will be excellent as cuttings.

Please tell me whether it is necessary to cover a bed of tulips?

ALICE G. P.

Cover the bed with light litter after freezing weather sets in. The deeper the mulch, the later the bulbs will be in starting next spring.

This year my delphiniums and hollyhocks were troubled with blight. What do you suggest to prevent a return of this disease next spring?

MRS. DAVID B. L.

Wherever delphiniums or hollyhocks have been troubled with blights or some form of rust, it is well to remove all old stalks and leaves from about the crowns. In the case of delphiniums it is well to cover the plants with coal ashes.

Please give me a list of evergreens that are adaptable for all hedge use. We want to plant a hedge that will perpetually screen an objectionable view. MRS. PAUL L. J.

Norway spruce (picea excelsa), white pine (Pinus strobus), Japanese cypress (Retinospora plumosa), gray cypress (Retinospora aquarrosa), hemlock (Tauga canadensis) and beech (Fagus sylvatica) are all tall-growing shrubs suitable for screening unsightly vistas.

Please give me the formula for making Bordeaux mixture.

JOHN F. L.

Bordeaux mixture, which is not a proprietary preparation, is so cheap that it does not pay one to attempt to make it. To make this fungicide use one ounce of copper sulphate (blue stone) and a little over one ounce of hydrated lime to one gallon of water. Dissolve each, the lime and the copper sulphate, in a quart of water before mixing the two. It is better to have too much than too little lime.

What Today Means to You

"SAGGITTARIUS."

IF November 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:15 a. m. to 12:45 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to midnight.

November 30 is an adverse day for dealing with family or social matters. Anxiety is shown in connection with love affairs, through jealousy or rivalry. Employes will benefit through reorganizing changes, which will go on in the business which they serve.

The child born on this November 30 will be fitted for cutting out its own way in life, whether there is any need for it to do so or not. Success and popularity is shown through its own exertion. It will be firm and obstinately set on its own ends. It will always be an inveterate reader.

Born on November 30, you are essentially a "behind-the-scenes" man or woman—a hidden power behind some throne. You dislike publicity and self-advertising, and are not anxious to wear a halo of glory. As a slow and patient organizer, you can not be beaten. You act as a reliable check upon your more agile and impulsive associates. Your common senes and careful judgment always carries weight, and breeds confidence. You like responsibilities and hard work. You are clever at getting out of difficulties, and you can generally do so without treading on other people's toes.

Your humor is dry wit, and your speech is flavored with sarcasm. Woe be it unto him who merits your disfavor, for you are merciless in your persecution! As a friend, however, the pendulum swings the other way—you are thoughtful, generous, tolerant and loyal. Those whom you love are faultless creatures to you, and you will not listen to a word against them.

As a woman, you are very maternal and will make a more successful mother than wife. You will probably sacrifice too much for your own good, for your offspring. As a man, you will play the "heavy father" part with your children, and they will fear you too much to be free with their confidences.

Successful people born November 30:

Cyrus W. Field, merchant.
Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), humorist.
Jefferson De Angelis, actor.
Winston Churchill, English statesman.
William L. La Follete, senator.
Luther Wright Mott, representative.

HEART ATTACK KILLS 'BONESETTER' REESE

"America's Miracle Man" Healed Millionaires and Paupers.

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—John D. (Bonesetter") Reese, "America's miracle man," whose strong hands brought health and happiness to millionaires and paupers, died suddenly tonight of a heart attack. He was 76 years old.

His death came quietly at 5:45 p. m. after a week's illness, and removed one of the last great healers whose only medicine lies in skillful hands and knowledge of the human bone structure.

From a steel worker in his native Wales, Reese rose to a unique position among the world's healers. While still a child he learned the art of setting bones from an aged Welsh healer.

His fame grew, and when he came to the United States in 1887 to work first as a laborer in Pittsburgh rolling mills and later in Youngstown, his gifts gradually took him from the steel pits to the healer's chair.

For many years he was bitterly opposed by members of the medical profession, but by 1900 his reputation had grown so great the Ohio Legislature passed a special act enabling him to practice the profession of "bonesetting."

Since that time his patients have been prime ministers and office boys, his rare gift hailed in the United States and Europe and his unfailing gentleness the source of countless healings.

Among the noted patients who found their way to his unpretentious offices were David Lloyd George, Gene Tunney, Ty Cobb, Will Rogers and Fred Stone.

But early in his career wealthy and influential patients often twiddled their thumbs outside his door while the "bonesetter" treated mill workers whose ability to pay a fee was doubtful. His fees were often adjusted to his patient, it was said, though none ever was turned away.

Damrosch Recital Here December 7

Harvard Double Quartet Is to Be Heard at Central High School.

Two December events announced yesterday by the Community Institute of Washington include the reappearance of Dr. Walter Damrosch at Constitution Hall on December 7, and the first local appearance of the Harvard University Double Quartet in Central High School auditorium on December 22.

In 1885 Dr. Damrosch became director of Wagnerian operas at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, following the death of his father, Leopold Damrosch, who had inaugurated German opera before New York audiences.

The public at that time was strongly adverse to Wagner, but young Damrosch determined to overcome this prejudice. An opportunity was given him by Mrs. J. West Roosevelt to present a piano version of one of the trilogy, and the affair was so successful that during the following season he gave 60 recitals.

In his lecture-recital at the piano here he will present his own version of "Parsifal." Mrs. Lyman Beecher Swormstedt is secretary of the Community Institute. She will be assisted in arrangements by the Public Library and the League of Women Voters.

THE THEATER YESTERDAY

"PARIS AND THE COLONIAL EXPOSITION," with glimpses of the actual countries represented at the exposition. Fifth and last of the Burton Holmes pictured travel revues, season of 1931. At the National Theater. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by W. L. Wright.

As the subject of his last travel talk of the 1931-32 season, Burton Holmes, the distinguished and inveterate globe trotter, chose "Paris and the Colonial Exposition", one of the largest and most magnificent displays the world has ever known.

Stepping first through the "Golden Gate" the visitor is impressed with a small part of the ever-moving throng that finally compiled the grand total of thirty-three million people who paid admission to the exposition last summer. Using the various means of transportation available, from tiny touring cars and miniature trains to two-wheeled donkey carts and rolling-chairs, a tour of the exposition grounds revealed many beautiful vistas of lakes, fountains, arches and sculptured groups, interspersed among the many buildings housing the exhibits.

A series of wonderfully colored still pictures taken at night showed the marvelous lighting effects of this exposition in contrast with the 1900 exposition, also held in Paris, on the banks of the River Seine. Two luminous fountains, the "Water Theatre" and the "Grand Signal", were made to change color on the screen in a very realistic manner by the skillful blending of several unusual exposures.

Glimpses of the American exhibits turned the spectator's thoughts homeward as the real Mount Vernon was compared to the reproduction in Paris. So exact was the temporary structure that a visitor at the exposition could easily imagine himself on the shores of the placid Potomac.

Wending our way down the "Avenue of the Colonies," we pass in succession "The Missions," the Martinique Buildings, the Mosque of Djibouti and the grim, red towers of darkest Africa, where the Fuzzy Wuzzys are glad to take one camel riding.

Outstanding among the many beautiful buildings constructed of temporary materials for the period of the exposition only, are the Phoenix Palace of Holland's great exhibit and the Angkor Vat. This little known but gorgeous building of South Asia, now in ruins and abandoned to the jungle for 700 years, was rebuilt in all the intricate detail of its many carvings to be viewed by thousands daily. Recalling his visit to Angkor Thom five years before, Mr. Holmes pictured the utter loveliness and tropical beauty of this famous ruin in a series of slides taken from a travelogue of other years.

Back in Paris, the "abduction" of the most Parisian object of all Paris, the corner table of the Cafe de la Paix, for Mr. Holmes' personal collection of curiosities was reveled, and so home on the Ile de France with glimpses of New York as the boat docks.

On Saturday afternoon and night "The Real Hollywood," the first of this series of travel talks, was repeated by popular request.

Views of Los Angeles, Hollywood and southern California with its Japanese and Chinese quarters, and a side trip to Mexico afforded many interesting subjects to photograph. Returning to Hollywood and the movie "factories," Mr. Holmes delighted his audiences with many intimate views of well-known stars at work and at play.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ONE of the busiest actresses in Hollywood during the past four years has been Virginia Sale—and one of the least publicized.

It may be that Virginia's brother, Chic, who recently appeared in "The Star Witness," has somewhat overshadowed her professional activities. That, however, is not so likely as that the roles she plays are in themselves responsible. Usually she is a maid.

Miss Sale has been very good at maids, so good that she can produce a type from her extensive repertory for every background to which she is assigned. She has acted all varieties—cooks, country girls, smart French parlor servants, boarding house drudges—but almost always maids, nevertheless. Her latest is a slattern kitchen handy-woman in First National's "Compromised," which features Ben Lyon and Rose Hobart, and which has just been released.

This adept but unsung member of the Sale clan came to Hollywood in 1927 from the stage. Her first picture assignment was in King Vidor's extraordinary film, "The Crowd." Since then she has worked in scores of Hollywood productions—and not in one of them has she "played straight." Usually her maids are comedy maids—and people notice them. But she is so good in that field that no one has moved her out of it.

Virginia Sale's comedy is described by Hollywood observers as being just as workmanlike as that of her brother. It is founded on long training and experience, plus no inconsiderable amount of talent. Educated at the University of Illinois, she migrated with Brother Chic to New York, where she trained at the American Academy of Dramatic Art, known fondly to hundreds of its graduates simply as "Sargent's." After that training came five years of stage work and vaudeville before she stepped across the camera lines.

The family tradition called for comedy, so a comedienne she became. She has remained one. She will next be seen for First National in "Union Depot," which stars Douglas Fairbanks, jr. Her role? A very entertaining servant girl.

With all the money she has saved, and brother Chic's influence and large fortune, Virginia, by discreet bribery, no doubt could buy her way into more conspicuous assignments, except that, somehow, they seem to be not for Sale—if you know what I mean.

While no official counting of ballots will be undertaken until after the closing date of the Fox Theater's West Indies Christmas holidays cruise contest, December 10, the theater management announces that a cursory analysis of the thousands of ballots cast since the start of the contest last Friday leave no doubt that the competition will be keen among the candidates presumably yet to enter and the 149 who have already received votes.

Every Federal department of the Government is represented by candidates the Treasury, with its great personnel, leading with 29. Twelve of these are clerks in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the other 17 being employed in various of the other units of the department.

Additional departments and their representations to date are: Commerce, 15; War, 13; Navy, 11; Labor, 9; Interior, 9; Post Office, 8; Agriculture, 7; Justice, 5; State, 2.

Candidates, several showing strong backing, also are competing from the Government's independent bureaus, branches and commissions, including the Government Printing Office, with 10; Veterans Bureau, 14; Tariff Commission, 2, and the following with one each: U. S. Employes Compensation Commission, Federal Farm Board, Federal Trade Commission, Shipping Board, Zoological Gardens, Library of Congress and the White House.

Municipal employes are also enrolled from the Health Department, District Assessor's Office, District Auditor's Office, Police Court and Department of Education.

The prize being sought is a West Indian tour beginning at New York, December 19, and returning January 5, with stops at Kingston, Jamaica; Nassau, Bahama Islands; Panama Canal Zone and Havana, Cuba.

The Fox will award the winner a $100 check for incidental expenses—and don't think there won't be any!

"The Thirteenth Chair," one of the outstanding mystery dramas of recent years, will be presented by the Curley Club Players, under the auspices of the Curley Club, tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock, in the auditorium of St. Paul's Church, Fifteenth and V streets northwest. Arthur Bradley White is directing the production, of which the proceeds will be applied to the club's fund for scholarships for poor children.

And since you ask, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, the Arts Club Players will be presented in two one-act plays by the dramatic committee of the club.

"Wealth and Wisdom," by Oliphant Down, will be played by Dorothy Crosby and Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, under the direction of Maud Howell Smith.

The place of honor on the program will be given the prize-winning play in the national competition sponsored by Longmans Green & Co., publishers, for a one-act play about George Washington. "The Decision at Dawn," a dramatic treatment of Washington's darkest hour at Valley Forge, the winter of the award, was written by Maj. R. B. Lawrence, of this city, who for several years has had an active hand in the military pageants and spectacles put on at the Army War College.

The cast includes James Otis Porter, as George Washington; Belle Howell Bohn, as Martha Washington; Maj. Lawrence, as Alexander Hamilton; Anne Ives, Maurice Jarvis, John Wendell Hussey, Harold Allen Long, Edwin H. Etz and Rhodes Eakla. The play is directed by Mrs. William J. Peters.

In case you have not already identified him, Eric Zardo, conductor of the Zardolians, headlining the current week's vaudeville bill at the Earle, is a concert pianist and conductor of highest ranking in the musical world. Something of his virtuosity at the keyboard is demonstrated in the solo numbers he plays with orchestral accompaniment—standard compositions every one, executed with all of the interpretative discernment and taste of a true artist.

Mr. Zardo a few years ago, it will be recalled, was the favorite accompanist of Mme. Emma Trentini, the diminutive soprano of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company who afterward achieved note as star of a brilliant succession of operettas, composed for the most part by Victor Herbert and Rudolf Friml, of which the most memorable are "Naughty Marietta" and "The Firefly."

Startled by loud cries of anguish emanating from the third floor, I hastened to investigate only to find Mr. Don B. Reed in the midst of some very elegant lamentations that the exigencies of make-up had occasioned the deletion from his scholarly review of the current bill at the Fox, appearing in Saturday's issue of The Post, all of the handsome things he had written of Fanchon & Marco's "Marches Militaires" revue, constituting the stage show.

Mr. Reed's report was that "Marches Militaires" is pretty swell entertainment and that Mr. Charles Irwin, the fluent master of ceremonies, is as literate and facile a comedian as has come along since goodness knows when.

Mr. Irwin, you may remember, was once middleweight boxing champion of the British army.

Mr. Reed and I—both a little out of condition—are no fools!

State Asked to Widen Curve on Lee Highway

Declaring that the curve at West Falls Church on the Lee highway, in front of the Episcopal Church, is very dangerous and the scene of many fatal accidents in the last year, Mayor L. P. Daniel announced last night that he has written a letter to Col. H. G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, asking that consideration be given widening the highway at this point.

Mayor Daniels points out that thousands of tourists will visit the historical points in Fairfax County and be forced to travel over this narrow stretch of road, and that it is imperative that something be done to prevent accidents.

RAIN FAILS TO MAR SYMPHONY CONCERT

Large Crowd Is Present and Is Gracious in Applause of Kindler's Program.

Despite the inclement weather yesterday afternoon, hundreds of Washington music lovers thronged Constitution Hall at the second of the Sunday afternoon popular concerts of the National Symphony Orchestra, directed by Hans Kindler.

The concert was given under the management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

The continued progress of the National Symphony Orchestra into the front ranks of American orchestras was noted again yesterday afternoon and Hans Kindler had his musical men well in hand. The cohesion and unity of effort which comes through continued rehearsals was manifest, and after the concert the gifted leader was showered with congratulations for the fine showing made by the orchestra.

There was no soloist, so the beauty of the orchestral tone was unrivaled by individual achievement, except in the fourth number on the program, "On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring," by Frederick Delius, when a solo instrument brought round after round of applause.

The audience appeared to enjoy the "Concerto Grosse in D Minor," by George F. Handel, with its four contrasting movements.

The familiar beauty of the largo from the "New World Symphony" by Dvorak elicited much applause.

Fastest Speed Gained by Damming Electricity Like Water.

St. Louis, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—An X-ray tube taking a snap-shot in one-thousandths of a second, manyfold the speed hitherto available, makes its debut in the scientific world here tomorrow. The new tube is based on discovery of a method for damming up pelectric current, like collecting water behind a dam, and then letting the dam burst.

It is designed to enable physicians to "see" inside the human body beginnings of disease hitherto blurred or hidden by motion.

The tube will be exhibited to the seventeenth annual meeting of the Radiological Society of North America, which starts a five-day session tomorrow. The radiologists, mostly physicians, are X-ray and radium experts, who use radiation for diagnosis and treatment of disease. The electric dam tube is an invention of two scientists of the Westinghouse X-ray Co. and the Westinghouse Lamp Co., Montford Morrison and C. T. Ulrey, Ph. D.

Shortage of Gold Foreseen by Klein

Urges Economies in Use of Metal to Offset Diminution.

(United Press.)

The increased use of gold at the rate of about 3 per cent a year is causing grave concern as to the future supply, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant Secretary of Commerce, said last night in a radio talk.

Some experts forsee a gradual diminution within the next decade of two since the output of most of the production fields in Alaska, Australia and Latin America is gradually declining.

Dr. Klein suggested further economies in the use of the metal as a reserve so as to make it go farther, and improved facilities for rapid transportation of checks, letters of credit and other papers of value.

Lanterns Guide Traffic As Fog Ties Up England

London, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Policemen with lanterns directed vehicles as the worst fog in recent years paralyzed traffic throughout the British Isles today. Thousands of automobiles were fog-bound and many accidents occurred, including three collisions between street cars and buses.

Visibility was limited to about 12 feet in most cities. Pedestrians carried torches or lanterns to make their way through the streets in mid-afternoon. In many places pedestrians could find their way along the street only by following curbstones or railings.

Poison Expert to Rule On Ames' Death Cause

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—A toxicologist's version of the death of Robert Ames, stage and screen actor, is expected tomorrow to determine whether he died of an overdose of sedatives.

An autopsy already has disclosed that alcohol poisoning was not the cause of death. It likewise eliminated the theory the actor died of a hemorrhage. The findings of Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, city toxicologist, therefore are expected to fix the cause of death definitely.

Gaithersburg Autoist Arrested After Crash

Aubrey Mills, 40, of Gaithersburg, Md., was arrested by Rockville police last night and charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

Police said the car he was driving struck a parked automobile on the outskirts of Rockville and failed to stop. He was pursued by Corpl. Harry Merson and arrested after his automobile ran from the road about 2 miles outside the city.

VIRGINIA AUTO TAGS READY DECEMBER 15

Alexandria Distributor Is to Get Area's Supply of 7,500 Sets Soon.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The sale of Virginia State automobile license tags will be opened December 15, by Claude W. Fletcher, distributor for Alexandria and nearby territory, whose office is on the second floor of the City Hall Building. The same prices as for 1931 will prevail, or 70 cents for each 100 pounds or major fraction thereof, for passenger automobiles.

The color of the 1932 tags will be black background with white figures. The 1931 tags are orange and black. Black and white was used several years ago.

Mr. Fletcher has ascertained from Motor Vehicle Commissioner Frazier that new card permits are to be mailed out, as has been the custom in past years. Last year a double card was issued, the duplicate intended to be used for 1932. However, it is stated a large number of automobile owners have lost or misplaced this duplicate card, which would probably cause delay and difficulty in obtaining tags, and it has been decided to abandon the plan and to issue cards each year as heretofore.

Mr. Fletcher expects to receive shortly 7,500 sets of 1931 tags. Since the deadline for securing the new tags is January 15, it is not expected there will be any great demand until just before that date.

The Cameron Club, of Alexandria, will begin the winter series of broadcasting talks of interest to the public tomorrow night, when the club will sponsor the broadcast of the talk of Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, before the banquet of the Building and Loan Associations at the Willard Hotel, Washington, from 9 to 9:30 o'clock. Representative McFadden is chairman of banking and currency in the House.

Prof. Harry Oberholzer will give an illustrated lecture on birds in Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Braddock, this evening at 8 o'clock. A musical program will feature singing by Mrs. Harry Kirk, Mrs. Orlando H. Kirk and Mrs. Minig. The program is being sponsored by the Boys' Class No. 9, Stephen Petre, president; John Harrison Kirk, secretary, and Talbot Sinclair, class orator.

The Alexandria Chapter, American War Mothers, will hold a meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the George Mason Hotel. Business of importance is to be considered.

Cannon Demurrer To Be Fought Today

(Associated Press.)

The Government will reply today to Bishop Cannon, jr.'s, demurrer to a District of Columbia Supreme Court indictment charging violation of the corrupt practices act. Contentions that the law governing presidential elections violates the Constitution are being marshalled for defense of the Southern Methodist churchman.

His attorneys have prepared an elaborate attack aimed at both the law's validity and the soundness of the indictment charging failure properly to report campaign contributions of $65,300 from Edwin C. Jameson, New York Republican, to the clergyman's committee of anti-Smith Democrats in 1928.

For the Government, John Wilson, assistant United States district attorney, is ready with a 50-page reply to the bishop's demurrer to a District of Columbia Supreme Court indictment.

BUSINESS is a continuous race. Organizations are either forging ahead, lagging behind, or dropping out, depending upon how well they meet competition and serve the public.

The divisions of the Cord Corporation were not brought together for the purpose of promotion. These companies were acquired because, being specialists in their fields, they could contribute to the requirements of the whole, thus rounding out a self-contained manufacturing organization.

Under the one centralized management of the Cord Corporation, the year 1931 is the most successful year for every one of these companies.

AUBURN AUTOMOBILE COMPANY

Thirty-one years ago the Auburn automobile, the outgrowth of a buggy business, bid for patronage in a small way. When the present management took hold in 1924, Auburn had an average output of 200 cars per month; $650,820 of current liabilities, and $47,000 in cash. Few thought there was any room for Auburn to grow, because large competitors were "entrenched."

The management, then as now, believed there always will be a public demand for better products that give buyers greater value for less cost. To increase sales even in 1931, Auburn continued the same policies responsible for its growth year by year since 1924. Auburn's shipments for the first ten months of 1931 total 33,277 cars; 19,584 more cars than for the entire year of 1930 and 10,528 more cars than for the 12 months of prosperous 1929.

The Cord, America's first production Front-Drive passenger car, could come only from an organization that spares no expense or effort to search continually for new and better products. It is a matter of record that the Cord design is the most imitated in the history of the automobile industry, not only in America but also in Europe. The exclusive advantages possible only with Front-Drive have established Cord permanently as a leader in the fine car field.

LYCOMING MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Lycoming had its beginning as a small sewing machine factory at Williamsport, Pennsylvania. When Lycoming began to build motors in 1908, like Auburn, it entered an industry that was already crowded with many large competitors. At first Lycoming built four-cylinder motors to the specifications of their customers. Since 1912 Lycoming has built motors of its own design for the automotive, marine, aviation, and industrial trades. In 1924 Auburn adopted the Lycoming Straight Eight Motor, which was one of the first successful Straight Eights. Three years later Auburn acquired control of Lycoming, because it needed this source of supply. Today, Lycoming is the largest exclusive builder of motors in the world; first to make Straight Eight motors available to builders of medium priced passenger cars; largest producer of marine motors; Lycoming pioneered and produces about 95% of all Straight Eight motors for trucks; developed and produces America's most successful aviation motor. More than five million dollars have been invested by Lycoming during the past five years in development work and for machine tools and other equipment. As a result, this year is by far the most successful in Lycoming's history. Numbered among the principal users of Lycoming motors are International Harvester trucks, Stewart trucks, Dodge motor boats, Mullins motor boats, La France Republic trucks, Gramm trucks, John Deere & Co. harvesters, Stinson airplanes, and Auburn and Cord automobiles.

DUESENBERG, INC.

The first Duesenberg engine was built in 1898. Today the 265 H. P. Duesenberg is recognized as the world's finest automobile. Behind its marvelous design, construction and performance are the 33 years' engineering experience of its builders, who have contributed so greatly to the present day fund of all automotive practise. This strictly custom type automobile has almost completely routed Europe's most costly imported cars from the American market. Duesenberg builds and sells over 85% of all cars built in America for $8500 and over.

STINSON AIRCRAFT CORPORATION

Looking forward to the inevitable future magnitude of air transportation, control of Stinson was acquired in 1929. Stinson, with six years' experience of having pioneered the closed cabin type of airplane that the average man can fly, sells 78% of all the cabin airplanes built in America. During 1931 Stinson built twice as many tri-motored planes as were built by all the other American manufacturers of tri-motored planes combined. More than 50% of all passengers using regularly operated air lines in America this year have ridden in Stinson 10-passenger tri-motored planes.

SPENCER HEATER COMPANY

Spencer's 35 years of experience in designing and developing boilers for all types of buildings makes it the largest manufacturer of magazine feed type boilers in the world. While the heating industry is down about 40% this year compared to last, the number of Spencer boilers sold is the greatest in this company's history.

CENTRAL MANUFACTURING CO. LIMOUSINE BODY COMPANY

Central Manufacturing Company, Connersville, Indiana, specializes on standard automobile bodies. A search of the entire automotive industry would find no more advanced, experienced, and well equipped organization in its specialized field. Central's sales volume this year is 153% ahead of last year.

The Limousine Body Company, Kalamazoo, Michigan, was the first to make the custom type of Convertible Sedan available for production cars, and today builds over 80% of all the automobile bodies of this type built in America. Limousine's sales this year are 41% ahead of its best previous year.

COLUMBIA AXLE COMPANY

Columbia became a part of the Cord Corporation in 1929. Large sums have been invested in equipment of the latest design and of the greatest productivity. The present plant has a production capacity of 400 sets of axles per day. Columbia Axles are used in Auburn and Cord automobiles and in the vast majority of all the specially built taxi cabs produced in America. In addition Columbia serves several truck manufacturers both here and abroad.

CENTURY AIR LINES, INC.

Executives of this corporation have devoted several years to the study of all phases of air transportation. In the spring of 1928 a program was laid down that called for the development of a new, improved type of ten-passenger tri-motored transport plane and the building of a new aviation motor by Lycoming. Despite the effect of adverse business conditions on all types of transportation, including railroads, buses, steamship and air lines, the first Century line began operation in March this year. It was the first major air line to offer the public frequent schedules at rates comparable to those used by railroads. Of all the air lines in America, Century is second in point of financial responsibility. Although starting many years behind other air lines, Century is third largest in America in the number of miles traveled daily on regularly operated schedules. There are two Century lines, one in the Middle West and one on the Pacific Coast, and in July and August they carried 29.8% of all air line passengers in America. These lines form the nucleus for a nation-wide system that is being rapidly developed. At present they operate 82 trips daily, serving 18 terminus cities in 7 states, with a combined population of over 32 million people.

L. G. S. DEVICES CORPORATION

L. G. S. developed the first full Free Wheeling type of transmission. Control of L. G. S. was obtained by this corporation in the spring of 1930. Today's universal popularity and demand for Free Wheeling is largely due to the pioneering of L. G. S. and the development of its present unit with exclusive advantages obtainable in no other similar device. In the near future this corporation will announce the adoption of its Free Wheeling unit on several makes of well known cars, in addition to Auburn.

TULANE, S. CALIFORNIA TOP NATION'S GRID TEAMS

Surprise Victories of Army, Purdue Talk of Grid World.

Crowns Are Decided in Most Conferences as Season Wanes.

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Reverberations from the stunning upset victories of Army and Purdue still echoed today over the football front where Tulane and Southern California seemed to be the sole remaining contenders for mythical national honors.

A puzzled pigskin world probably will take the easiest way out and vote the national title to the winner of the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day between Southern California and Tulane, granting that the Southern Conference champion is invited to participate as expected.

But there was considerably less talk about a national titleholder than there was about Army's magnificent triumph over Notre Dame in the Yankee Stadium yesterday and Purdue's defeat of Northwestern just when the Wildcats seemed certain winners of the Big Ten championship.

Running and Passing Game Fails.

Notre Dame's dreaded running and passing attack failed to make any progress at all in the face of Army's fast-charging line and alert secondaries and the Cadets punched out a 12-0 victory that furnished the season with possibly its most astounding upset. Ray Stecker was the particular thorn in Notre Dame's side. He took a long pass from Travis Brown to put the ball in position for the first Army touchdown and scored the second himself on a spectacular 68-yard sprint in the fourth quarter that definitely settled the issue. A crowd of 81,000 looked on in amazement as the Army line broke through time and again to toss Notre Dame's star backs, including Marchmont Schwartz, for big losses or nail them at the line of scrimmage.

Northwestern, apparently gone stale after a tough schedule, was forced to accept a 7-0 beating from Purdue and content itself with only a one-third share in the Big Ten crown, the other two-thirds being held by Purdue and Michigan. Michigan earned its third by whipping Wisconsin, 16-0, but Ohio State, which also might have shared in the title, went down before Minnesota in a mild upset, 19-7. The Midwest's only other big game yesterday saw Temple's Owl bury Missouri under a 38-6 count in a charity battle at Kansas City.

Tulane Clinches Title.

Tulane clinched the Southern Conference title outright by halting a traditional rival, Louisiana State, 34-7. Georgia trounced Georgia Tech, 35-6, and Duke just nosed out Washington and Lee, 6-0.

In the East there were other surprises than Army's unexpected triumph. Yale, expected to find some trouble piercing Princeton's defense, rolled up a 51-14 count on the hapless Tiger, the most decisive defeat Princeton ever has suffered in the long series. Dartmouth had high hopes of avenging a 1930 defeat by Stanford, but the Far Westerners, especially Ernie Caddel, ran wild to the extent of a 32-6 count. Detroit earned a 6-0 win over Georgetown; Washington and Jefferson nosed out West Virginia, 14-13; Penn State trounced Lehigh, 31-0, and Navy outpointed Wooster, 19-6.

Although held to a scoreless tie by Texas Christian, the Mustangs of Southern Methodist, unbeaten in or out of the conference, won the Southwest championship. Rice turned back Baylor, 20-0, in the only other game of the final conference football date.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 29.—A colorful collection of present and past football celebrities here at the University of Alabama, ranging from the 1923-24-25 days of the celebrated Pooley Hubert down to the 1931 Crimson Tide stalwarts, will be lined up on Denny Stadium early in December by Coaches Frank Thomas and Henry Crisp for the novelty charity affair with George Washington, Georgetown and Catholic universities at Washington, December 12.

Permission has been granted by U. L. Hare, president of the Southern Conference, for graduating members of this season's edition of Crimson Tide to participate in the December charity rodeo. Present Crimsons will be joined by practically the entire 1930 eleven that went West last January 1 for Alabama's third invasion of Rose Bowl, and by several other brighter stars of recent campaigns.

Hurry Cain Only One Missing.

All except Hurry Cain from the 1930 back field will assemble here December 6, along with all 1930 linemen except Jimmy Moore. Cain has another year to go under Crimson colors and Moore, the blond flankman, passed away so untimely last summer.

From the regular 1930 Tide machine will be that sterling pair of tacklers, Freddie Sington and Charles "Foots" Clement; John Miller and Frank Howard, the two sturdy guards; Jess Eberdt, center; Albert Elmore, the surviving end; Monk "The Spinner" Campbell at quarter back; Flash Suther and Ralph McRight, a great pair of half backs. With the exception of Cain and Moore, this is the line-up that paraded through the 1930 campaign without defeat, crushing Washington State in a stirring climax at Pasadena's historic Rose Bowl.

Pooley Hubert, the great field general who played the full back position back in the days when Alabama went West on successive years, 1926 and 1927, also will be joined by Hershell Caldwell, the galloping half back that came along about the time of Red Barnes, Grant Gillis, Johnny Mack Brown and others.

Crimson Tide to Have Express Train Back Field.

What an express train on attack would be a back field composed of Hubert, Caldwell, Campbell and Suther! With McRight to relieve Caldwell with blocking chores now and then and with Long, Tucker and perhaps Barnes or Gillis for fresh material, what better could Coaches Thomas and Crisp want in ball carriers. Long and Tucker are seniors on this season's 'Bama machine.

Besides Elmore from the 1930 ends, Alabama's all-star collection will have Earl Smith, Ben Smith, Ben Enis and Dobbs as other stellar wingmen. Ben Smith and Dobbs are seniors here this year. Sington and Clement, All-American and All-Southern tackles, respectively, will need little aid, but Max Jackson from this season's team will be available.

Ears Whitworth and Dumpy Hagler will form replacement material for Miller and Howard at guards.

Managers Agree to Exhibition Game on Wet Field.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

SNITZ SNYDER, former Maryland University star, took a football game in his hands yesterday and crashed out a 6-to-0 victory for the Mohawks over the Celtics on a soggy Griffith Stadium field. The game scheduled and advertised as a South Atlantic League battle for the championship may or may not have been such.

Managers Patsy Donovan and Buck Grier agreed before action started that the teams would play an exhibition game, due to the poor playing conditions and rather than disappoint some 700 fans present at game time. Among those who did not know of the agreement were the crowd, Rob Roy Mackey and, from all evidence, the players.

"Exhibition" Is Real Battle.

For an exhibition game, the fighting brand of football played yesterday probably was six touchdowns ahead of any contest played at Griffith Stadium this season. The players snarled at each other the first time they lined up. There was a lot of mauling and kicking in the pile-ups and at least one honest-to-goodness fight which started on the field and ended at the dugout steps.

Center DeRoo, of the Hawks, and Half Back Admiral Dewey were the boys who were not too proud to do their fighting in the open. Dewey, who has been something of a target all season, mixed up with DeRoo when the latter intercepted a pass near the end of the game. Referee Barbara ordered both off the field and, unfortunately or fortunately (depending on where you were sitting), they met in front of the dugout, where there were many words and a few swings.

Getting back to the important, or unimportant touchdown. Snyder showed a return to the form that brought him fame with the Old Liners in that drive. A forward pass ruled completed, due to interference with the receiver on the Celtic 30-yard line, gave the Mohawks their chance.

It was at this point that Snyder got down to business. He crashed the Celtic line between the tackles for a series of gains of from 4 to 10 yards each time he took the ball, and aside from two short advances by Snail DeLabre marched the Mo-

Robertson Is Again Named Coach of Olympic Team

Dates and Sites for Trials Are Listed by Committee; Coaches Assigned; Marathon Tryouts at Baltimore.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Final plans for the participation of the United States in the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles, including the dates and sites for final tryouts in 25 of the 27 events on the program, were formulated here today by the American Olympic committee.

George W. Graves, Olympic treasurer from Detroit, reported that in the past two months the 60 sports governing bodies of the country have organized enthusiastically to raise funds to assure proper representation of the United States in the games, which will be held over a 16-day period from July 30 to August 14.

Lawson Robertson, veteran coach of America's Olympic athletes, again was named head coach of this country's forces, with Joseph T. England as manager. The committee did not recommend any assistant coaches.

Three official marathon tryouts were designated at Boston, Baltimore and Los Angeles, the three winners to make up the team.

Following is the list of other sports on the program, with sites and dates for tryouts and the names of coaches and officials approved at today's session:

SWIMMING, MEN AND WOMEN—Final tryouts to be held between July 15 and 25. Men's swimming, diving and water polo at Los Angeles. Women's swimming and diving at New York. Robert J. H. Kiphuth, of Yale, will coach the women's team, assisted by L. B. Handley. Fred Cady will coach the men's swimming team; Ernest Brandsten the divers.

SPEED SKATING:— Final tryouts at or near Newburgh, N. Y., on February 10; William Taylor, head coach and trainer.

SKIING:— Final tryouts at Lake Placid on or about January 20; Julius Blegan, Minneapolis, and Alf Halverson, Berlin, N. H., coaches.

ICE HOCKEY:— A series of playoffs between Pittsburgh, Chicago and Minneapolis and between Boston and New York will be held between December 25 and January 4, with final tryouts before January 18. Alfred Winsor of Boston was named head coach.

BOBSLEIGH:— The A. A. U. championship at Lake Placid January 15 and 16 will be the official Olympic tryout, two teams to be selected in each class. Jay O'Brien, chairman; Major Philip B. Fleming, West Point, secretary.

GYMNASTICS:— Tryouts in horizontal bar, parallel bars, flying rings, side horse, long horse and calisthenics at New York on or about July 15; remaining events at Los Angeles on or about July 23. Joseph Oszy, coach; Herbert G. Forsell, trainer; Roy E. Moore, manager.

FIELD HOCKEY:— Tryouts at Germantown Cricket Club, Germantown, Pa., December 6, with competition for places by individuals and not by teams. Officials for the team were not named.

ROWING:— Tryouts for eight-oared shells at Lake Quinsigamo in Worcester, July 7, 8, and 9; other trials on the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia, July 1, 2, and 4.

MODERN PENTATHLON—The team will number three men, managed and coached by Capt. C. R. Johnson, U. S. A. Dates for final tryouts in the spring to be announced.

EQUESTRIAN—Twelve men already are in California training for the events, three to be dropped later to conform with Olympic regulations. Head coach, Maj. Arthur B. Thayer; manager, Lieut. Col. Charles L. Scott.

WEIGHT LIFTING—A team of ten will be selected on the basis of their performances in sectional tryouts. Mark Berry, Philadelphia, coach; Deitrich Wortmann, manager.

FENCING—Trials for foils at Boston in February, the epee at Philadelphia in January and the saber at New Orleans in March. National championships at New York in April will serve as final tryouts. George Santelli and Rene Pinchard, of New York, coaches; Leon M. Schoonmaker, manager.

BOXING—Final tryouts at Soldiers Field, Chicago, July 15 and 16, with sixteen boxers to qualify. William P. Kenney, manager.

CATCH-AS-CATCH-CAN WRESTLING—Final tryouts in seven classes July 4 and 5, probably in a Mid-West city. Fourteen wrestlers to comprise the team.

CYCLING—No tryouts for track events, members of the team to be selected on past performances; State and sectional trials for the road race, the winners meeting in a final tryout at Los Angeles early in July.

Sing Sing Eleven Wins Over Poughkeepsie, 18-6

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The self-consciousness that crippled the Sing Sing football team when it played the Port Jervis police team a week ago disappeared today, and the convict eleven romped to an 18-6 victory over the Poughkeepsie All-Stars.

Even without their star, Alabama Pitts, who was in the prison hospital with two sprained ankles and a twisted wrist, Sing Sing scored easily on its opponent. Poughkeepsie had been coached by a county judge—Gordon Flannery, former all-American player at Cornell.

The Zebras rolled over two touchdowns in the second quarter and another one in the third period. Poughkeepsie's score came through a 55-yard run after a Sing Sing punt.

The convicts now want another chance at the Port Jervis cops.

LIONS AHEAD

The Lyon Park Lions, claimants of the Northern Virginia 135-pound title, defeated the Capitol Heights representatives by a score of 19-0 on the Washington and Lee High School field yesterday. The superior teamwork of the winners accounted for the victory. "Nuts" Estes and Cliff Whiteside played well for the Lions.

Coast Guard Choice Over Marines

Bears Unbeaten and Untied Against College Elevens.

President's Cup Contest Saturday Looms as Real Battle.

UNBEATEN and untied, with only 13 points scored against them in eight games, the Coast Guard eleven from New London, Conn., which meets the Quantico Marines in the annual President's Cup football game in Griffith Stadium Saturday afternoon, rules a strong favorite to return home with the award. Balked the past two years in their attempts to lift the trophy, the Bears will be hard to deny in their quest Saturday.

No one knows better than the Marines just what they are up against. They have played many of these same Guardsmen the last two years and know what an uncompromising foe they are. More than that, they know that the Bears are coming here literally and figuratively loaded for bear and would rather win this game than any and all of the past ones on their schedule, no matter how impressive it makes their record look.

Bears Have Impressive Record.

And the Bears' record really looks impressive, too. Counted among their victims are some of the stronger of the smaller Eastern colleges who are rated as downright tough. Their record follows:

Coast Guard, 32; Albright, 7.
Coast Guard, 13; Langley Field Air Corps, 0.
Coast Guard, 21; New River State College, 0.
Coast Guard, 35; Canisius College, 0.
Coast Guard, 32; St. Francis, 0.
Coast Guard, 31; East Stroudsburg Teachers, 6.
Coast Guard, 45; Seton Hall, 0.
Coast Guard, 7; Thomas, 0.

At a glance one notices that the Guardsmen also boast one of the best defensive records in the country. Any team that can go through that kind of a schedule with such a fine defensive record as that certainly must be hard to score on. In fact, it speaks for itself.

On the other hand, the Marines have twice met defeat during their precup game schedule of eleven games. The Philadelphia American Legion Team beat them, 14 to 0, and the Davis-Elkins Team also won, 7 to 0, or do the Marines hold a defensive record anywhere near that of the Bears, for their opponents have scored more than half a hundred points against them.

Another reason why the Bears will be the favorite is the fact that they

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

THE WEEKLY Monday morning second-guessing spree dea today with the Detroit-George town game of Saturday in whic for the lack of an offense, the Hil toppers were obliged to take t count by a 6-0 score.

Rocky Parsaca, the little bund of speed and grit in the Detro back field, was the only player c the field able to keep his feet an kick any substantial yardage be hind him on the slippery gridiro Georgetown's backs were shackle by the treacherous footing an Coach Tommy Mills watched h weakest offensive of the seaso strive futilely for ground and ope ating for the most part deep i their own territory.

The statistics tell eloquently the discrepancy that enabled D troit to win. In the running bac of punts alone, Detroit found a wea pon that paved the way for the lon touchdown. In this item of pla Georgetown's puerile efforts we notable.

The four Georgetown quarte backs, King, Kennedy, Lione an Costello, could return Detroit eleven punts on only four occ sions for any yardage whatsoeve Usually they were smothered fo no gain. Parsaca, on the othe hand, ran back eight of George town's twelve punts for gains as long as 32 yards. It was his 2 yard return of a kick in the fourt quarter that placed the Titans i scoring position.

Among the Georgetown back Viscovitch alone played a cleve game. King, Alenty and Shimmin were finding it difficult all after noon to get away for gains. Bor deau, who proved himself a stricti a line plunger, tossed away oppor tunities for countless first down by blindly running into the sec ondary defense.

This column has observed n more powerful line-smasher tha Bordeau. None has come under it gaze who can compare with th Big Ox of the Georgetown bac field in bursting across the line o scrimmage, opening or no open ing. But once beyond the scrim mage line, Bordeau shifted neithe to the right or left, and ever thrust was the victim of the De troit secondary defense.

In his brief appearance in th game, little Lione gave the best ex hibition of the four Georgetow quarter backs. His fake pass t Carolan on which he faded far t his right and then tucked the ba under his arm to gallop for a lon gain as Carolan took out the lon defender in that sector was th smartest play of the game. It wa a cleverly conceived play of Coac Mills and had all the ingredient of a touchdown play.

Casting about for reasons for th defeat of Notre Dame by Army be yond the fact that the Army Tea played superior football last Sat urday, there comes to mind th thought that Hunk Anderson ma not have the same faculty for keep ing his squad at the peak of it form which Rockne boasted.

A notable variance in the admin istration of the Notre Dame coach ing duties this season and in pas seasons has been in the busines of substitutions. Anderson ha strayed from Rockne's beaten path in this respect. Whereas the Old Master's custom was to start hi important battles with his shock troops and then replace them with his complete team of regulars, An derson has been sending in fre stars and replacements piecemea with the result that in virtually every game he has had parts of his first, second and third string back fields operating behind a composite line of first, second and third string forwards.

Army's task was easier than Southern California. The Trojans from the Coast were the first to tear down the aura of invincibility that had been erected about the Notre Dame Team. They showed Army the way. Army, too, was underestimated on the strength of its 26-to-0 defeat by Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh Team that scored two touchdowns through the Notre Dame line was powerless against Army except in the matter of forward passes, which netted Pitt all its touchdowns against the Cadets.

Signs of the times. The All-American fever in a milder degree has laid low Jack Espey, The Post's well-dressed college sports chronicler. He herewith submits his All-District of Columbia teams, with comment:

"It was difficult to select my first team, with the exception of Tommy Whelan, of Catholic U., at left half back, and Maurice "Mush" Dubofsky, of Georgetown, at left guard. These boys were outstanding from the start of the season. The selection at quarter back was given to Johnny Oliver, of Catholic U., by a proverbial shade over Al Woods, of Maryland.

"The first team has fast, rangy ends with sure hands; tackles who can withstand the hardest sort of pounding and at the same time open huge holes on offense; guards who simply will not be "taken out" and who can block with the best; a center who passes smoothly and is a terror on defense; a quarter back who is one of the best passers this town has seen in a long time and a smart field general; half backs who are versatile on offense and deadly on tackling in the secondary, and a full back who leaves little to be desired in any department of play."

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 29.—Bowie's meeting, unsurpassed for prosperity, ends with a charity program tomorrow, and owners have been liberal in keeping their horses here to insure a worthwhile program. There are seven races, and the feature is the fifth, the Belvidere Hotel Handicap. The track is slow and weather indications far from bright.

This will be the fifth day of racing held in Maryland this year for the benefit of the unemployed. The result of this day's racing is expected to pass the $100,000 mark realized in Maryland from the race tracks for the unemployment fund.

Larger Mutuel Take for Charity.

Those who attend should not object to the enlargement of the tolldish for the day, for the Bowie management will take out of the mutuel speculation 8 per cent. The ordinary and legal take-out is 5 per cent and the breakage, making it average close to 6 per cent. Maryland's take-out from the pari-mutuels is the smallest anywhere. No bank is supervised with closer scrutiny than the pari-mutuel operations on the four maor race tracks in Maryland.

This is the final day of racing in the East for 1931.

Havre de Grace, $34,000.
Pimlico, $23,000.
Laurel, $19,000.

Charity day purses this year have amounted to more than $40,000, contributed by the several tracks and distributed among the horsemen. A committee of horsemen, including Preston Burch, Thomas Healey and Max Hirsch, trainers of large stables, have volunteered to sell tickets, and the advance sales have been large.

Owners, Trainers, Riders to Pay Way in.

It is the committee's object to have horse owners, trainers and jockeys pay for admission. The management has said that guest passes will be honored, but most of those holding badges will pay.

Some horsemen have purchased as many as 300 tickets and many have bought 25.

E. F. Cooney's PILATE should win the feature. This horse, outstanding among the claiming race acquisitions of the year, has won more than $30,000 on an investment of $3,000. The horse went lame after running second to Clock Tower in the Washington Handicap at Laurel, and this is his first appearance at the races since. FRIGATE BIRD, winner of two recent starts, will be the contender. The track will suit BLIND LANE. She gets in light, and on her recent victory over Royal Ruffin should be dangerous.

FIRST RACE—LANSON, from the Marshall Field Stable, has not run his race. Sometimes horses run a sparkling race following a sensationally bad one. While there is little choice in this race, LANSON is chosen, and he will be a price if he should win. He has worked fast. HAPPEN'S last race was a good one, the filly being beaten only a head, at 27 to 1, by Kay Frances. FLOOR WALKER has a chance.

SECOND RACE—Two-year-olds also start in this, but they must have been foaled in Maryland to be eligible. S. W. Labrot's KAY FRANCES should repeat. CONSUMMATION, a recent winner, will hold the others safe. LILLYBET, third to Springsteel last out, should be in the money.

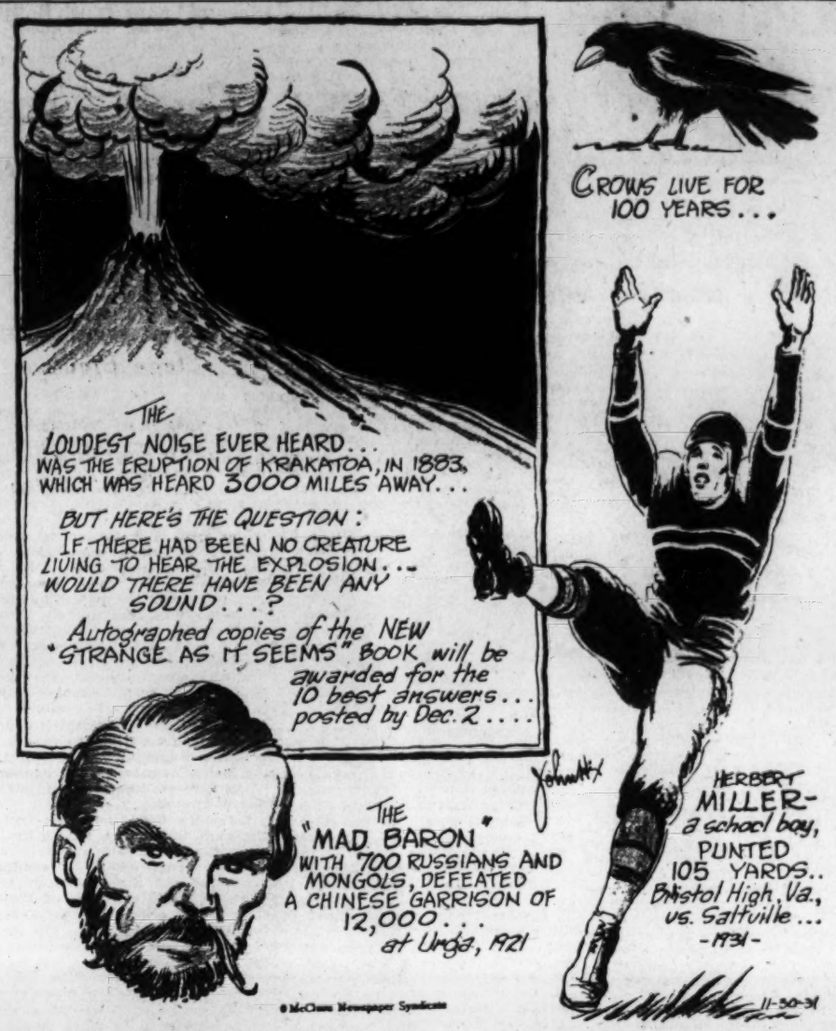
THIRD RACE—RAIN OR SHINE is running with cheaper horses than in his recent races and should win. He is the best mudder in this field. He ran a good race against The Heathen last time out. FANTAD is suited to the going and ought to beat CALGARY KAY for place.

FOURTH RACE — FALL APPLE stands out in the fourth race, secondary feature, in which the 2-year-olds start. This is a high-class field, and C. V. Whitney, Andy Schuttinger, J. R. Buchannan and other owners deserve credit for charitable impulse which caused them to enter stake horses in the small purse. CHATMOSS is the probable contender, with DARK SEEKER a close third.

SIXTH RACE—FLY GUY can almost fly in the mud and is selected for the sixth. WESTKO will be a contender. SWATTER will be as good as third.

SEVENTH RACE—STRETCHER looks much the best in the final. He won his last start on a heavy track from Croyden. The distance suits—a mile and three-sixteenths. RUANE has a chance. He beats fair platers. THUNWIN may surprise.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



WHEN the famous volcano Krakatoa suddenly burst forth with fiery rocks and lava in 1883, the noise produced was so great that the sound waves traveled three times around the earth. Each time they were recorded by scientific instruments. Even to unaided human ears, the sound was audible at a distance of 3,000 miles, on the Island of Rodriguez, in the Indian Ocean. For hundreds of miles around, listeners were deafened by the explosion, but, oddly enough, those closest to the giant crater were less impressed by the noise than those 1,000 miles away.

Krakatoa lies in the Straits of Sunda, between the islands of Java and Sumatra. Three days after the eruption, Java was still enveloped in darkness. Three years afterward the earth's atmosphere was so full of the volcanic dust that rings around the sun and other atmospheric phenomena were seen.

The volcano blew to bits the island upon which it stood, sending 4 cubic miles of earth and rocks into the air. It left a mighty chasm far below the sea level, into which the waters rushed, resulting in tidal waves that reached a height of 115 feet. The waves were even recorded at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, nearly 5,000 miles away. At a distance of 200 miles volcanic dust was deposited to a depth of 2 feet.

No. 5 Fire Gridmen Bow to Marions, 7 to 0

The Marions football team, one of the leading contenders for the title in the unlimited division of the Post's Capital City League, trounced Engine Company No 5 at Alexandria by a score of 7-0 yesterday.

"Shipwreck" Grogan scored the only touchdown of the fray in the first quarter after taking a pass from Hoff and running 20 yards to the goal. The Firemen were unable to penetrate the Marion's territory and most of the game was played in the Alexandrian's portion of the field. "Hard-luck" Child's return of punts featured the fray.

D. C. Colleges to Handicap Court Teams for Eleven

George Washington, Georgetown and Catholic U. Hold Court; Grid Players on Football Squad for Dec. 12 Game.

THE PLEDGES of Catholic, Georgetown and George Washington Universities to participate in the triple-header football game with Alabama's Rose Bowl champions for charity on December 12 will cost the basket ball teams of those institutions the services of valuable members in the opening games of the court season.

Important players of the court squads of the three schools are now in training with the football teams that are scheduled to appear in three 20-minute contests against the Alabamians, and, since each school has a basket ball game listed on or before December 16, it will be virtually impossible for the athletes who perform in both sports to prepare for the basket ball inaugurals.

Catholic U. Five Hardest Hit.

Catholic will be hit hardest, as its first basket ball game will be played on, December 11 against the perennially strong St. John's College five in Brooklyn, N. Y. Georgetown will open its court campaign on December 15 against Mount St. Mary's in Tech High Gymnasium, while George Washington will get under way the following night against Shenandoah College in the G. W. Gymnasium.

The football representatives of the Catholic court squad are Buster Sheary, Tom Whelan, Whitey Ambrose, Bingo Flynn, Ed White, Fred Guarnieri and Johnny Oliver. All are experienced basket ball players, whose absence the Cardinals will feel keenly, not only in the opener with St. John's but in the second game of the schedule with City College of New York on December 12.

Dick King, captain of the Georgetown basket ball team, probably will miss the Hilltop opener with Mount St. Mary's on account of the charity football game. Others who will postpone basket ball for the unemployment affair are Tommy Carolan, the best goal-shooter at the Hilltop, and Fred Callahan, giant center.

G. W. Sacrificing Quartet Of Tossers.

Fred Mulvey, Wayne Chambers, Lee Carlin and Johnny Fenlon, are the athletes to be sacrificed by the George Washington quintet. Fenlon now is hobbling about with an injured leg, a souvenir of the recent North Dakota clash. It is expected, however, that he will be ready to return to action for the Alabama contest.

Assistant Head of Navy Is Squash Racquets Star

DAVID S. INGALLS, Assistant Secretary of Navy in charge of aeronautics, is rapidly becoming one of the city's leading squash racquet players, having advanced his name notably on the bumper list of the Racquet Club. Otto Glockler, veteran club coach, rates him among the three best in the city, although at present he has progressed no higher than nine on the ranking list.

Squashmen in the District are topped by Marshall Exnicios, a big blonde left-hander who strokes the ball harder than any of his colleagues. He first played the game six years ago, and improved consistently enough to give him the District championship last year and put him high out on top this year.

Racquet Club Courts Not Regulation.

The four Racquet Club courts, because of a new ruling of the National Squash Racquets Association, do not conform to regulation this year. The ruling body decided at its last meeting that only wooden courts would be standard. The addition of lumber to the walls of the local club's courts would make the courts themselves below normal size.

Squash tennis, which flourished some years back, promises to become absolutely extinct this year. The tremendous speed of squash tennis was its very ruination. As the caliber and liveliness of the ball progressed, and new speed was built into the racquets, players were forced to don helmets, similar to fencing masks, to protect themselves from both ball and opponent's racquet.

The squash racquet ball is notably deader. It is 1¾ inches in diameter and about half solid.

Henry Berliner, aircraft manufacturer, is the chairman of the squash committee at the Racquet Club this year, and has arranged intercity matches with both Baltimore and Wilmington.

Miller Runner-Up in D. C. List.

The present ten ranking players are: M. O. Exnicious, R. W. Miller, A. Minnix, H. L. de Sibour, W. N. Goodwyn, Capt. Jeter, K. Mabon, H. G. Moulton, David S. Ingalls and L. A. Block. Also on the list, farther down, are Page Hufty, local golfer; Gen. Foulois, chief of Army aviation, and Corcoran Thom.

The District champions of the first decade of the club's existence have been Coleman Jennings, Dwight F. Davis, R. B. Wigglesworth, David McK. Key, E. M. Hinkle, R. W. Miller, A. C. Minnix, H. L. de Sibour and Marshall Exnicios.

Whelan, C. U. Star, Tops D. C. Scorers

Cards' Ace Holds Big Margin; Poppelman, Maryland Is Second.

Tommy Whelan, Catholic University's great half back, recently closed his team's 1931 football schedule in the role of high individual point scorer of the District.

Poppelman tops Carl DeMello, C. U. right half back, by two points for second position and may strengthen his hold in his club's stand against the Green Terrors.

The scoring figures:

Chocolate and Singer To Fight on Dec. 11

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Jimmy Johnston, in charge of boxing at Madison Square Garden, today announced that Kid Chocolate, Cuban lightweight flash, and Al Singer, former champion of the 135-pounders, had come to terms for a bout in the Garden December 11 for the New York American's Christmas Fund.

Formal signing for the bout will take place tomorrow when it also will be decided whether the match shall be at 12 or 15 rounds. Chocolate punched out a close decision in 12 rounds over Singer in their first meeting at the Polo Grounds in August, 1929.

BATH ALUMNI BOWS.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Nov. 29.—The Alumni of Bath District High School, of this place, for the first time in five years has been defeated in the annual game with the high gridders. The youngsters avenged former defeats by trimming their older opponents, 14 to 0. All points were scored in the third quarter.

D. C. ELEVENS TO OPPOSE ALL-STARS

Whitworth is a senior this year, but Hagler was a star on the Tide aggregations of a few years ago. Joe Sharpe, captain of the 1931 Crimsons, will lend asistance to Ebert at center. They fought it out last year for first-string berths on the last Wade-coached team.

Several Former Stars Have Been Coaching.

Several of these former Crimson luminaries are coaching. Frank Howard is located at Clemson, Monk Campbell at Kentucky, Freddie Bington at Duke, Monk Campbell and Flash Suther at Hopkinsville, Ky., High School, Earl Smith at a prep school in Mobile, Pooley Hubert at Mississippi State Teachers College at Hattiesburg, and others at various schools. Foots Clement has been officiating this year and he is in fine trim.

Coaches Thomas and Crisp will give this array of material about four days of practice here before departing for Washington to play that combination of three 20-minute games. They have announced the squad will assemble December 6 and will depart December 9, arriving at Washington in time for practices Thursday and Friday.

boast a veteran aggregation. Many of their players have participated in the past two games and are thoroughly familiar with the Marines' style of play. Too, many of the Leathernecks on last year's team are now scattered to other posts by official orders which broke up the All-Marines Team after the end of last year's season. A nucleus of that team remained at Quantico, and around them another formidable aggregation of pigskinners has been molded. This it would behoove the Bears not to come down too confident of success, for the Marines delight in being the underdog.

TIGERS SWAMP PREPS.

The Takoma Tigers swamped the Notre Dame Preps yesterday, winning by a score of 36-6. The teams are in the 135-pound division. For games with the winners call Manager Brukman at Georgia 3065-J.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 29.—The South Atlantic League game between the Irvington Club and the Apaches, of Washington, was declared off today due to a mud-soaked field and the lack of covered stands.

MARTY GALLAGHER SIGNED.

Marty Gallagher, Washington and Boston heavyweight, will meet Stanley Poreda in Jersey City next Friday night. Poreda recently won a technical knockout over Ralph Ficucello of New York in seven rounds and is regarded as one of the most promising young heavyweights in the ring industry. Gallagher has gone to Boston to complete his training for the bout.

hawks to the 3-yard line. After the Celtics had braced for three downs, Snyder for the first time changed his tactics to an end run and sprinted over the goal line untouched. Fee Colliere hardly got the muddy ball off the ground on his try for the extra point.

Both Teams Pass Up Scoring Chances.

Both teams had scoring chances earlier in the game. The Celtics' best opportunity coming as the result of a 30-yard run to the Mohawks' 15-yard line. However, the Indians held for downs.

For the most part the game was a kicking duel in which Les McMenamin had an edge over Fee Colliere. The Celtic kicker's advantage was offset, however, by the brilliant way in which Dick Allen ran back the punts.

For the first time this season, the Celtic line was outplayed, even if only by a small margin. Wondrack, DeRoo, Minnix and the others were in a charging mood. DeLabre, who has been handicapped by injuries, came through with his best offensive and defensive game of the season for the Hawks.

COAST GUARD CHOICE FOR MARINE GAME

boast a veteran aggregation. Many of their players have participated in the past two games and are thoroughly familiar with the Marines' style of play. Too, many of the Leathernecks on last year's team are now scattered to other posts by official orders which broke up the All-Marines Team after the end of last year's season. A nucleus of that team remained at Quantico, and around them another formidable aggregation of pigskinners has been molded. This it would behoove the Bears not to come down too confident of success, for the Marines delight in being the underdog.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

SHORTY SCRIVENER'S Fraters climbed into first place in the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League yesterday, when they defeated Del Ray, a rival of long standing, by a score of 18 to 0 on on a rain-soaked gridiron at Alexandria. It was the winners' fifth victory in six starts. While the Fraters were gotory in six starts. While the Fraters were going to the front in the race, the defending Mercury eleven was busy pasting Brookland with a 13-to-0 defeat to obtain undisputed possession of third place in the league.

The Fraters scored their first six-pointer in the second quarter on a series of line plays following an exchange of kicks. Park Bell carried the oval over for the touchdown. The next period was devoid of any scoring, but the eventual winners put the game under lock and key in the third quarter with a pair of markers.

Cabell in 53-Yard Dash.

Elliott Cabell started the rally with a 53-yard run to Del Ray's 8-yard line where he was pulled down from behind. Two line plays gained the necessary yardage and Cabell went over for the second touchdown. With only two minutes of the quarter remaining the Fraters regained possession of the ball after an exchange of kicks on Del Ray's 34-yard line. Bell, Cabell, Beach and Williams advanced the pigskin to the 2-yard mark from where Elliott plunged over for the score.

The kicking of "Hardy" Gensmer and the work of Sampson in the line featured the Fraters' defense. McLaren shone for Del Ray. Next Sunday the Fraters will meet the Mercury eleven in a crucial game at Alexandria.

A nightmare of intercepted passes and fumbles marked Brookland's fall before the Mercs. A miscue in the opening period led to the first score of the game. Brookland muffed the ball on its own 45-yard line and Handiboe recovered for the Wingfeet. Self then dropped back to the 35-yard line and tossed a pass to George Limerick, who stepped off the remaining 20 yards behind perfect interference for the score.

Brookland shook Tom Evans loose for a 35-yard gain in the second quarter, but when it seemed that Woodruff's charges would certainly score, another fumble nullified their efforts. Again at the start of the third period Brookland made two first downs in succession, and then lost the ball when Kelley intercepted a pass.

Brooklands and Penalty Prevent Score.

Self shot three short passes in succession to Limerick in the fourth period to bring the ball to Brookland's 20-yard line. Spaulding raced 16 yards around right end on the next play, reaching the 4-yard line before being thrown out of bounds. But a strong Brookland forward wall and some timely aid from the referee in the form of a 15-yard penalty prevented Mercury from scoring. Brookland, instead of kicking, elected to take a long chance and attempted a forward pass, which was intercepted. Self then tossed a pass to O'Brien, who crossed the goal line standing up for the second and final touchdown of the game.

Soccer Games to Rockville, Rosedale, Columia Heights

ROSEDALE, Columbia Heights, and Rockville, were returnell victors in the Capital City Soccer League matches played yesterday. The matches were much slower than usual, due to the soggy condition of the turf, but the players did not seem to mind the unfavorable weather, and put forth their best efforts in spite of all old man weather's attempts to halt the proceedings.

Al Duvall, of Brandywine, was the victim of a strange quirk of fate when he booted the ball into his own net for a Columbia Heights score during one of the frequent mix-ups of the match. Duvall, evidently intending to drive the ball into safe territory behind the goal, shot the leather squarely between the posts. As the game progressed it became more and more evident that his miscue would have made no difference in the final count.

Columbia Heights played well, exhibiting a great passing and defensive game throughout to win the decision. The final score was 4-1.

Rosedale proved far too clever a "mudder" for the Army lads from Fort Myer and won easily by a score of 4 to 1. Blanche was the star for the Northeast Clubmen, ringing up two points for his team with well-placed kicks. Henry Irving and Fergerson contributed the additional two points to the score. Gallagher tallied the only marker for the soldiers, who plainly disliked the treacherous underfooting.

Rockville was obliged to fight all the way to win over the energetic Gaithersburg eleven. A Gandy finally succeeded in kicking the ball into the net late in the game to assure his team of victory. As in the other matches, the heavy drizzle failed to help the teams.

PALACE SURE OF TIE, AT LEAST

Defeats Meridians in Senior Class Feature Game.

TEAM STANDINGS.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Palace	7	0	0	14
Brentwood Hawks	5	1	2	12
Centennials	4	0	2	10

THE Palace eleven assured itself of at least a tie for the 150-pound championship of The Post's Capital City League yesterday, when it trounced the Meridians by a score of 13-0 at Silver Spring. Uncertain footing and a rain-soaked ball hindered the play of both elevens. In the only other game played in this division the Brentwood Hawks closed their league campaign in a burst of speed, taking the Northern Preps into camp by a score of 18-7 on a muddy Mount Rainier gridiron.

The victory assures the Hawks of third place in the standings. The Columbia-Centennial and Petworth Pennant-Brookland games were postponed due to the inclement weather.

Palace used only the rugged implement of straight football to subdue the fighting Meridians. The latter team kept plugging away as if the championship of the circuit would be decided on the outcome of the battle, but it could not produce the necessary power to stave off the damaging thrusts of the Perron-coached gridders.

Palace Scores in First Period.

Palace scored its first touchdown in the opening period. Johnny Peters blocked Watson's kick on the 30-yard line and recovered for the Southwest eleven. A series of smashing line plays terminated with Tonker crossing the final chalkmark.

Joe Hudson put the eventual winners off to a good start in the third period when he grabbed the opening kick-off and ran 65 yards to a touchdown. The Meridians, led by Georgie Watson who worried his opponents considerably with some good kicking and ball carrying, made a gallant but futile attempt to overtake their opponents in the last period. With a 13-point margin Palace consted in with the verdict.

Bill Fellner and Casey were the heroes of the Brentwood triumph over the Northerns. Fellner ran 53 yards to a touchdown in hte opening period. Because of the poor condition of the field neither team resorted to an aerial attack.

TRADE IS ENLIVENED BY RETAIL ACTIVITY

Use of Electric Power Gains as South Increases Work in Textile Mills.

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Money flowed a little more freely over the retail counters for necessities during the past week, electric power was used more liberally and in certain parts of the country, notably the South, there was considerable quickening of activity in textile mills.

These gains were the most cheerful contributions of the week to business news. Otherwise there was little change except for renewed weakness of important commodities. Wheat closed the week having lost about two-thirds of its maximum gain during the recent sharp upswing. Cotton had lost practically all of its less spectacular gain.

Steel production fell off to 20 per cent of ingot capacity but this was a normal seasonal development. From Detroit came reports that the automobile industry is putting more men back to work and in December a gain in production is expected.

Buyers Increase Inquiries.

The larger industrial centers reported there had been a substantial number of buyers making inquiries. Purchases, however, were confined largely to hand-to-mouth requirements. Inventories were still low in practically all lines of activity, from manufacture of steel to the retailing of men's apparel. Manufacturers again expressed a conviction that only a moderate quickening of buying would accelerate manufacturing activity.

Good news came to the copper industry when announcement was made that Belgian-owned mines in Africa had finally come under the healthful influence of production curtailment. Immediate response was felt in the market for copper metal, which earlier in the week went to a record new low price of 6¼ cents a pound.

Emphatic gains in textile production were recorded in the South, where employment increased. Some mills have more than doubled their output this month. While sales of electrical appliances lagged, housewives again showed interest in showings of new rugs, furniture and ornaments. There was a significant gain in sale of household furnishings.

Weather Delays Sales.

Unseasonable weather has played an important part in holding down retail sales. In Eastern States, warm weather slowed down the purchase of winter articles. Sales of men's wear were at low ebb, but some stimulus was noted in certain articles of women's wear, notably stockings. Price reductions in hosiery have decreased sales more than seasonally. Pennsylvania mills have employed additional workers. Christmas goods are moving a little more rapidly at retail, owing to concerted efforts to have Christmas shopping done early.

The Southwest is looking up. Reports indicate that confidence has replaced fear in the eastern half of the South, road building and other construction work has also helped. On the Pacific Coast, lumber is still in the depths, but recent rains and snows have broken a long drought.

Sharp decline of sterling caused some unsettlement in foreign buying, but this downswing was apparently nothing more serious than a combination of natural needs which came at the same time and speeded sterling on its way down. Imposition of the new British tariff caused English buyers to engage in a last-minute import rush. Selling of sterling to pay for these goods is still under way.

Movement of freight traffic continued at a subnormal pace, but the week's decline of 26,663 cars in loadings was about seasonal. Further falling off is entirely possible, just as further contraction in steel activity is likely because of usual December lull.

St. Stephen's Preps Down Lorton Eleven

The St. Stephen's Preps, champions of the 135-pound division of the Post's Capital City League, journeyed to Lorton, Va. yesterday and inflicted a 7-0 defeat on the Lorton Reformatory eleven in a closely contested game. Frequent fumbles, due to the slippery ball and poor condition of the field, and just as frequent penalties marred the play.

The lone score of the fray came at the start of the fourth quarter when Zumbo tossed a 20-yard pass to Joe Stanlon who added another 60 yards before being knocked outside on the 3-yard line. Zumbo cracked the center of the line for the score on the next play. Stanlon's sensational broken field running was the feature of the game. D'Ambrosio, Ware Goldstein and McLaughlin played well for the losing team.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Only three bond offerings of major size are included in the $9,806,540 of new financing scheduled by 49 municipalities this week, the Daily Bond Buyer reported. The weekly average for the year to date is $32,929,006.

Bergen County, N. J., has scheduled an offering of $1,296,000 4¼ per cent public improvement bonds monday. Fort Wayne, Ind., is offering $1,000,000 water works bonds on Tuesday, and Kearny, N. J., will receive bids Wednesday for a block of $1,500,000 water supply bonds.

The National City Bank of New York, as fiscal agent, is notifying holders of Republic of Finland 5½ per cent external loan sinking fund gold bonds, due February 1, 1958, that $122,000 principal amount of the bonds has been selected for redemption February 1, 1932 at par and accrued interest.

Speyer & Co. announced that $173,500 bonds of the Hungarian consolidated municipal 7½ per cent loan of 1925 and $96,500 bonds of the 7 per cent loan of 1926 have been drawn for the sinking fund and will be payable on and after January 1, 1932 at par. Out of an original issue of $10,000,000 bonds of the 7½ per cent loan of 1925 and $6,000,000 bonds of the 7 per cent loan of 1926, there will remain outstanding $8,174,000 and $5,168,000, respectively.

The trend of New York City bank and trust company stocks was again downward during the past week, as indicated by the dollar index figures compiled by Holt, Rose & Troster. Sixteen issues as of November 28 yielded an average of 7.13 per cent, compared with 6.59 per cent November 21. Based on the November 28 figures, the sixteen issues are selling at 13.1 times known current earnings, against 14.2 times November 21.

Dillon, Read & Co. and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, fiscal agents for United Steel Works Corporation of Germany, announced that $313,000 principal amount of Rheinelbe Union 20-year 7 per cent sinking fund mortgage bonds have been drawn for redemption January 1, 1932, through the operation of the sinking fund.

Lothair Teetor, vice president in charge of sales of the Perfect Circle Co., said that October replacement sales of the company through automotive equipment jobbers proved to be the largest October in the company's history, registering a gain of 71 per cent over October last year.

Steel Magazine Reports Improvement in Outlook

Cleveland, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The magazine Steel today said developments tending to sustain steelmakers's confidence in the first quarter are now discernible in the structural shape, reinforcing bar, steel pipe, railroad and automotive markets.

For the present, however, the industry has lost considerable buoyancy, the magazine said. Since mid-October, operations rose from 27 to 31 per cent by November 14, but last week a lack of further recuperative power was evident, and a weekly average of 29-30 per cent was barely maintained. The summary predicted the rate will be unchanged during the current week.

New York Central Lines Income Is Cut in Half

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The New York Central Railroad Co. and its leased lines, in its report to the Interstate Commerce Commission, showed for the month of October net operating income of $1,868,245, a decrease of $3,785,402 from the $5,653,647 reported for the corresponding month of 1930.

Net operating income for the first ten months this year aggregated $26,515,974 against $52,293,392 for the corresponding period of 1930.

MUNY GOLF PLAY JULY 19.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The 1932 national public links golf tournament, awarded to Louisville, will begin July 19. Henry Heyburn is chairman of the local committee in charge of arrangements.

BOND PRICES REACT WITH STOCK LOSSES

Several Loans Touch Bottom for Year; Rails Lead in Heavy Drops.

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Although high-grade issues put up a determined resistance, the bond market generally reacted with stocks last week and, led by the rails, several loans broke through the lows of 1920.

The carriers, especially, were a friendless group. Belief that some roads will not earn their fixed charges and must borrow to meet interest payments is thought to have caused considerable selling.

The fear in some quarters that a wage battle between the railways and the unions may follow the meeting of the brotherhoods in Chicago on December 8 was another depressing factor.

Oil and copper bonds hardened during the week, the former on reports of better prices and lower output, and the latter on reports from Europe that the Belgian producers had finally experienced a change of heart and agreed to the American curtailment plan. Industrials sagged with the rest of the market, but held up better than utilities.

Foreign obligations, which recently have been attracting considerable attention, were irregular. German bonds slumped on reports that Premier Laval of France intended to insist that reparations payments must take precedence over private or commercial debts. British government obligations were soft. South American issues were lower, but Japanese bonds were well supported and maintained firmness.

Corporate bond offerings during the week totaled but $12,466,920, in comparison with $13,954,400 in the previous seven days. In addition, municipal and State offerings were light, with the exception of Boston City bonds, which, totaling $7,478,000, were oversubscribed. The state of the bond market is considered so low at the moment that many corporations and municipalities are being forced to short-term note financing.

The average price of 60 corporate bond issues at the end of the past week was 78.6, comparable with 81.8 on the preceding Saturday. A new low average for three successive days was established.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 121.

IN these days when elimination of grade crossings is one of the chief topics between railroads and States and communities, it is hard to realize that this photograph, taken in 1895, is not a fake.

But trains used to run down the middle of the streets of the Capital "way back when," and this particular train was snapped as it chugged along Maryland avenue, spreading cinders and dirt on those who happened to live along the right of way.

It was a train on the old Alexandria and Fredericksburg line, and the locomotive, rather puny alongside the monster masses of steel which now haul crack passenger trains across country, was in those days considered almost perfection.

In the foreground may be noticed another item in our daily life which is rapidly disappearing—a yard. Children used to stand near the front fence to watch the trains go, whereas today the only thing which brings them out is the sound of fire and ambulance sirens.

COMPANY ERECTING SCHOOLS MAY LOSE JOB OVER UNION PAY

Abrogation of Contract on Woodbridge Building Is Being Considered.

VIOLATIONS OF WAGE SCALE LAW CHARGED

Investigation of All Firms Doing District Work Is Under Way.

Alleged widespread violation of the prevailing wage law by contractors on District work has bene called to attention of District Commissioners and the Department of Labor by the Washington Building Trades Council, it was learned by The Post last night.

As a result of these complaints a contract awarded to W. P. Rose & Co., of North Carolina, for construction of the Woodridge School may be abrogated. Acting Engineer Commissioner Donald A. Davison has asked Corporation Counsel William W. Bride whether failure of the company to submit an affidavit that it is paying proper wages is sufficient basis for invalidation of the contract.

In their appeals to the trades council workmen have sworn that, in some instances, they were compelled to sign blank payrolls and received less than union scale. In other cases they were paid the union wage scale by contractors, but were compelled, in order to hold their jobs, to return part of their wages to the employers.

Fired for Complaint.

In one instance, reported by a former employe of W. P. Rose & Co., the workman was paid less than union scale. When he refused to accept the reduced figure he was told he need not report for work the following day, he said.

District Commissioners have ruled that the union wage scale shall be the prevailing rate on all District government projects. Contractors bidding for District work, have been so notified.

Complaints of violations of the wage scale law, after being submitted to the trades council by the workmen, were sent to the commisioners. Maj. Holland L. Robb, of the engineer commissioner office, was assigned to investigate.

Each of the contractors doing District work was asked whether he was adhering to the law in paying workmen the proper wage. In each case, Maj. Davidson reported, contractors sent statements saying they were abiding by the law.

W. P. Rose & Co., concern against which most of the complaints were directed, was awarded contracts for construction of the Woodridge School, the addition to Stewart Junior High School and the Nurses' Home at Gallinger Hospital.

Affidavit Request Ignored.

Commissioners asked this concern to send a sworn affidavit that they are adhering to the prevailing wage law, Maj. Davison said. This request was not complied with and question of invalidation of the Woodridge school contract arose. When this concern did work at St. Elizabeth's hospital, a Federal project, several complaints of underpayment of union men were directed against it.

Charles E. Young, secretary of the Washington Building Trades Council, admitted last night that many complaints against contractors had been filed.

"As a matter of courtesy," he said, "I would not care to discuss the question until the Commissioners have been given opportunity to conduct a thorough investigation. We have submitted to the Commissioners and the Department of Labor what we believe is conclusive proof that the prevailing wage scale law is being flagrantly violated."

Bishop McNamara Put On Curley Club Roster

The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, D. D., Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore and pastor of St. Gabriel's Church, has been elected as honorary member of the Curley Club, it was announced last night.

Others similarly honored include Rear Admiral and Mrs. William S. Benson, Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Patrick J. Haltigan, House of Representatives reading clerk; James E. Colliflower, Gregor H. Heine, consulting engineer of Catholic University; Mrs. Alfred J. Smith, and Timothy J. Broderick.

Meat Shop Thieves Get $200.

Two hundred dollars in cash was obtained by thieves who early yesterday broke into a delicatessen at 1733 G street northwest. The money was hidden in a meat showcase, John Nicholes, proprietor of the store, told police. He named two former employes as suspects.

School "Ills" Now Held as Real Malady

School sickness, once upon a time something to be laughed at as an excuse for staying away from school, is now being taken seriously by educational authorities.

A complaint as real as measles, it is menacing the health and happiness of thousands of American school children, according to Dr. James F. Rogers, Federal Office of Education consultant in hygiene and specialist in health education.

The disease, according to Dr. Rogers, is produced by "pressure" in the classroom, and is characterized by nervousness, irritability, restlessness, anxiety and a highly emotional state. The child suffering from school sickness usually has a poor appetite, sleeps badly and has night terrors, the specialist declares. He aggravates his own condition by self-analysis and introspection, and athletic contests are injurious to him, Dr. Rogers has found.

School Systems Blamed.

Dr. Rogers places the blame for the disease on the effect of many of the present school systems throughout the country on the sensitive child. "Children, no two of whom are alike, even if they are twins, are expected to pass through the same courses at the same speed, or be labeled 'D,' 'dull,' 'retarded,' 'inferior,' or the like," the physician observes. "The more sensitive child, unable to keep the pace in one or more subjects, does his utmost under the well-intended stimulus, and the result of the impossible struggle is an illness as real as measles, and, unfortunately, more drawn out and full of misery."

Dr. Rogers points out that no two children can proceed at the same pace in studies "and that it is not a very intelligent agent which expects or tries to make them do so." Nature's efforts, he observes, have always been in the opposite direction from uniformity, both in structure and function.

Doctor Suggests Remedy.

The emotional life, in Dr. Rogers' opinion, is older and more fundamental than the intellectual life. "If the former is not taken into account in education, we get nowhere in bringing out the child's inherited possibilities," he says. "It is either powerful for physical and mental health progress, or it is equally powerful for physical and mental depression and disaster."

Suggesting a remedy for the situation, Dr. Rogers quotes Dr. J. V. Treynor, Council Bluffs, Iowa. Dr. Treynor recommends that a child's report card bear only the remarks, "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory." "Satisfactory would mean that the child is doing as well as he might naturally be expected, taking into consideration his age, his mentality, his health, his degree of social adustment in the schoolroom, and his emotional poise," Dr. Rogers quotes Dr. Treynor as stating. This, both doctors insist, would rid the schools of "the one great evil, pressure."

Mr. Roth, just returned from an inspection tour of Europe, presented his observations on economic conditions in various European countries.

"Unrestricted immigration into this country, over a period of time, would cause just as unfavorable a condition here as exists in other parts of the world," he said.

SECOND BRUTALITY TRIAL IS IMPENDING

Detective Sergt. Barrett Faces Jury Wednesday on Beating Charge.

Jury consideration of "police brutality" will be resumed this week when assault charges against Detective Sergeant Robert J. Barrett will be presented in Criminal Division No. 1, District Supreme Court.

The two precinct detectives, James Mostyn and W. R. Laflin, who were convicted last week of assaulting James Henry Harker, will come before Justice James M. Proctor for sentence Wednesday or Thursday. The maximum penalty the pair faces is a year in jail and $500 fine. The court can limit sentence to a fine or a jail term.

Policemen W. C. Grooms and W. T. Burroughs, who were found innocent by the jury which convicted Mostyn and Laflin, are still under suspended status, as police authorities have not yet decided whether to reinstate them or bring them before the Police Trial Board on charges.

Neither have drawn salaries since early in August, and both have large families to support.

Detective Barrett, suspended homicide squad member and one of the most promising investigators at police headquarters, will be tried Wednesday on charges of simple assault resulting from his probe of the murder of Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, cashier of the Garden T Shoppe, at Eighteenth street and Columbia road northwest.

In the indictment Barrett is accused of a fistic assault on George Baber, whom he approached as a suspect in the Jaynes murder. Baber was exonerated from any connection with the fatal shooting.

Through Julian Richards, assistant United States attorney, the Government will attempt to show that Barrett waited in Baber's apartment, and when Baber entered he was beaten in the presence of several officers.

A development of the case was the arrest by Department of Justice agents of two men who were charged with attempting to intimidate Baber.

Cecil Mason, one of these men, was indicted by the grand jury for "obstructing justice." He was alleged to have represented himself as a friend of Barrett's and to have suggested to Baber that he "go easy" on Barrett in his testimony.

Another third degree trial may also begin this week, if the Barrett trial is finished. James O'Shea has been retained by Policeman George Sorber. Presentation of Sorber's case in Criminal Court No. 2 will depend on when the other case is completed.

Boy, 12, Peddles Needles After Father Disappears

Sleeping peacefully in a room on the third floor of the Marlowe Coal Co. Building at 811 E street northwest, police yesterday found a 12-year-old lad, who, for nearly a week, has been braving life alone unable to locate his father, who disappeared from lodging quarters the two had occupied.

The boy, Richard Oliver, was found after police had gone to the coal company office in answer to a watchman's call that some one had "broken in." Richard said he had been sleeping in the room for the past three nights and had been earning money for his meals by selling needles. He was fairly well equipped with clothes, although he has no overcoat, but police said he appeared to have suffered no ill effects of the recent raw weather.

Asked where his mother was, Richard, who exhibited plenty of nerve, according to policemen, began to cry and he was questioned no further along that score after he said in a breaking voice that she was dead. His father works for a bus company here, he said, and he had been in practice of meeting him along Ninth street after both had completed their respective day occupations of school and work.

About a week ago his father failed to show up at the usual time, and Richard then went to their room at 387 Pennsylvania avenue. And so Richard has been going on by himself, visiting Ninth street now and then in search of his dad. He is now being taken care of at the Receiving Home while police endeavor to locate the missing father. Juvenile Court authorities will be approached tomorrow in regard to the boy's case.

Boy, 12, Sought After Fire In Arcade Laundry Office

A boy about 12 years old was object of a police search last night after it had been reported that he broke into offices of the Arcade Laundry, in the Arcade Building, 3210 Fourteenth street northwest, and set fire to a quantity of papers on the floor.

George Trenbelas, employe of the building, declared that shortly after 8 o'clock he noticed thick smoke issuing from the laundry office. As he went to investigate, he told police, a small boy ran past him down the stairs to the street. Trenbelas said he found the door to the office open and when he entered discovered the floor strewn with burning papers.

He called Harold Kennedy, another emplyoye, and together they extinguished the fire. Edward Rundle, night watchman, was summoned, and he called police. Search of the office disclosed a number of half-burned money bags about the floor. Police were of the opinion that the boy found the bags smpty as all cash is sent to the main office at the end of each day.

Rundle declared he saw a boy loitering in front of the building earlier in the night but paid little attention to him. He was wearing a soldier's overseas cap and a black sweater, he said. Police were unable to determine how entrance to the office was gained unless a duplicate key was used.

School Alarm Is Flood, Not Fire; Pupils "Blue"

School children living near the Congress Heights School at Alabama and Nichols avenues southeast, yesterday saw a fire engine rush up to the building. Child-like they had visions of having one of their greatest ambitions fulfilled, that of seeing their school burn to the ground.

But there was no fire. On the contrary, there was too much water. The basement of the building had been flooded and when William Anderson, the watchman, came to stoke the furnace he found it under a foot and a half of water. He called the police who summoned the Fire Department, Engine No. 25 responding. After two hours of pumping the firemen had the building clear of water. Jere Crane, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, inspected the building and said that due to the fact that the water had only flooded the cement floor of the basement there was no damage.

And the school children learned, somewhat to their sorrow, that where there is a fire engine there isn't always a fire.

PASTOR AVERS LUCK IS MENTAL MISTAKE

"No Luck in Washington," Is Dr. Swem's Finding at Centennial Church.

"Luck is a mental mistake and there is no luck in Washington," said the Rev. E. Hez Swem last night at Centennial Baptist Church.

Dr. Swem took the text for his sermon from the sixth verse of the 118th psalm, "The law is on my side." His topic was, "Is There Any Luck in Washington?"

The speaker took the words of his text, "The law is on my side," and interpreted them as meaning "God is on my side." From this he took the meaning, "God belongs to me."

"How much more sensible it would be," Dr. Swem said, "to say, 'Good health to you,' instead of 'Good luck to you.'

"Once upon a time," the speaker went on, "a man named Luck was shot in front of the Rigga Bank. He did not have good luck, did he?"

"Who but a crazy man could start anything but luck," he said, "and all crazy men are not behind the bars."

"Luck is silliness, senselessness, foolishness. Luck is something that people believe in but ain't," Dr. Swem said.

"Luck is an expression that you can't find in the Bible but you can find, 'The Lord is on my side,' he went on.

The speaker pointed out ridiculousness of the belief that it is bad luck to see a woman first thing in the morning. "If I did not see a woman first thing in the morning I would not have any breakfast. I am no cook," he said.

"Business men, who are able to make large fortunes, believe in luck and there aint any such animal."

Dr. Swem went on to explain that luck is sin because everything that is good comes from God and luck is of the devil. He continued that the devil doesn't want us to trust in God as the devil is opposed to believers.

"There is no such thing as luck, never has been and never will be," Dr. Swem concluded.

SELF-DENIAL NEED OF NATION TODAY, PASTOR DECLARES

THINKS YOUTH LACKS SPIRIT OF OTHER ERAS

Attacks Unequal Financial System Which Hurts Social Standards.

"There seems to be a growing attitude to fight shy of all enthusiasm that lead to lives of self-denial," said the Rev. Frank S. Niles preaching yesterday morning at Georgetown Presbyterian Church. "It may possibly be the aftermath of the jazz age. It may be a certain sense of disillusionment resulting from that false aim of life, 'Try everything once.'" Dr. Niles continued.

The speaker was preaching on the subject "Modern Knighthood." He took his text from Mark, viii:34: "And when He had called the people unto Him, with His disciples also, He said unto them, 'Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me.'"

"The knights in the days of old denied themselves the quiet pleasures of the fireside and home, the thrill of the hunt and a life of ease. They denied themselves that they might follow the quest for the Holy Grail. It was the cup which had caught the water and the blood as they flowed mingled down from Jesus' side, pierced by the Roman spear," Dr. Niles said.

Appeared So Pure.

"But because of the sin in the land, the chalice had disappeared. It was the ambition of these knights to recover the holy cup. It was seen from time to time in vision by those purehearted knights who lost themselves that they might find themselves. But it appeared only to those who in purity of heart crusaded through the world shattering evil and righting wrong.

"Such knights found the Holy Grail indeed and felt it ever present with them as an abiding spiritual force.

"The youth of every generation responds instantly to the call of chivalry, to right wrong, to defend the weak. The American youth of 1773 gloriously endured the hardships of Valley Forge in response to the appeal of George Washington. The Italian youth in the days of Garibaldi risked everything for the sake of a great ideal. The youth of a past generation nobly gave their lives in what they thought was the defense of the weak and in a way which they nobly visualized as a war to end war," Dr. Niles went on.

Points Out Trouble.

"It is not only in college that men are unwilling to deny themselves. We see the same indifference and lack of enthusiasm in high school students and in all life everywhere. We are holding out on life. We are restraining every vestige of enthusiasm. That's what's wrong with the country, and it most certainly is what is wrong with the church. The church will never thrive, the Kingdom of God will never come, until men everywhere are willing to deny themselves, to let go their quest for pleasure and follow the Christ instead.

"The modern knight who would follow the Christ must right wrong as Jesus did. There is something awfully wrong when half the families in this country report on income for the head of the family as only $1,300, and many families have less than that. Yet the United States Government has declared officially that a wage of $2,000 is necessary to maintain a standard of decency.

"People at one end of the scale have incomes averaging over a million dollars a year, while people at the other end are glad if they can get $500 a year. When half the population of a country is living below the acknowledged standard of decency it is a clarion call to right wrong," Dr. Niles concluded.

Radio Talk Made By Visiting Priest

Stresses Power of Christ in Sermon at Church of Father Hurney.

The Rev. Matthew J. Helmig, of Egypt, Ohio, who is here to preach the Mission Novena at the Church of the Immaculate Conception beginning today, was guest preacher on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour broadcast from the church over station WOL yesterday. Father Helmig took as the subject of his sermon, "The Mother of Grace."

Telling of how Archimedes, ancient Greek mathematician, pledged himself to lift the earth out of place if given a fulcrum outside the earth to work from, Father Helmig said "this is exactly what Christ has succeeded in accomplishing. He has drawn the world to Himself. He has transformed it spiritually, morally and socially by an unearthly supernatural, mysterious power. This power He communicated to His Followers."

Father Helmig will preach three times daily at the mission services—after the 6:45 a. m. mass, after the 12:15 noon mass (for 15 minutes) and at a 7:45 p. m. evening service. The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church, presided at yesterday's broadcast, assisted by the Rev. J. Kelly Reese. Miss Mary O'Donoghue was guest soloist; Miss Ann Arlen, violin soloist, and Miss Florence Yocum, soloist of the church choir. Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard, at organ, and the Boys Sanctuary Choir, also participated.
